BURYING HERRING IN COURTENAY BAY MUD

Dead Fish Lay Three or Four Inches Thick on the Shore on Saturday.

What between the odor of decaying fish and the stagnant pond at the dump at the foot of Broad street, Courtenay Bay is a good place just now for people with weak stomachs to stay away from. All day Saturday while the tide was out, three men with a horse and cart were busy hauling the dead fish to the ravine of Marsh Creek. At the old break water where the sardine herring were lying from three to four inches thick six or seven men were digging holes in the mud and burying them. The odor was very bad.

It will take some more time today to bury what are left. Surprise has been expressed that neither the farmers nor the fertilizer works have seen fit to haul the dead fish away.

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell Honored.

To the many honors already accorded Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, neurologist, poet, essayist and novelist, has just been added that of a foreign fellowship in the Royal Society of England. The election by one of the choicest distinctions to which a scientist can aspire and it has fallen to the lot of only three other Americans now living, Alexander Agazzi, naturalist, and George W. Hill and Simon Newcomb, astronomers.

Doctor Mitchell's chief popular fame rests upon a work which he performed rather late in life, the writing of the romance, "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," the principal interest of which is centered about Philadelphia in the time of the Revolution. It has been followed by other books of fiction, notably "The Adventures of Francis," and "The Autobiography of a Quack." Doctor Mitchell's poems occupied originally five volumes, but have since been collected into one.

In science Doctor Mitchell has won an even stronger recognition than in literature. He distinguished himself early as a physiologist and is one of the first authorities of the world on nervous diseases and insanity. He has published about 125 papers on neurological subjects, a treatise on a trust of the University of Pennsylvania and the Carnegie Institution, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, honorary correspondent of the French Academy of Medicine and member of the British Medical Association, and has received honorary degrees from Harvard, Edinburgh, Princeton and Bologna.

The Royal Society of England is the oldest and most renowned scientific body in the world. It was organized in 1662, and every great English scientist has been a member of it. Benjamin Franklin was the first American member. None but men who are eminent for scientific discoveries and attainments are admitted to it.

GETTING READY FOR THE DIVING HORSES

Work on the Big Tank for King and Queen Begun--The Exhibition Amusements.

F. B. Lane, representing J. W. Gorman, proprietor of the diving horses, King and Queen, which will be the outdoor feature act of the exhibition, has work on the construction of the big tank which will be used for the dive. It will require a large force of men the balance of the week to complete the work, as the tank, being twelve feet deep and more than twenty feet square, with a seven foot runway, means the removal of quite an amount of material. However, Mr. Lane expects to have everything in readiness before the arrival of the horses, on Monday morning.

The Monday dive will not be until 5:30 p.m., thus giving plenty of time for the erection of the apparatus. Every other day during the week the horses will dive at 3 o'clock sharp, just before the big amusement hall performance.

The evening dive will take place at 9 o'clock, just after the fireworks and between the hours of the two shows in the amusement halls. The show in the big hall, consisting of the lions, Japs and what better will take place at 3:30, 7:30 and 9:15 p.m. The Mrs. Tom Thum entertainment in the small hall will be at 4:20, 7:20 and 9:15 p.m.

A prominent American manufacturer who is in the city in connection with an exhibit, which he is making between the diving horses, said that the exhibition association were to be congratulated upon securing the highest rating card in the United States. He had seen the horses dive in Norumbega Park, Boston, a few weeks ago, and the manager of the park had told him that the attraction had drawn more people to the park than was known in fifteen years history of that popular resort.

PLAY BY MOONSHINERS

Rehearsals in Jail Where Performers Are Prisoners.

A jail for a theatre, the cells for dressing rooms and the corridor for the stage form the equipment that the federal prisoners in the county jail at Frankfort, Ky., practically all of them moonshiners, are using in rehearsing a play that will be staged when they are out of confinement again.

The play is called "The Moonshiners," and was written by Sam Sheppard, who is accused of selling liquor without a license from the federal government.

The actors have met with such success in their rehearsals that they have determined to put the play on the stage as soon as they are released from jail. They are to meet in Corbin on December 1 to have their last rehearsal before the opening of the season in the mountain towns. The courthouses will be used as theatres and the members of the troupe will not be far from home if they get stranded.

The plot of the play is laid among the hills of Harlan County. The first act opens with a lot of moonshiners sitting around a still drinking the white whisky and playing cards. During this act every detail in making moonshine whisky will be exhibited.

A spy discloses the still to the revenue men, who raid the place, and the curtain falls amid revolver fire.

The second act deals with the burial of moonshiners who were killed in the moonshine raid. While the ox cart hearse is absent in the rehearsals there is a play for it in the play. The mountain preacher, who never condemns the making of moonshine, because the moonshiners contribute to his living, has his part in this act, and sings the funeral dirge while the men dressed as women and marched into a casket to mourn.

The third act deals with the chase of the revenue men after the moonshiners. Some of the moonshiners are captured and marched into a courthouse. The daughter of the mountain judge plays for their release. Her beauty impresses the revenue men, especially a young mem-
