Chief Enumerator Admits That He Expects To Have Many Appeals.

That more than twenty-four names of voters in one subdivision have been omitted, all of them being Liberals, is omitted, all of them being Liberals, is the claim made by one man who examined the voters' lists of Wards One and Two yesterday. The citizen was fairly familiar with the subdivision, and for his own information carefully checked the list, discovering that at least this number of his acquaintances had been omitted. He thought that more might be found if he had investigated a little more closely.

Three houses on College avenue, a street on which there are only five houses, were left out of the lists. If all the enumerating was done on this basis citizens interested in the matter estimate that as many as 500 votes might be left off in one subdivision.

Make Sure of it.

They point out that these cases emphasize the absolute necessity of every voter determining that his name is included in the list. More than thirty appeals to be placed on the list have already been made to S. Baker, clerk of the court of appeal, and scores of people are calling daily at the city hall where the lists for Wards One and Two can now be seen. The lists may also be seen at Hyman Hall. Appeals must be made before the 29th of the Toronto's Method.

Toronto is proceeding with the erection of a large number of houses on lots purchased by the city. Those houses are built under the direction of officers of the housing commission, the material being obtained in wholesale quantities by the city. This greatly reduces the cost and facilitates building. No difficulty is experienced in finding purchasers for the dwellings on their completion.

DOLLED UP FOR HUNT

Has Plenty of Adventures More or Less Romantic, But Ill Luck.

In spite of the artistic temperament, the Poet Bill has no objections to running the Almighty Dollar down to earth. Today his spare time is devoted to the pursuit of the Mysterious Miss Dollar. He tells of it as follows:

"What's all the fussing up for, Will?" says the old girl this morning, when she sees me divin' into a trunk lookin' for my green plaid necktie an' my dog scarf pin."

"Why," says I, "There's a mysterious ten dollar woman down in London today, an' it's up to me or some other guy or guyess to ketch her.

"I bet you don't,' says the old gir."

"I bet you'll be the surprised person when I comes home tonight wavin' that ten dollar bill,' says I. An' she agreed with me, she bet she would.

"Anyhow I got to get fixed up to look conspicuous like, if I'm goin' to solve the mystery of that Miss Dollar, so to speak. In any case I thought that like as not I'd be gettin' my pitcher taken before I got back home, an' on my way to the station I tells everybody to be watchin' the paper tonight to see me in it, for like as not the public would be wantin' to see the mug of the lucky finder of this here London Miss Dollar.

Residents of the vicinity took the number of the auto in which the party travelled, and the arrest of Chantler Monday afternoon by County Constable Byron Dawson on an assault charge resulted. Mrs. Stalford identified Chantler as her assailant, which was corresponding to where she struck the man who attacked her. Chantler denied entering the house or that he assaulted Mrs. Stalford.

However, as the complainant withdrew her charge, the county authorities were left powerless to deal with the case, and the expected interesting developments failed to manifest them-

Wilson Believes That Cost Of Living Will Be Reduced Soon As Treaty Is Ratified

U. S. President in Answer to Question From Senator Says He Has Not the Power To Declare Peace by

Washington, D.C., Aug. 21.—President Wilson has not the power to declare peace by proclamation, nor could he consent in any circumstances to take such a course prior to the ratification of a formal treaty of peace by the Senate. The president so wrote Senator Fall today in answer to one of the twenty written questions the senator presented at the White House conference Tuesday.

Replying to another question, the president said the provision of the treaty, that it should come into force after ratification by Germany and three of the principal associated powers, operated merely to establish peace between those ratifying powers, and that it was "questionable whether it can be said that the league of nations is in any true sense created by the associated government."

To Senator Falls' questions relating to the disposition of Germany's possessions, the president said the arrangement in the treaty conveyed no title to the allied or associated powers, but merely intrusts disposition of the territory concerned to their decision. "Germany's renunciation in favor of the principal allied and associated powers, is meant similarly to operate as vesting in those powers a trustee-ship with respect to their final disposition of the principal allied and associated powers, is meant similarly to operate as vesting in those powers a trustee-ship with respect to their final disposition of the principal allied and associated powers, the president continued "of her rights and titles to her overseas possessions, is meant similarly to operate as vesting in those powers a trustee-ship with respect to their final disposition of the principal allied and associated powers, the principal allied and associated powers, the principal allied and associated powers, the president value of the principal allied and associated powers, the principal allied and associated power only three of the allied and associated governments."

As to the question as to when normal conditions might be restored, the president said he could only express the confident opinion that immediate ratification of the treaty and acceptance of the covenant of the league as written would "certainly within the near future reduce the cost of living" both in this country and abroad through the restoration of production and commerce to

TRAPDOOR MYSTERY IN COUNTY BUILDING WORRIES THE SCRIBES

Quart Bottle of Whiskey Is Found Near Seat of Mighty.

BUT IT'S A DEAD ONE

But Who Cached the Pilgrim From Walkerville in Such a Spot?

When the phrase, "bearding the lion in "There has been a provisional agreement as to the disposition of these overseas possessions, whose confirmation and execution is dependent upon the approval of the league of nations, and the United States is a party to that provisional agreement his den," was coined, it was never meant to be applied locally. However, the fact remains that in the petty assize court room at the County Buildings here, where Squire W. Chittick dispenses justice, there is a small trapdoor in the floor, and when this door was stealthily lifted by local newspapermen this morn ing they made a startling discovery. L and behold, comfortably ensconsed be neath a friendly steam pine an empty quart whiskey bottle was seen, bearing slight evidence of rough usage. When first viewed by the scribes, there was a suffering of palpitation of the heart as the probable contents of the find were conjured in youthful minds. However, after a reporter expectantly placed an ear to the chest of the Walker ville native, it was pronounced dead, and an inquest was immediately or-lered. Beside the dead soldier lay an old black shoe, and the remnant of a county court cigar.

The trap door is situated directly in front of Squire Chittick's desk, between it and the prisoner's box, and the news hunters entertain suspicions as to the dentity of the former owner who interned the nose paint. The cigar end, and old shoe have furnished clues, but of what use are clues when the supply of kill joy has vanished? When the jury view the remains and bring in a verdict they will likely hold the plumbers who installed the heating pipes culpable, but steamfitters do no smoke cigars while on duty, nor do they wear shoes of the vintage cap-tured with the other booty. The empty bottle still reposes in the vaults 'neath the floor of justice, consigned to conse-crated ground by the brains of the staff, after which with measured and
