

her life by the incorruption of her body,—which, nine months after her burial, is “found intact, without the loss of even a hair from her head.”

The last chapter describes at length “the holy death of Cecile Gannendâris, a Huron woman,” with an account of her charity, piety, zeal, and other virtues.

R. G. T.

MADISON, WIS., August, 1899.

