IMPRESSIVE ADDRESS TO ARTILLERY

Annual church parade of local regiment—Chaplain urges fidelity to trust.

The annual church parade of the 3rd Regiment, Canadian Artillery, took place Sunday morning. Headed by the Regimental Band, and under the command of Col. B. R. Armstrong, the regiment marched from the Armory by way of Broad, Charlotte, Union and Waterloo streets to St. Mary's church. Wearing their white helmets and blue uniforms with red trimmings, the men presented a fine appearance, and many admiring comments were made by the spectators who lined the sidewalks along the route of march. Many of those who watched the parade said it was one of the best military parades they had seen in St. John for years, and established a standard for the 3rd Regiment which will be difficult to live up to in future.

The Service.

Entering St. Mary's church the officers and men of the regiment took pews which had been reserved for them. Divine service was conducted by Ven. Archdeacon Raymond, the chaplain of the regiment. An interesting feature of the service was the fact that the Regimental Band under the leadership of Chas. Williams, played in the church accompanying the singing of some of the hymns.

Dr. Raymond also preached the sermon, taking in his text, 1st Timothy VI-2: "Keep that which is committed to thy trust." And also Proverbs IV-23: "Keep thy heart above all that thou guardest, for out of it are the issues of life."

After a word of cordial welcome to his comrades of the regiment the chaplain explained in lucid manner the place of the citizen soldier in the life of a nation. Our motto is "de-fence and not offence." Righteousness must have power to maintain the liberty of its subjects, and if necessary to repel the invader from its soil.

From the day that Captain John Colville's company of volunteer artillery was organized in 1793 this corps has had a continuous existence of more than 120 years. From time to time some of St. John's best citizens have held commissions as officers of the regiment or served in its ranks. The traditions of the past are of high honor and are worthy of emulation by every member today.

The city in which we dwell was founded by men who contended for a united British Empire. Their cause did not succeed in the way that they wished, but it led to the founding of the Canadian Dominion. The same spirit in later time sent Canadian soldiers to South Africa and made Canada a partner in the work of empire building.

The moral effect on the world of the spectacle of Great Britain's battleships, and her great self-governing colonies is beyond computation. In a sense it had its birth in the throes of the sad struggle on South African battlefields. Some thousands of our young Canadians, and among them the commander of this regiment, went forth in 1899 to aid the mother country in maintaining British liberty in South Africa, bearing with them over the sea and over the veldt the message to our kindred that, whether north or south of the equator, the Northern Sea, in the hour of need heart answers heart in Britain's realms throughout the world.

The preacher then proceeded to the more special consideration of his text: "Keep that which is committed to thy trust." He instanced the conduct of Havelock at Lucknow, of Gordon at Khartoum, of Sir George White at Ladysmith, as noble examples of fidelity to trust. He exhorted the men before him to do their duty if ever they were called upon in a righteous cause. But he trusted they would never see the day that such necessity should arise.

But there were other trusts to keep, and while every soldier should strive to keep his country secure, he should also strive manfully to keep his soul from sin. The man who is brave in his country's cause may not be brave enough to fight manfully against sin, the world, the flesh and the devil. He may not be a faithful soldier of the King of Kings. After pressing the application of his text very forcibly in conclusion the preacher made an earnest appeal for Christian manliness. "Your trust," he said, may be nothing more than "an honest name, a clean life, the spirit of brotherly kindness—keep that which is committed to thy trust." As General Gordon paced the walls of Khartoum keeping watch against lurking foes and dangers unseen, keep thy heart above all that thou guardest, for out of it are the issues of life.

Praises Men.

After the service the regiment reformed and paraded back to the Armory. They were then disbanded and they were addressed by the commanding officer, Col. Armstrong, who complimented the officers and men on the large turnout, and their fine appearance, giving special praise to the officers and men of No. 2 company. Col. Armstrong then presented a long service medal to Sergt-Major Lamb of No. 1 company.

The inspection of the regiment, which was scheduled to take place on the 6th and 7th of July, has been postponed till the 13th and 14th.

Good Effects of Col. Hughes' Order.

Very Apparent

At No. 2 clearing hospital every thing goes on quietly and only a very few cases in proportion to the number of the men in camp are brought in for treatment. In this connection one of the officers in charge spoke as follows: "I cannot speak too highly of the order of Col. Sam Hughes regarding the issue in militia camps; we are perhaps in a position to see how it works out better than most of the corps, and its result is that we have fewer cases to deal with from accidents and also

LAWRENCE HODGINS DROWNED; HIS SISTER'S GREENELETT

Six year old stepson of Harry Short, 281 Brussels Street, loses life in Leonard's Creek—Peter Tetonskey a hero.

Leonard's Creek, a small tributary of the Marsh Creek at Courtenay Bay, was the scene of a sad and fatal accident on Saturday afternoon when Lawrence Hodgins, the six year old stepson of Harry Short of 281 Brussels street, was drowned. It nearly resulted in a double tragedy when the little fellow's half sister, Nellie Short, aged twelve years, attempted to rescue her brother and was only saved by the gallant act of a foreigner, named Peter Tetonskey.

The Hodgins boy with his sister was playing about the edge of the creek when about 1:30 o'clock the little fellow decided to go in bathing. He undressed and waded into the water and had been in but a few minutes when he went beyond the depth and could not get back to firm footing again. His cry for help brought the little girl to his rescue. Without a thought about the danger and the risk to her own life brave Nellie Short jumped into the water in an endeavor to save her little brother.

The boy came to the surface a couple of times, all the while vainly struggling to reach the shore. Screaming for help he finally sank to his death. The girl could not swim and her death also seemed certain, she also screamed for assistance and just as the waters of the creek enveloped her and she was sinking to the bottom Peter Tetonskey having heard her screams arrived on the scene and without waiting an instant jumped into the water and with his clothes on and managed to grasp the little body and bring it safely to the shore.

By this time the little girl was unconscious and was very nearly drowned. A number of persons on the Marsh bridge, near the scene of the accident, rushed to the spot and Dr. George O. Baxter was summoned and, after rendering first aid, had the little girl revived and sent to the General Hospital where she fully recovered.

A number of men in the meantime strove to recover the body of the Hodgins boy and some of the young men dove repeatedly in an endeavor to get the remains which were in about six feet of water. They were not successful. With these were diving others were getting grappling irons in use. Finally George Addison procured a long pole and feeling about the bottom of the creek managed to locate the body and raised it to the surface where it was grasped by those in a boat and brought to shore.

Coroner W. F. Roberts was summoned and after viewing the remains gave permission for their removal to the bereaved home at 281 Brussels street.

The boy, while in life, was a general favorite with all who knew him and there is general sympathy extended to the bereaved family.

The gallant attempt at rescue by Nellie Short, who nearly lost her life in trying to save that of her brother, was indeed a noble one, while the quick and heroic manner in which Peter Tetonskey dove into the water and with his clothes on and managed to

TWO THEMES NOW IN CELLS; HAS A RECORD

William Foley and Arthur Stevenson charged with breaking, entering and stealing—Good detective work.

Quick and clever work by Detective Patrick Killen was the result of two young men being placed behind the bars of the central police station yesterday on suspicion of having been guilty of breaking, entering and stealing. The prisoners are William Foley, aged 24 years, and a ticket of leave man from Dorchester penitentiary, and Arthur Stevenson, aged 18.

On or about Sunday, June 21st the axe factory of Campbell Brothers on Smythe street was broken into and three broad axes were stolen. The matter was reported to the Chief of Police and Detective Killen was put on the case. The detective worked hard and finally located the stolen axes with a man named Greer in the North End, who claimed to have purchased them from William Foley. He was then up to the office to locate Foley but the latter kept well out of the detective's way. Policeman Hickey who is on the Pond street beat was told by the detective to look out for Foley, a description of the man being given him, and yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock Officer Hickey saw Foley on the street and placed him under arrest.

Foley, although only 24 years of age has been in prison. When at the age of 22 years he was arrested on July 2nd, 1912, on the charge of breaking into a car which was parked on P. St. yard off Mill street and stealing a quantity of liquor, the property of the C. P. R. He was taken before Magistrate Ritchie and on July 15th was sent up for trial. On July 22nd he took the speedy trials and pleaded guilty to Judge Forbes who sentenced him to go on suspended sentence with the understanding that he get out of the city within two days, and to stay out of the city for two years, and if he should return before that time he would be sent to Dorchester penitentiary for a term of five years.

Foley did not go out of the city, or if he did he did not stay long for in less than two weeks later he was arrested on the charge of being drunk and fighting. On the order of Judge Forbes Foley was taken before him and was then sent to Dorchester for the five year term.

Foley, however, did not put in the full period as a short time ago he was allowed out as a ticket of leave man but he could not keep out of trouble and is back again.

Last evening about seven o'clock Walter H. Bell, the manager of the creamery on King street, discovered that his place had been broken into from the rear, the cash drawer had been rifled and the sum of $35 had been stolen. This case was also placed in the hands of Detective Killen and last night about eleven o'clock he rounded up Arthur Stevenson, an 18-year-old English youth who had been in the employ of Mr. Bell. Stevenson was arrested on Carmarthen street by the detective and locked up in central station. When searched the prisoner had $11.20, a couple of boxes of candy, a couple of rolls of bandages and some postal cards.

The heat prostrations are almost exceptional, which is very unusual in camp, especially in such hot weather as we are having just now. This clearly points out the wisdom of the minister of militia in making this order and also to the way he has stood to his guns and seen that it was rigidly carried out shows that he has the spirit of a true soldier."

REV. HENRY PIERCE BIDS FAREWELL TO HIS CONGREGATION

Departing pastor of Portland Methodist church thanks members for goodwill and co-operation.

Rev. Henry Pierce, B. A., who has been pastor of the Portland street Methodist church for two years, preached his farewell sermon to a large congregation last evening. He took his text from Galatians 6:14, and gave a very interesting address, in concluding his remarks he referred feelingly to the cordial co-operation and cordial relations which had existed between him and the members of the church during his term as pastor of the church. He also spoke of the happy and cordial relations which had existed between him and the members of the congregation generally, and expressed his gratitude for many acts of kindness and consideration shown him. He expressed regret at leaving the pastorate, and bespoke for his successor the same spirit of co-operation and kindness which had been shown him. He said he was highly gratified at the fact that during his two years in the pulpit many commitments of the church had attended practically every service which he had conducted.

Mr. Pierce will go from here to assume the pastorate of the Methodist church at Hillsboro. His successor in the pulpit will be Rev. M. E. Conron who comes here from Guelph, Ontario. Mr. Conron will preach his first sermon here on the third Sunday in July.
