MURDER, SO SAYS THE JURY

JAMES HICKS MET HIS DEATH BY ADMINISTERED POISON.

And His Nephew and Sister Declared to Have a Guilty Knowledge of the Same—The Coroner's Inquest in Session Nearly All Night—Some Strong Evidence.

Coroner Johnson and his jury, after four or five lengthy sessions, concluded the enquiry into the death of plasterer James Hicks at the Police Court at an early hour this morning. There was a big crowd of people in the room during the progress of the enquiry.

Arthur Hicks and Sarah White, by the jury's finding, are held on a charge of a guilty knowledge of Hicks' murder, which the jury declare it to be.

Lawyer Holmes represented the prisoner Sarah White and in the absence of County Crown Attorney Badgerow Mr. Arthur Webb upheld the dignity of the crown. Among the spectators was Rev. W. E. Wilson, who seemed to take a great interest in the evidence.

Mrs. Norton Threatened.

Mrs. Norton, the handsome blonde, was the first really important witness. Before she was called Coroner Johnson read an unsigned note which some one had written to the lady the day before. It ran as follows:

Mrs. Norton: If you say anything against that woman, Sarah White, to-morrow night you will get a bullet in your heart in the courtroom.

"I" remarked the coroner as he concluded reading the precious epistle and glanced sweetly round the crowded court room, "that gentleman who wrote this note kindly demonstrate who he is I will expound to him the extreme unpleasantness which results from tampering with or intimidating a crown witness."

Mrs. Norton kissed the book and continued her evidence as if there had been no such promise to correspond shortly for her blood. The important point developed in her latest evidence was that she swore to Mrs. Sarah White going to town on the Monday before Hicks was poisoned. She had also a conversation with Mrs. White on the day following the death of Hicks, prior to her arrest, during which time she had heard about James Hicks being ill and asked:

"How is your brother, Mrs. White?"

Mrs. White replied: "He is dead."

Witness: "What did he die of?"

Mrs. White: "He was poisoned with arsenic and the papers say that the union men did it."

Witness: "What for?"

Mrs. White: "Well, they set fire to the house twice before. The doctors say they are going to probe it to the bottom. Is it murder in the first degree?"

Witness replied: "I think it is."

This concluded the conversation and Mrs. Norton's testimony.

When the Witness Fainted.

The lady had commenced her evidence with a sensation and closed it with one. She had scarcely reached her seat when she fainted. There was a great scurrying around. Mrs. Adams, the police matron, rushed in with smelling salts and Sergeant Detective Reburn gallantly escorted her out of the room after she had somewhat recovered.

The witness who followed Mrs. Norton was the prisoner White's daughter, Polly. Mrs. White seemed visibly affected. The girl's evidence was unimportant, and upon the whole the intimate position of the witness she was not pressed with questions.

Detective Watson, attached to Wilton-avenue station, told how on Monday, Aug. 5, he had called at Dr. Latimer Pickering's drug store, Queen-street east, a little before 11. While there he saw the prisoner White at the counter being served with something by Dr. Annie Louise Pickering. He recognized the woman as being the person the moment she was shown in.

In answer to the coroner: "Had a conversation a week ago to-night with Mrs. White in the character of the prisoner. She had been brought up and questioned in the detectives' office. I was then detailed to see her home again. She asked me to call at a store opposite the market the girl told me that her father had told her now to give her evidence and say that on a Monday when he came up to see her with her mother to say that neither she nor her mother had got off the car. She further said that on the night before the doctor's boy came to the house. Homestead both she and her father went through the house and burnt up every package the nature of which they did not know. She herself had hidden some stuff she did not know what, beneath the whatnot in the parlor and had also concealed a bottle of poison in the shed. In the shed, in consequence of this statement I visited the White house the same night, and found the articles where she had hidden them. They are now in possession of the Detective Inspector."

Dr. Latimer Pickering's evidence was unimportant.

She Was On a Woodbine Car.

Street Car Conductor David Hawkins of the Woodbine route was the next witness. He swore that the prisoner got on his car on Monday night at Lee-avenue. She gave witness a quarter, and asked to be let off at Broad view-avenue. He did so and that was all he knew.

Mrs. Maggie Vaillantcourt told how Mrs. Norton had received a second threatening letter similar in character to the one already produced. She did not know what had become of it.

Detective Charles Slemin, who has charge of the case for the department, related what steps had been taken in the case. He had seen Young Arthur Hicks at the building in Sumach-street on the Wednesday following the death of James Hicks. He questioned him about the scrap that union men had poisoned Hicks, but he denied that there was any truth in it. I questioned William Cole, a plasterer with whom Hicks had made a similar statement. County Constable Hodge was with witness, and while he was talking to Cole Hodge brought me a package of powder which he had found on young Hicks. The latter went out into the shed crying and the officer followed him and asked what he was crying for. He replied because "Jim was dead." A carpenter named Charles Carpenter subsequently brought from the shed a package similar to the one found on young Hicks. He had found it in the shed. The witness then described the visit to Cole's house and his subsequent arrests.

"I then went," he continued, "to the house where Hicks lay dead. The post-mortem was in progress and I showed the doctors the packages and they told me it was 'rough-on-rats.' I sent Arthur Hicks and Cole to Wilton-avenue station, and after the post-mortem I took charge of the dead man's room. Mrs. White acted very peculiarly, following me around wherever I went. When I asked for deceased's trunk to search it she said 'I was too officious.' I made her go out of the room and from that time until her arrest I had her shadowed.

"That night of detective Watson and myself was to locate the poison. We visited every drug store in Queen-street east, finally calling in Dr. Pickering's store. Dr. Annie Pickering told us that a woman answering the description of Mrs. White had called at the store on Monday, Aug. 5, and bought a package of rough on rats. Dr. Annie Pickering then proceeded to the jail and identified the prisoner as the woman in question. We searched the White house and Mr. White told us he knew of no rough on rats being in the house. We searched the place and could not find any."

Cross-Examining the Detective.

Mr. Arthur Webb, representing Mr. Badgerow: "Did the female prisoner say anything to you about the discovery of the crime?"

The witness: "Oh, yes, she said while I was at the house that those who did the poisoning would never be discovered."

The jurors stimulated the detective to a running-fire of questions, among others as to who started the story that it was union men who had poisoned Hicks. The witness replied that it was County Constable Hodge who had informed Inspector Stark.

Constable Hodge was the next witness. He said he had asked Arthur Hicks where he was at the dinner hour on Tuesday and he refused to say anything. Mrs. White had also remarked to him at her own house that "this case would never be found out, and that it would take smarter people than they were to do it." This closed the evidence of the last witness.

It was 10:45 when the Coroner commenced his address to the jury. From the very starting point it was dead against both prisoners. He said the case had been worked up point by point until there seemed but little difficulty in the jury arriving at a conclusion. He dwelt particularly on alleged admissions made to Mrs. White by the prisoner White's daughter Polly, that lady's missing some bed her gough on rats, Mrs. Norton's suspicions by seeing Mrs. White searching the top of the cupboard in Mrs. Norton's house where the poison was kept; the same person getting off the car at Dr. Pickering's drug-store to buy rough on rats, her identification on that occasion by Detective Watson; the identification of her dresses on the occasion of her visits to town on the Monday and Tuesday, and the quarrel with her brother for having her shadowed by a detective. This last item in the evidence furnished the motive for the terrible crime. There was no doubt, so far as the evidence went, that Sarah White did not put the poison in the dinner can, unless indeed when Arthur Hicks was running in and out for beer she had the opportunity to put the poison in the can. The only way to show that Arthur Hicks [illegible] men," continued the [illegible]hard thing to con[illegible]ase she bought [illegible]she bought the [illegible]ch, which has dis-

Guilty Knowledge of the Murder.

It was 1.28 this morning when the jury notified the Coroner that they had agreed upon a verdict. The prisoners were brought in and after they took their places Coroner Johnson read the decision of the jury as follows:

That James William Hicks, on August the 7th inst., at Norfolk-avenue, in this city, came to his death by poison, to wit arsenious acid, which was by stealth put into the dinner can of the aforesaid James William Hicks, from which on the day aforesaid at the place aforesaid he did die, and that James William Hicks was feloniously, wilfully and with malice aforethought killed and murdered on the day aforesaid, and that the prisoners, Arthur Hicks and Sarah White, had a guilty knowledge of the said crime.

EDWARD BLOOR, Foreman.

At one time it looked as if there would be no agreement. One juryman held out against the verdict as rendered, and when the jurors were asked to sign he refused and was excused by the coroner.

Lawyer Holmes, representing the prisoners, notified the coroner that he would apply for bail to-day. Meanwhile the prisoners were committed on the Coroner's warrant.

The Death Roll.

Yesterday at his residence, 37 John-street, James Sydney Crocker, aged 37, the oldest insurance man in Toronto, passed away. Mr. Crocker was born in England and on coming to this country he obtained the position as manager of an English fire insurance company in Kingston. On that company retiring from business in Canada Mr. Crocker came to Toronto about 1855 and was appointed manager of the Provincial Fire and Marine Insurance Company and continued to act in that capacity until 1870, when he quitted the company. He then accepted the office of secretary to the Board of Fire Insurance Underwriters and continued in its duties until the infirmity of deafness, with which he was afflicted, necessitated his withdrawing in 1884.

Mr. Crocker was a man of clear and bright intellect, a profession at which he excelled, a position in the profession of insurance. In private life his gentlemanly and amiable address secured him a large circle of friends, who will regret the loss of so familiar a face.

Some Irish in Mrs. Dorsey.

Police Court Clerk Meyerfey had an experience yesterday with Mrs. Dorsey, the well-known colored lady of York-street. Mrs. Dorsey dropped into the Police Clerk's office to get him to help her get back her dog. Meyerfey would have nothing to do with her, and she got mad. She shook her fist in his face and would have pulled his beard had not Sergeant Detective Reburn interfered. As she sailed out under the gallant officer's escort she struck her breast and shouted out: "I cannot help gettin' angry. There is some Irish in me."

Mr. Wellington's Views.

Editor Wellington of The New York Engineering News, who was retained by the Board of Trade to consider the Esplanade question, has sent his report to Mr. R. Wilkie, chairman of the Esplanade Committee of that body. The report was read at a meeting of the committee, but at the request of Mr. Wellington it is not to be published till supplemented by drawings, which will be forwarded in a few days. Mr. Wellington advocates the building of a viaduct, it is understood.

Changes in The Queen's Own.

For a long time it has been an open secret in military circles that Col. Allan was to retire from the command of the Queen's Own. It is now stated that his successor will be gazetted either to-day or in the very near future. Col. Allan will be succeeded, it is further stated, by Senior Major R. B. Hamilton, and Junior Major Delamere will be promoted to the first majorship. Col. Allan's health has not been of the best of late, and this, in a great measure, is the cause of his retirement.

U.S. Consul Pope.

Charles R. Pope of St. Louis, the new United States consul at Toronto, is stopping at Alexandria Bay with his wife and four children. Mr. Pope went before A. B. Cornwall, notary public, on Wednesday and took the oath of office. He is not obliged to report at Toronto for a month, and during that time he will visit Montreal, New York and other places. He was in Kingston yesterday.

Try a sample package of Savona. All grocers keep it.

The Money Was Found.

John Holdsworth of Weston reported to the police on the 22nd inst. that he had been robbed of $300. A telephone message was received from Weston last night stating that the money had been found hidden under a beam in a shed. The thief had evidently placed it there for safe keeping until he could venture to use it.

THE END OF THE CARNIVAL

IT GOES OUT AMIDST A FLOW OF LAGER AND "FIZ."

The Gallant 13th Regiment of Brooklyn in the Ambitions City—They are the Heroes of the Day—A Joint Band Concert at the Armory—Finishing Touches.

HAMILTON, Aug. 23.—The great Carnival, which in point of success exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine, closed this evening amidst shouts of enthusiasm and long draughts of lager beer. "FIZ" also flowed rather freely at the various drinking founts. The Hamilton saloon-keepers never had such a harvest as they struck this week; many of the bars were in full blast day and night.

The event of the closing day of course was the visit of the gallant 13th Regiment of Brooklyn, which natty corps invaded Canada for the second time, the former occasion being twelve years ago at Montreal, when its famous chaplain, Henry Ward Beecher, accompanied it. The present visit will long be remembered by the military men of Hamilton and its citizens, and it is altogether probable that the local 13th will make a journey to the City of Churches at some future date. That is the calculation at least. The regiment arrived from Buffalo on two special trains at about 11 o'clock.

They Were Cheered by Thousands.

Thousands were at the station to welcome them. A reception committee composed of Adam Brown, M.P., Alexander McKay, M.P., Edward Mitchell and R. A. Lucas met the regiment at Merritton and C. R. Smith, secretary of the carnival committee, met the visitors at Black Rock, N.Y. A large reception committee composed of the officers of the Thirteenth Battalion of this city and other prominent citizens met the regiment at the station here and the multitude of people kept up a continual cheering until the regiment was in line ready to march. Accompanying the regiment was a large contingent of veterans with a regimental band, and the 65th, Regiment of New York, Col. Austen was in command, with S. M. Welch, jr., of the 65th Regiment, Buffalo, acting as lieut.-colonel. The veterans were in command of Major Fred Baldwin and Adjt. Coughlin.

The visitors marched to the Grand Opera House, where Mayor Doran made a speech of welcome and U.S. Consul Roberts also spoke briefly. Col. Austen replied wittily, after which a sumptuous breakfast was partaken of by all.

The Dufferin Rifles, 300 strong, arrived about 12.30 and were welcomed by the Reception Committee. Lieut.-Col. Jones was in command and they were accompanied by the band of the regiment. The signal corps, mounted on bicycles, and the ambulance corps were also with the Brantford men. The streets were thronged with people in the afternoon and it was with difficulty passage-way was made for the military procession through the principal streets. A squad of mounted police headed the procession. Then came the Hamilton Field Battery, following which were the Dufferin Rifles with their fine brass band. Next came the 69th band, their bright scarlet coats showing in marked contrast with the somber uniforms of the regiment preceding them, and the 13th Regiment marching company front at a distance of about 15 paces. The Hamilton 13th Battalion band came next with the band of the corps, followed by the 13th Battalion in red uniform and 150 British veterans wearing badges.

The cheers along the route of the procession were deafening, and the visitors from New York State received a large share of applause. Their martial bearing and splendid time were much admired by everybody, and their acknowledged superiority and steadiness in the march was manifest to all

The Two Bands Give a Concert.

This evening a joint concert by the 69th Regiment of New York and the 13th Battalion bands in the Armory was a great success. The large building was crowded to the doors by a vast concourse of people, who applauded the different pieces to the echo.

The city was beautifully illuminated and everywhere one could see Yankee and Canadian soldiers walking around arm-in-arm or forming themselves in companies and marching through the streets singing and having a good time generally.

The visitors are well pleased with their reception and are loud in their praise of the city and its residents. The Brooklyn regiment left for home at midnight. The Dufferin Rifles also returned earlier in the evening.

End of the Conventions.

The merchants' congress held their last session to-day and the attendance was good. The committee appointed to devise means of forming a business men's organization reported, and a resolution appointing Chairman John Knox, vice-chairman, Bristol; Messrs. Ballantyne, Cavanagh and Carpenter of Hamilton, Parkinson of Exeter, Scott of Woodstock and Wismiller of Kippen a committee to draft a constitution for "the Ontario Business Men's Association," that each representative present contribute $1 towards expenses of such, and that all pledge themselves to promote and further the objects of proposed association, was carried. Mr. McKechnie of Durham was also added to the committee.

A long discussion took place on the egg and butter trade. The peddler difficulty was also discussed, but lack of time cut the speeches short. Votes of thanks to Messrs. Knox, Bristol and Smith, President, Vice-President and Secretary of the association, for bringing the meeting together and for their indefatigable exertions in connection with the forming of an association, were passed before the convention adjourned.

The St. George's Union held its third and last session to-day, the officers were installed and subscriptions from affiliated societies were received showing the union to be in a flourishing condition. A vote of thanks was passed to Lewis Abraham of Washington for a paper entitled "The Victorian Age," and a similar vote was tendered C. F. Benjamin of Washington for a paper entitled "Landlord Laws." A vote of thanks was also tendered the local St. George's Society and the officers of the latter society for their kindness and hospitality.

The Foresters' Great Demonstration.

The grand procession of the above society on 26th inst. will bring thousands of strangers to the city. The business houses, hotels, street cars and all railways will be benefited by this number. Merchants are already preparing for them. The firm of W. & D. Dineen, hatters and furriers, on corner King and Yonge-streets, is hurrying on both his new stock of hats, caps and furs in order to be prepared for such a large gathering. Dineen invites all Foresters and visitors to walk through the establishment and view the new styles that will be opened up on the 26th. Special prices for quantities for those wishing to take part in the procession. Dineen wishes them a gala day.

IRELAND'S PESTILENTIAL PRISONS.

A Lively Debate in the British House of Commons—Those Who Have Been There.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—In the House of Commons this evening, on the debate on the prisons vote, an attack was made upon the treatment of Irish political prisoners. The case of Mr. Conybeare having been referred to, Mr. Balfour announced that Mr. Conybeare was now cured and the only question was as to the origin of his disease. Mr. Fadden, he said, was the previous occupant of the cell. A thorough examination revealed no trace of disease in the prison or among the prisoners. After the examination he consented to the transfer of Mr. Conybeare to another jail.

Mr. Blane gave his experience in Londonderry jail. He declared sick prisoners were never sent to the hospitals until they were nearly dying. He had seen prisoners arrive covered with vermin. The closets were filthy. He and other prisoners had been exhibited from the balcony to lady friends of officials.

Mr. Sexton violently attacked Mr. Balfour's allusion to McFadden.

Mr. Balfour said he intended no insinuation.

Mr. Sexton, continuing, described the Londonderry jail as a pest house, where prisoners contracted fever and were thrust out to die. He detailed one case of fever, amid groans from the Parnellites, who cried out, "Another murder." "There's the assassin." This incited Mr. Balfour to smile. Mr. Balfour said long familiarity with such attacks induced contempt. He then adduced statistics to show that there was a lower rate of mortality in Irish than in English prisons.

Mr. Sexton complaining of a personal attack drew an indirect rebuke from the chair on both himself and Mr. Dillon.

Mr. T. M. Healy, M.P. (Unionist), member for Tyrone, urged that a sanitary engineer be appointed to inspect the prisons.

Mr. Parnell, in the course of his speech, contended that cakum-picking was illegal work, and an endeavor was made to compensate even for this outlay by reducing the food supply. The result was the permanent enfeeblement of the prisoner. For himself he was convinced the Irish prisoners were half starved. They were, however, supplied with plenty of remunerative work and should be better fed. All the older prisons are in a bad sanitary condition. He had himself seen in the older part of Kilmainham jail in liquid sewage leaking through the foundations of the walls and bursting into the very yard. He was convinced that Derry prison required to be entirely rebuilt; otherwise its objectionable condition was irremediable. The medical officers tried to hide the fact of existence of fever under the medical name of "tuberculosis." Mr. Balfour had been guilty of culpable neglect. He was glad that Mr. Conybeare has been removed, but he would like to see how he would fare in the humbler victims of Balfour were liable to be stricken at any moment while Mr. Balfour disported himself with characteristic nonchalance. He hoped that Mr. Balfour would give some assurance that an engineer would be appointed to inspect the Irish prisons before the country. Mr. Balfour would find that his procedure would only strengthen Irishmen in their determination not to yield. Mr. Balfour did not compel his pet Balfour forgets to clean his prison cesspools as he did Fitzgibbon. The Parnellites would force this question until justice was obtained.

The prisons vote was adopted 113 to 69, and all the other votes were agreed to.

CHAT FROM THE CAPITAL.

The Governor-General to Go West—The Next Cabinet Meeting.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23.—Capt. Colville, military secretary to the Governor-General, states that their Excellencies will pass through Ottawa some day early in September for their westward trip. He does not think it likely that they will leave their car, as they certainly will only stay an hour or two. The date is not yet definitely fixed. They will return to Ottawa about Nov. 1.

It is now admitted in political circles here that Lord Stanley has made urgent representations to the Imperial authorities regarding the recent seizures in Behring Sea.

A leading official of the Fisheries Department says he feels certain that an international commission will be appointed after the expiration of the Alaska Commercial Company's contract to settle the Atlantic and Behring Sea questions. He feels confident that compensation for the late seizures will be paid the Canadian vessel owners.

All the ministers are expected to be in the Capital on Sept. 15, when a cabinet council to inaugurate the preparations for the session will be held. It is expected that parliament will meet early in October.

At length the dilemma of the complete occupation of the "Langevin Block" is solved. To-day the Postoffice Department began to move into it and will occupy the ground floor and basement. The Inland Revenue people are to move into the West Block to the late Postoffice suite and the Interior Department will take the Inland Revenue space in the East Block as well as their own.

An order for the exhumation of the body of the unknown and partly-dressed woman which was found by Thomas Osborne at the foot of Gilmour's slide last month and buried in the Hull Cemetery has been issued as the request has been exposed. Still they were, taking them all round, a success. Some of our best athletes were there, and they gave such an exhibition of brawn and muscle as is to be seen only on such special occasions in the Queen City. About 3000 spectators filled the benches, and scattered over the grounds were the members of the North American United Caledonian Association attired in Highland costume. They had assembled at an early hour in the Walker House and proceeded thence to the grounds. Toulmin's Band was engaged and combined with the pipers managed to give the Scotchmen a good program of national music. The police and other arrangements were all first-rate and very few hitches occurred during the day. The results of the various competitions are given below:

Bagpipe music, pipers in costume—1st, Robert Ireland, New York; 2nd, John Johnston, Montreal; 3d, J S Moon, Woodstock.

The tug of war between the police and a picked team did not come off, but there was a good pull between two teams taken from the force. Every week Patterson (anchor), McCrea, Macdonald, Phillips, Merton, Ross (Captain, Brackenreid), vs. Dodds (anchor), Loughead, Tipton, Hastings, Muirhead, Cusack, Cope, Gallie, Sheppard's team won. This concludes the lengthy and varied program of games and the crowd of spectators departed apparently well satisfied.

ON THE B. AND O. THIS TIME.

An Awful Collision Between Swift Moving Passenger Trains.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 23.—The fast express from New York to Cincinnati, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railway, was ordered to stop at Petroleum, and a pay car with officials going east was ordered to stop at Silver Run. Each tried to make the point of passage and collided. James Layman, engineer, Seif, engineer, and the fireman of each engine were killed. Several passengers are reported killed. All the physicians of the city have left on a special train.

PETROLEUM, W. Va., Aug. 23.—A terrible collision occurred at 11 o'clock this morning between Petroleum and Silver Run tunnel in which three men were killed and over twenty wounded. The accomodation train coming west crashed into a special train occupied by railroad magnates on a tour of inspection. The cause of the wreck is said to have been conflicting telegrams. The one received by the conductor and the engineer of the accommodation ordered them to pass the special at Petroleum, while the special train engineered by Capt. Rowland is said to have had orders to pass the accommodation at Silver Run. The trains came together with a crash at the curve west of Petroleum. Both trains were running rapidly and when they collided the special train and the engine, tender and baggage-car of the accommodation went over the cliff in one indescribable mass. James Layman, engineer of the accommodation, one of the oldest engineers of the Baltimore & Ohio road, was crushed to death. Alexander Bailey, fireman, was also crushed in the wreck of the engines. Cephas Rowland, also one of the old engineers of Parkersburg, was caught under the wreck and received injuries from which he cannot recover. John Fletcher, fireman on the special, was crushed to death. The special was occupied by officials on an inspecting tour, was smashed into smithereens. Roadmaster J. A. Hunter was badly injured, with seven others, including George Douglas. In the accommodation train were many passengers, all of whom received a terrible shaking up, and about 20 of them were more or less injured.

R. J. Malley, trackmaster of Parkersburg and a member of the City Council, was badly injured. Mr. Rose, baggage master of the accommodation, was also seriously hurt. Many of the injured passengers were hurried off on trains going east or west, and it was impossible to get their names.

What Caused The Tennessee Horror.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 23.—The coroner's jury to-day exonerated the Knoxville, Cumberland Gap and Louisville road from responsibility for yesterday's accident at Big Flat Creek. Experts are unable to explain the accident. The road bed was in perfect condition. The wheels were tested before the train started and the engineer just out of the shop. A small stone found between the plank crossing and the rail may have lifted the flange from the track, but this is considered improbable. Large crowds were on the streets, Sunday's excursion to Chattanooga being well popular. County Judge Maloney's condition has taken a turn from the worse. Of the 28 persons seriously injured a number, it is believed, will die.

A Circus Train Wrecked.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Aug. 23.—The second train of the Barnum & Bailey shows was wrecked late last night about 2½ miles east of Potsdam whilst en route on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg Railroad from Gouverneur to Montreal. A broken axle was the cause. Thirty ring horses and one of the four chariot teams, and two camels were killed. Six cars were derailed and two were telescoped so that everything in them was crushed.

The loss is in the neighborhood of $40,000. Mr. Bailey thinks the loss of the day's receipts at Montreal will be about $18,000 and some of the horses that were killed were valued at thousands of dollars each. Money cannot replace them for two years as they require that length of training before the right kind have been secured. The circus is billed for Montreal to-day and to-morrow. The number of horses killed was 24.

What the Committee of Her Friends Will Agitate For Mrs. Maybrick.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 23.—The official messenger bearing the announcement of the commutation of Mrs. Maybrick's sentence did not reach the jail until 2 o'clock this morning. The news was at once communicated to the prisoner, who betrayed some emotion, but not to the extent that was anticipated. The chaplain visited her at breakfast time. The revulsion of feeling had then prostrated her, and she seemed weaker than any time since her arrest. It is feared she will not live long in jail. Briefly, her alleged paramour, sailed for Boston on the Scythia yesterday.

The Maybrick committee have resolved to agitate for a pardon on the ground that the decision of Home Secretary Matthews shows there is a reasonable doubt whether Mr. Maybrick was poisoned.

THE SPORTING CALEDONIANS.

The Games at the Ball Grounds—A Great Program of Events.

The Caledonian games at the Baseball Grounds yesterday were hardly so well attended as might have been expected. Still they were, taking them all round, a success. Some of our best athletes were there, and they gave such an exhibition of brawn and muscle as is to be seen only on such special occasions in the Queen City. About 3000 spectators filled the benches, and scattered over the grounds were the members of the North American United Caledonian Association attired in Highland costume. They had assembled at an early hour in the Walker House and proceeded thence to the grounds. Toulmin's Band was engaged and combined with the pipers managed to give the Scotchmen a good program of national music. The police and other arrangements were all first-rate and very few hitches occurred during the day. The results of the various competitions are given below:

Boys' race, under 12 (sons of members only)—1st, Ben Cameron 2d, Hugh McLennan; 3d, Fred Adams.
