FIRST EDITION. KIDNAPPED HIS OWN CHILD

GUY G. GOWELL TAKES HIS SON FROM HIS MOTHER.

Sensational Episode in Maplewood Which Causes Great Excitement Through the Maritime Provinces and Fashions Charged with Cruelty. (Boston Herald.)

Mrs. Guy G. Gowell, her mother and two children have lived in a double house on Queen street, Maplewood, for about twenty years. The mother, a well-dressed woman about 30 years of age, never has been married. Her husband was a man of the name of Gowell, who she married when she was a young girl. He died some time ago, and she has since been living alone. She has a son named Guy, who is now about 11 years of age. The mother has been very kind to her son, and he has been very obedient to her. She has always been very kind to her mother, and she has always been very kind to her mother.

On the 11th of October a fine looking white horse, harnessed to a new looking top buggy, drove up to the house occupied by Mrs. Gowell. The driver, a well-dressed man about 30 years of age, never has been married. He was wearing a dark suit and a top hat. He was driving a white horse, and he was driving a new looking top buggy. He was driving a white horse, and he was driving a new looking top buggy.

Mrs. Gowell's mother, having in mind certain things she had said to her, refused to do so. But she insisted that she would do so. She insisted that she would do so. She insisted that she would do so. She insisted that she would do so. She insisted that she would do so.

FIRST EDITION. MURDERED INNOCENTS.

FURTHER LIGHT UPON THE CASE OF THE BELLAMY MURDER.

Evidence of the Inquest—Larocque's Movements on the Fatal Day—In Jail at Montreal. The Toronto Globe says the case of Narcisse Larocque, charged with the outrage and murder of the two young school girls in some respects parallel the trial of the Bellamy case. The most important evidence is forthcoming to show that Narcisse Larocque was seen near the scene at the time in question. Then he is seen looking for a while and is next seen in the vicinity of the house where the outrage took place. The question of time, of the road taken and of identification arise just as in the Bellamy case. The most important witness is unfortunately a half-witted man, aged 30, named Benjamin Harwood, but he is not a bad witness, because he tells the same story now as he did at first, and the people say he is never known to have lied. He was seen yesterday, particularly strong, for he was not allowed the first day to tell his story. He declared that the man he saw walking with the two girls when near the fatal house was the prisoner. "Can you describe any of that?" asked the Crown attorney.

Ben burst into a laugh at what he thought was a jest, and he replied: "Why don't I know him well?" Ben was after the cattle in the pasture that afternoon, and the man he saw could see clear up to the entrance into the bush from the road. Further on the road, the man he saw was walking faster than the girls, who were then 150 yards ahead of Larocque. At that point he saw the girls, and he caught up to them, when he knew that the girls were in danger. He saw Benjamin Harwood's eyes light up, and he saw Benjamin Harwood's eyes light up. He saw Benjamin Harwood's eyes light up, and he saw Benjamin Harwood's eyes light up.

From the time the girls entered the bush till Larocque arrived, according to the man's own statement, he was walking faster than the girls, who were then 150 yards ahead of Larocque. At that point he saw the girls, and he caught up to them, when he knew that the girls were in danger. He saw Benjamin Harwood's eyes light up, and he saw Benjamin Harwood's eyes light up.
