

only in the Americas but throughout the world. The spirit of unity -- the unity of ideas and ideals -- is insolvable.

It has been said of this generation of the cold war that it moves "beyond the tower and the abyss" -- the tower being the high heights to which standards of men everywhere in the world can be raised if mankind wills to take the pathway of peace; the abyss being the bottomless depths to which mankind will fall if we fail to solve world differences by specific means and armed conflict takes place, with the arithmetic of scientific destruction being almost limitless.
