OHIO PRESERVES GAME RESOURCES

Interesting visitors to the city yesterday were J. W. Stuber, assistant to the chief of the Ohio Fish and Game Bureau, and M. E. Kempf of Sydney, Ohio, a veteran sportsman. These gentlemen are on their way to Nova Scotia to look for big game and incidentally Mr. Stuber is seeking information regarding the working of game laws and the introduction of measures looking to the conservation of game. Mr. Stuber works under the state department of agriculture and Ohio has a wonderfully developed system of game preservation involving the patrolling of the entire state by an efficient staff of game wardens, equipped with motor cycles or automobiles. These men are of a superior class, well paid and must qualify by examination for their work. They are not merely preventive officers but take part in a state-wide educational campaign for the conservation of game, addressing public meetings and inspiring the people generally to look upon hunting only from the sportsman-like standpoint.

Ohio has big game but is seeking to protect and restore her inland fisheries and bird shooting preserves. The shooting of quail is now prohibited and the authorities are now seeking to introduce the English pheasant on a large scale and have had very good success. Mr. Stuber says that the pheasants are bred out this spring all over the state. In addition 600 eggs went to each county of the state. Fifty game sanctuaries have been set apart where the birds are unmolested and it is intended that the overflow from these sanctuaries will soon stock the woods of the state with fine birds. There is only a ten-day open season, from November 15 to November 25 and only cock birds may be shot. A serious effort is also being made to restock the Ohio woods with the wild turkey.

The state department is also stocking the inland waters with game fish and this year took from Lake Erie 167,000 mature fish and placed them in the inland lakes and streams. This in addition to the larger work from the hatcheries which are turning out some 2,000,000 fish every year.

Mr. Stuber is very enthusiastic as to the results from the working of the migratory birds convention between the United States and Canada. As a federal deputy game warden he has assisted in the enforcement of the provisions of this treaty and he says he has just come from the Lake Erie marshes where he has observed the practical results from the act in the greatly increased numbers of wild duck which have returned from the nesting grounds in the northern Canadian waters. The protection of these birds in the nesting season in both countries, he believes, will mean a great increase in these varieties.

Mr. Stuber says that the Canadian provinces have not fallen into the same mistake as did the states of the union but have begun in time to protect game and that the restoration of game does not constitute the same problem in Canada. He is very enthusiastic as to the possibilities of introducing the English pheasant in large numbers in North America and believes that as a very hardy bird it would find the New Brunswick climate most suitable.

URGE CAMPAIGN TO CHRISTIANIZE JEWS

New York, Sept. 27.—Christianization of the Jews of the United States as part of a $1,000,000 Americanization programme planned by the Episcopal Board for Missions, was advocated here today at a board conference.

Suggestion by Bishop Rogers Israel of the Erie, Penn., diocese that any action along these lines should be deferred until after the Episcopal General Conference at Detroit in October, brought prompt answer from Rev. John I. Zacker superintendent of Jewish work for the diocese of Philadelphia that if the Jew was left out of the programme for only a short time it would be a failure.

"The Jews control the world," said Mr. Zacker, "and if Christianity is to convert the Jews it must be attempted at once."

Bishop Thomas J. Garland of the Philadelphia diocese asserted that the Americanization of the Jews had become secondary to the Christianization of them.

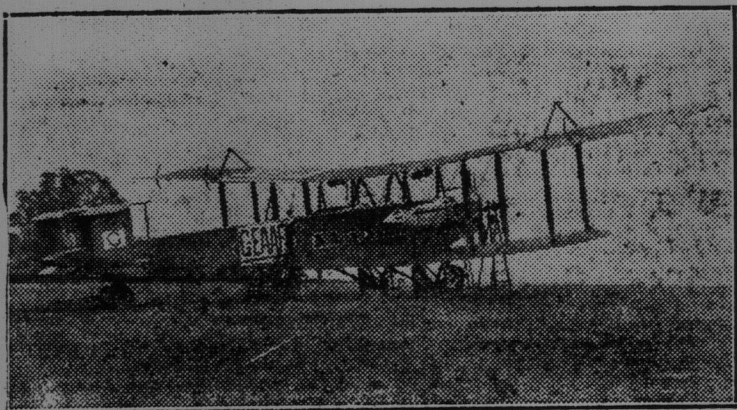

"Eighty per cent. of the American Jews," he added, "have lost interest in their own religion and are rapidly becoming atheists."

Oldest Wine in the World

Shortly before his abdication King Ludwig, of Bavaria, presented to the wine museum at Speyer several bottles of wine dating from 1540, 1683 and 1822.

The museum contains a bottle dating from the days of Rome, found in a Roman grave, believed to be the oldest bottle of wine in the world.

Fewer Tire Bills

When you buy tires, you buy mileage. You want to travel as many miles as possible on those tires.

You can buy mileage in small quantities—in low-mileage tires at low prices.

Or you can buy it in big quantities—wholesale quantities—as in Goodyear Cord Tires.

And in Goodyear Cords you really get mileage at wholesale price.

You pay more in the first place, but you get a much larger quantity of mileage.

You pay a higher price, but you pay it less often.

You can test this among your friends.

Ask the Goodyear Cord Tire user how often he buys tires.

Ask the low-priced tire user the same question.

You will probably find that one man is buying one Goodyear Cord Tire at, say, $58.00 while the other man is buying three tires at $30.00 or more.

The Goodyear Service Station Dealer will tell you of other just such cases when you ask him about tires. (Ask him about the Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tube—a better, thicker tube, very much worth its extra price.)

PLAN PAY INCREASE FOR BAPTIST CLERGY

Many Now in Debt, Says Dr. McAlpine — "Lord Will Provide" Attitude Forced by Poverty

New York, Sept. 27.—Poorly paid Baptist ministers who have been compelled to spend their life savings to pay necessities or forced to go into debt for them in the hope that "the Lord will provide," were given a message of cheer today by Rev. Dr. Charles A. McAlpine of the National Committee of Northern Baptist Laymen when he announced that the General Board of Promotion had taken steps to increase their pay. Dr. McAlpine contends that the salary of every Baptist pastor who receives less than $2,000 a year should be raised 50 per cent.

Many churches in various sections of the country are without pastors, he pointed out, because of the shortage of ministers.

Dr. McAlpine, who recently expressed the opinion that unless the salaries of clergymen were raised he would not blame them for organizing a union and calling a country-wide strike, said that it had "been officially brought to the attention of the board of promotion that ministers are not so easy to produce as before the war," because their "low salaries" have forced them to seek out occupations.

"It is with regret that I admit many pastors today are in debt," said Dr. McAlpine. "They are honest and mean to pay their bills, but have been led into charging things in the hope that the Lord will provide."

ANCIENT AZTECS WERE SKILLED DENTISTS; WORE GEMS IN THEIR TEETH

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Lady Thackeray, a high-caste Hindu woman, who on her recent visit to the United States created a sensation by wearing a $6,000 diamond set in the side of her nose, had nothing on ancient Aztec dandies in Mexico.

An antiquarian recently has discovered that the Aztecs had perfected dentistry long before Cortez conquered Mexico and the fashionable men of Montezuma's days not only had their dental cavities filled with gold, but wore in holes drilled in their front teeth sapphires, garnets, opals and other gems indigenous to the country.

The dentistry work of these ancient aboriginal people, shut off from the civilization of the eastern world across the sea, is still to be seen in the mummies and skulls that have been preserved from that far off time. It is said to show as great and meticulous skill as that of the modern dentist. Their records even prove that they used coca, from which coca is extracted, as a local anaesthetic.

The work of their gemsmiths, on the other hand, was inferior to that on today. The native American gems they wore are still fashionable among modern men and women and under modern methods of cutting and polishing have acquired a beauty and brilliancy of which the Aztecs never dreamed.
