The meeting of the board of control esterday morning was a regular twenty-fourth of May celebration, only there were far more fireworks than a million small boys could ever invest their coppers in. Controllers Cameron and McBride were never in better form and even Controller Maguire warmed up at one period to the McBride standard. Owing to a visit of a class of young ladies from Branksome Hall the board was under pressure for a time, but immediately the class left the committee room the

James L. Hughes, former chief inpector of schools, has addressed an open letter to Sir William Hearst on the subject of the Toronto juvenile court. Mr. Hughes stigmatizes the court as an aggravating farce, and makes the following suggestions: That the word "court" shall not be used, in that it gives a wrong attitude of mind to judge a child; that a farm home shall be run in conjunction and that even for adult prisoners this title is more suitable than jail farm; that the judge shall be one thoroly trained in child psychology; that a lawyer is not necessary for the position, and that the appointee in any case shall not be called judge.

Further suggestions are a truancy department not in conjunction with the police; that no one connected with the police shall hold a court appointment; that as the City of Toronto pays the piper it shall be the city council who should appoint the judge and fix his salary, and that the children's court, by whatever name it may be called, shall be under the minister of education or the provincial secretary, and not under the attorney-general.
