In these very strenuous times we realize that it is most important, in fact absolutely necessary, to keep down one's profits to the very lowest point, thereby increasing one's toll on a closer margin.

We are, therefore, featuring a heavy winter overcoat, price $30. This overcoat is lined with heavy Beatrice twill, black silk velvet collar and finished in black way in keeping with the Score's standard.

A VERY small yield considering the size of the bush. It takes about 6 1/2 bushes to yield a pound of ordinary tea—and about 10 bushes to yield a pound of Red Rose Tea, as only the tender shoots and buds are used to produce the distinctive flavor and richness which characterize this high-grade tea.

In sealed packages only. Try it.

World Needs New Conscience to Prevent Recurrence of War

"The best of our manhood is suffering and dying today that right, outraged by a country insane with ambition, may be avenged, and that our contributions to civilization may be preserved. While they are engaged in so noble a work, we in the rear have a mission to fulfil, and that is to give the world a new conscience so that the recurrence of such a ghastly tragedy may be spared the coming generation," said Rev. Dr. A. E. Ribourg in his sermon last evening at St. Alban's Cathedral.

"We Christian people of the 20th century, as the prophets apostles and martyrs of old, must infuse the old but ever new ideals of Jesus Christ in the hearts of men in the colleges, the shops, the department stores and the parlours of nations," he said.

If the world was to advance, the doctor said, new and better ideals of private and political honesty, of commercial integrity, of national honor and international integrity would have to be grafted on modern society. The Cain spirit would continue as long as selfishness, heartless competition, jealousy and conceit were allowed to flourish.

SCOTTISH NURSES IN WAR HOSPITALS

Kathleen Burke Speaks of Their Doings in France and the Balkans.

Canadians Must Not Cease to Help Red Cross in Its Work.

Forgetful of self and inspired with the greatness of the message she had to impart, Miss Kathleen Burke held the attention of the gathering at Convalescent Hall on Saturday evening, when she related to them the story of the work of the Scottish Women's Hospitals.

The speaker of the evening was in- vited by Kenneth Dunstan, president of the Red Cross, who in his opening address detailed the work and needs of the Canadian Red Cross.

R. N. Rowell followed, describing the hospital work he had seen during his late trip to the front. One in particular in which a number of colonial- ists—Singapore troops—and the black- est men he had ever seen, were nursed by the women of the Scottish Hos- pitals. Miss Burke, far and away, was the first woman to reach Verdun since the exodus, and he had been the first English-speaking man she had met on her return.

Miss Burke introduced herself as one of 800 girls of the Scottish Women's Hospital, an organization always proud to work with the Red Cross. They had been organized when the members of the National Union of Women's Suffrage had offered them- selves to the government to work in any way that might be appointed, and they had been told to work along the lines they had adopted. Four hospitals had been maintained in Serbia during the typhoid epidemic, and the services of the women had been so efficient that the mortality was reduced from 85 per cent. to 12. The nurses had also worked in the Balkans. On one occasion 5000 Serbians had passed their hands in one week. A fifth unit had got as far as Salonica, America had sent $44,000 to establish a hospital to assist the cause. Miss Burke spoke enthusiastically of the spirit of the Serbians, declaring "Ser- bia shall be reinstated."

Canada Generous. In closing, Miss Burke told of the white road to Verdun, which has 15,000 cars serving, one of which passes every twelve seconds. She also spoke of many French generals she had met and told that General Joffre got his name "the father of the French army" when four young aviators came to see him before setting out, and he, looking at them, opened his arms and said, "when did sons leave their fathers without kissing him?" The underground city of Verdun, where everything even to moving picture theatres is established for the soldiers' comfort was described.
