AGRICULTURE

Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY.

Cleanings of Interest for Our Country Readers.

Poor stock never pays. A warm bed saves food. Breed for what you want. Get ready for early lams. A dirty pen favors the pork. There is economy in the best. Experiment on a small scale. Are your tools ready for work? Supply your household first. The best is usually the cheapest. Are you ready for sugar making? Keep your horse's legs clean. Select all kinds of seeds carefully. Much corn is too heating for sheep. Give the chicks plenty of sunlight. Grow your hog before you fatten it. An excited cow never does her best. A worn out mare is a poor breeder. Greenwax can be plowed quite wet. Try to always have something to sell. The well-fed lamb has a well-fed dam. Make every acre count for production. Good drainage is always an advantage. There is always a demand for the best. Good management is better than luck. Do your planting before the hay starts. The breed largely determines the farm. The wise man learns from his mistakes. Keep poultry and animals free from lice. Guard against short pastures in summer. Let the pigs have all the salt they want. March is a bad month for young animals. Small flocks do best; there is less crowding. There is no economy in unsatisfied hunger. Plow shallow in the orchard and fertile well. Plowing under clover saves hauling manure. Fright causes a rapid deterioration of tissue. Fowls need meat and other nitrogenous food. There is profit in good stock properly kept. The male is the type of what you breed from. "Blood will tell"—especially if it is bad blood. Well-cared clover hay is relished by sheep. It does not pay to scatter manure too thinly. Look sharp for insects on your house plants. Rich food makes rich manure, and vice versa. Under proper conditions, poultry raising is easy. Full and steady food produces the best results. Let us have more intelligence in road making. Dry earth makes the warmest bed for animals. Avoid mistakes by learning from those of others. Young turkeys for laying; old ones for breeding. Ground bone is a good but slow operating fertilizer. A close weeder is likely to be a careful cultivator. It is not the looks but the blood that you breed from. Get your team fed and harnessed for the spring work. The pig always responds quickly to good food and care. They only such foods as are rich in fertilizing materials. In the moral scale, the motive counts more than the fact. Test the germinating quality of your seed before planting. It is generally best to compact the soil around the seed. The first crop is often about as profitable as the live in a house made of a dry goods box, and will prove as profitable in eggs, in proportion to their cost, as the larger fowls. The prettiest Bantams are the Games, but many admire the Sebrights and Black Africans. Dominiques and Plymouth Rocks. The Dominique is very much like the Plymouth Rock to the novice. The Dominique is smaller, is not so clear in color, is more active and has a rose comb. Otherwise they greatly resemble each other, but the single comb of the Plymouth Rock at once shows distinction. Both breeds are very hardy. Sunflower seeds. This is an excellent time for feeding the sunflower seed to laying hens. It is excellent food for them, if given as a change twice or three times a week. The seeds assist in regulating the digestion, preventing constipation and serving the same office as linseed meal when used as a food for stock. If you are troubled with hawking and cutting, dull headaches, boring sores of taste or smell you are afflicted with catarrh, and to prevent it developing into consumption, Nasal Balm should be used promptly. There is no case of catarrh which it will not cure and for cold in the head it gives immediate relief. Try it. Sold by all dealers.

ANECDOTES, HAPPENINGS AND GENERAL COMMENTS

Clipped and Condensed for the Readers of The Globe.

Mr. Glorieux has introduced into the New Jersey Senate a bill making it lawful for passengers on street cars to refuse to pay any fare until provided with seats.

There is an interesting outline portrait of the new Khedive—Slight figure, large gentle eyes, a face almost feminine delicacy of feature, and thick chestnut hair.

A terrific gale has been raging in the north and west of Portugal. Several men-of-war in the Tagus have been sent adrift. The damage done by the storm is estimated at $800,000.

Captain Kennedy of the steamer 'Germanic,' having become blind, is incapacitated for service, and New Yorkers who have travelled with him are making up a good round sum to support him.

Somebody sent a letter to Tom Reed the other day asking his autograph and proposing the question: "What is a statesman?" "A statesman," wrote the ex-Speaker in reply, "is a successful politician—who is dead."

A curious item in the cargo of one of the English steamers that lately sailed from Portland was a large quantity of immense bird's-eye and rock-maple logs which are to be worked up into fancy furniture in the old country.

Mr. John H. Quinby, cashier of the Belfast Savings Bank, had a birthday recently. On being asked his age, he replied: "The first figure is twice as much as the second, the two added together is three times as much as the last." It was sixty-three.

During the singing of a hymn in the Evangelical church at Logan, Pa., on Wednesday night, Rev. John Heller, the local preacher, inclined his head as if in prayer and breathed his last. Heart disease was the cause of death. He was eighty-seven years old.

Dr. C. D. Stuel, says in the Stockman's regards the science of caring for their livestock and their feeding. The best feeders of Canada always divide their flocks of fattening sheep or lambs into lots of from ten to twenty, each, and the best breeders of sheep rarely ever put to exceed twenty ewes together in a pen. Very few American farmers think it worth their while to do so, and yet every flock-master of experience knows that sheep do far better in small lots.

His says: "Canada lambs as a rule always have commanded a higher price in the general market than American lambs until American feeds became more prevalent in the last few months. It is true the sheep of Canada are of a better mutton type than ours. But breeding ewes will not make high-priced mutton. Scientific feeding puts the finish on it."

Don't be in a hurry to get rid of a good breeding ewe. Some have a rule not to remove any ewe beyond five years of age. But many ewes are at their best then, and even later. If the ewe is a good mother, drops twins, has a capacious and sound udder, is a good milker and raises her lambs well, she would not dispose of her were she ten years old. A ewe that raises twins produces a great percentage of profit. Old sheep, if healthy, are readily fattened by grinding the grain feed for them.

There is a curious diversity of taste among smokers to say the kind of pipe they prefer. Some like the clay pipe which they use for the briar root, others again the meerschaum, some must have their pipe well seasoned before they can enjoy it. Others again must have a new pipe and throw it away whenever it becomes a little old. But through this diversity among them is curious it is not at all curious that there is substantial unanimity among them about the kind of tobacco to be used. Experience has proved to them the 'Myrtle Navy' brand of Messrs. Tuckett & Son is the genuine article.

Lives on the Water. In Japan thousands are born and die on boats without ever living on shore. One of the most interesting features of Japanese life is the manner in which boats and junk, thousands of which frequent every bay along the coast. The awkward junks always belong to the members of one family, and usually every member of the family, old and young, lives on board. The smaller sailboats are very narrow, and the sail (they never have but one) is placed very near the stern, and extends from the mast about the same distance in either direction.

In these boats men and women are born and die without ever having an alighting place on shore. They wear but few clothes, except in rains, when they put on layers of fringed straw mats, which give them the appearance of being thatched. At night, if in harbor, they bend poles over the boat from side to side, in the shape of a bow, cover them with this straw and go to sleep together like a lot of pigs.

A child three years old can swim like a fish; and often children who will not learn of their own accord are repeatedly thrown overboard until they become expert swimmers. The barker children seem to be perpetually tumbling overboard, and the mothers deliberately pick them out of the water, and, cuffing them a little, go on with their work. It is really astonishing at what age these boys and girls will learn to swim. A boat twenty feet long most admirably managed by three children, all under seven years of age, is no uncommon sight.

Notwithstanding their aptness at swimming, many boatmen get drowned, for no boat goes to another's aid, nor will any boatman save another from drowning, because, as he says, it is all fate, and he who interferes with fate will be severely punished in some way.

ADVERTISE IN THIS PAPER

JINGLES OF MEMOIR.

A Little Nonsense Gathered for Leisure Moments.

Johnny, said the elder little brother, you must be sure not to ask for any of the wild duck wine.

Why? Because I heard father talk the company that they would have a little game with a limit to it.

Lionel—I say, Algy, wobbles broke into Arby Fitzsimons' house last night, but owing to Arby's presence of mind, don't you know, they didn't molest a thing in the house.

Algy—Aw—how did he get wild of them? Lionel—He gave them an order on the safety company for the plate and jewelry—wasn't it splendid?

School Teacher—Bobby, you may define profit? Bobby—(whose father is a druggist)—Four hundred per cent.

Mamma (with some show of indignation)—I have called you three times. I am very much annoyed.

Charlie (who is very fond of Bible stories)—Well, the Lord called Samuel three times, and he didn't get mad about it, did he?

Bloody—Say, now you've got out of 'de scrape, tell me, honest, did yer really steal der money?

Cuffy (ex-prosecutor)—I dunno! Whatcher givin' us!

No, honest! Before my lawyer began ter talk ter der jury I t'ought I did der job, but 'en he got t'rough I was sure I was der victim uv a horrible conspiracy.

Youngman—I'm just starting in business, Mr. Bentham, and I've come to you for some advice on how to get along.

Bentham—I am scarcely the man to give you any advice. I'm now in debt to the extent of $60,000.

I know that, and what I want to know is how that I can get that much credit!

Little Oozy, hearing his parents speak of Bentham, asked: Mamma, who is Bentham?

A compeer, replied his mother. And what is a compeer?

A man who makes mums.

The next morning an organ grinder struck up in the street.

Mamma, exclaimed Oozy eagerly, there is something in that, and what I want to know is how that I can get that much credit!

Papa, what an awful long vacation that man must have been taking.

Finney—Now then, one at a time—hurry up, if you want to get out alive!

Mr. Bentham—Save the cook first—we may never be able to get another one.

BOUND AND BURIED. Fate of a Colored Wretch at Texarkana, Ark.

Ed Coy (colored) of Texarkana, Ark., was tied to a tree and burned to death last Saturday. He originally assaulted Mrs. Henry Jewell, the young wife of a respectable farmer, but succeeded for a short time in eluding the officers. He was discovered at the home of Ed Cain (colored). He had a mistress there who gave him away. The posse had captured two Coy's when he was harbored by Cain and twice that Coy was being taken up a rope around the latter's neck to make him give information.

Coy's mistress went to the house of a white neighbor, A. B. Scott, and told him that Coy was at the house of Cain. Scott at once sent a message to town and a posse immediately went out to arrest the negro. Meantime, Coy had left Cain's house, but was apprehended and taken in charge by Mr. Scott and two sons and held until the arrival of the posse.

The prisoner was taken in a carriage to the Jewell farm, where Mrs. Jewell identified him beyond all doubt as the man who outraged her. The trembling wretch was then returned to town, placed in a room with a number of guards and a heavy guard also placed outside the building.

All the members that were returned by the Jewell farm, where Mrs. Jewell identified him beyond all doubt as the man who outraged her. The trembling wretch was then returned to town, placed in a room with a number of guards and a heavy guard also placed outside the building.

Coy was manacled to this point, but when the crowd saw the rope, there were cries of—"Away with the rope; hanging is too good for him; burn him, burn him!"

This shout went up from 5,000 throats. The leaders saw the futility of opposing the mob's wishes, but begged that the deed should take place out of town. To this the crowd agreed. Coy was hurried out to a beautiful grass plot, where stands one tree, 18 inches in diameter and broken off at the top. One man who still favored hanging began climbing the tree. In a flash a score of Winchester rifles were leveled at his head, and he was glad to descend.

Coy was strapped to the body of a tree with iron fastenings, and coal oil was poured over his entire person in liberal quantities. There was a moment's silence, and then another shout: let Mrs. Jewell set him off!

The women emerged from the crowd bearing upon the arms of male relatives. She walked forward to where the negro stood pinioned, struck a parrot match, and with perfect deliberation fired the negro's clothes in two places. It is a second the poor wretch was one mass of consuming flames, but his wonderful nerve never forsok him, and, while suffering the tortures of the fire, he called to the men to move back so the ladies could see.

Coy made but little noise, except to groan and grunt, but died in about twenty minutes after the application of the torch.

A few minutes before he was taken out to meet his horrible death, he was seen by a reporter to whom he professed his innocence.

Diaper—if the coat fits you put it on, must as Americanize.

Fig—Why? Diaper—it certainly wouldn't have any application to an English made coat.
