SMELTING BY ELECTRICITY. The electric smelting process which, it is announced, has been perfected by Dominion, should prove of the utmost iron ore deposits of this country. A serious handicap to the smelting industry in Canada has been the distance between the coal fields and the iron ore region, which has made the fuel so costly as to greatly lessen the profits of the industry. All the while there are throughout Central Canada, where the iron deposits most abound, water-powers in abundance, capable of providing electrical energy.

To devise a means of utilizing this natural power in the smelting of iron work to which Dr. Haanel has devoted much time and study, and his final success should serve to attract

Dr. Haanel recently returned from Sweden, whither he went on the invitation of capitalists, and reports that the latter, on the strength of his report of his scientific work in Canada, -have installed a working plant, which meets perfectly his expectations and convinces him that the problem of electric smelting on a profitable

WIRELESS AT SEA.

The United States Congress has a apparatus. President Roosevelt has vice itself? sent a message of approval, and its adoption this session is likely, provided the time available for general legislation will permit its passage through both houses.

The introduction of this measure is evidence that the lessons of the Republic disaster have been taken to heart, and that society demands that every available means of increasing safety at sea be taken. In his mes- She stays out at night until all hours, too, sage the President points out that the matter is one of national concern, and calls attention to the fact that the country's coasts have been equipped with a chain of shore stations, designed primary for the national defense, but capable of receiving and transmitting messages by any of the systems of wireless telegraphy now

While there appears not to be two opinions as to the advisability of all passenger-carrying ocean vessels being equipped with the wireless apparatus, there are those who maintain that the time has not yet come for compulsion; that in any event its voluntary adoption by all important vessels sooner or later is certain, as But there was some cleaning-that left it the best regulator in such matters. while in the case of smaller vessels a compulsory law would entail expense and inconvenience to the owners without any compensating benefit to the public and seamen. Another argument for delay is that discrimination in marine insurance rates in favor of vessels equipped with the most modern of safety devices will eventually cause voluntary action in that direc Then, too, there are those who argue in favor of the adoption of submarine fog bell, contending aid to navigation at times when the danger of collisions is greatest.

The preponderance of opinion seems to be in favor of the immediate enactment of a compulsory law, some going so far as to advocate its application to lake vessels. The passage of the bill by Congress would doubtless be speedily followed by other maritime nations, and it may not be going too far to predict that before many years pass the wireless equipment of ocean steamships will be uni-

CANADA AND THE EMPIRE'S WARS

Mr. J. S. Ewart, K. C., of Ottawa, In an address to the Canadian Club, Peterboro, maintained that there should be some arrangement between the various nations of the empire for co-operation in war, having regard to the fact that no state within the empire should be obliged to participate in a war of which it did not approve. Mr. Ewart was of the opinion that Canada ought to be neutral in a war between Great Britain and France, otherwise the integrity of the Dominion would be endangered. In a war between the United States and Japan, Canada would have to decline to aid Great Britain if the latter joined forces with her Oriental ally. Neither would the United Kingdom permit Canada to involve her in war with the United States, or Australia to quarrel with Germany, Japan or China. Mr. Ewart continued:

"Let us look this matter squarely in the face, and let us understand Some sudden day we may have they would sleep little, if at all. to come to a sharp decision. The difficulties of which he speaks however, may never arise.
