URNING DAYLIGHT BY JACK LONDON

at, 1910, by the New York Herald Co. All rights res SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

D URNING DAYLIGHT" - Elam Harnish-is introduced to the reader as he enters a Circle City dance hall, saloon and gambling house like the whirlwind that he is. All the others in the place are "pikers" alongside this vast figure of a man, whe dares everything to win his own way.

Possessed of a tidy fortune and sure of making a vast one, Burning Daylight proceeds to stir up the life of the gambling house. The men and women all admire him, for he is of the type that dominates, and he, conscious that in everything, physical and mental, he is the superior of the assemblage, undertakes to arouse enthusiasm.

Essentially a man's man, Burning Daylight resents, or rather fears, the wiles of the women who frequent the dance hall. He is sought by all of them, persistently by one. But he is afraid to be even civil to a woman, because he dreads the idea of being mastered by anybody or anything, and to surrender to a woman meant, in his mind, that he was conquered.

Drink leads to boasting, and in the turmoil that follows Burning Daylight shows his amazing muscular strength. He wins all the tests and downs all the giants that come before him.

Then comes a poker game-the greatest ever played in the Klondike. Burning Daylight's luck deserts him at the end, and he rises from the table penniless-worse than broke.

Then the indomitable courage of this master among men shows itself. He declares himself in readiness to accomplish an impossible taskto run the mail to Dyea and back with a dog

"I swore in '83 I'd never go out till I'd made my stake," he exclaims, "and I swear once more, by the mill tails of hell and the head of John the Baptist, I'll never hit for the outside till I make my pile, and I tell you-all, here and now, it's got to be an almighty big pile."

And so Burning Daylight goes forth, over the frozen, trackless wastes, while behind him bets are made and taken on the chances of his returning inside of sixty days. For they all know he will return. He is Burning Daylight, the man who never turns back.

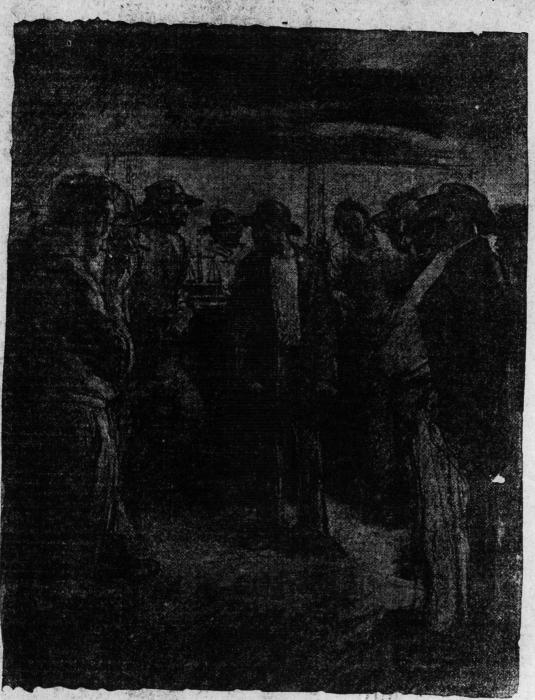

As the indomitable man goes on his way the difficulties that come to him seem too vast to be overcome, and one by one his hardy Indian companions and his dogs succumb to the tarrific hardships of the Alaskan winter. But Burning Daylight compels the weakening men and dogs to keep on the trail, and Dyea is reached. The return trip is even more terrible; but Burning Daylight wins, and the old crowd is in the Tivoli to greet him after his sixty days of magnificent incent accomplishment. That night there is a dance, and the marvellous man outdances the men-and the women too. In the morning the men he has chosen for his partners start on the trail again for the newest gold strike.

Dominating them in all things, Burning Daylight puts heart in the weak, leads the way into the illimitable future-and fortune.

CHAPTER VIII. (Continued).

IFE was a liar and a cheat. It fooled all light, one of its chief and most joyous exgambled, and that passed and was gone. Only the strength into the one effort, and so thoroughly must suggested itself of buying a share in the Klondike hunch and the big strike he believed we come and town site from Harper and Joe Ladue. They would surely sell a third interest cheap. Then, if the strike came on the Stewart, he would be well in on it with if he made his million? He would die, just the same the Elam Harnish town site; if on the Klondike, he would not be quite out of it.

He looked about him anxiously for signs of belief, but found himself in a circle of incredulous faces.

and a first of the second second second creatures. It had fooled him, Burning Day- stretched out on the ice full length, face downward, In the meantime he would gather strength. He and for half an hour he lay and rested. Then he ponents. He was nothing-a mere bunch of arose, shook the flashing blindness from his eyes, and flesh and nerves and sensitiveness that crawled in rately. If the first effort failed, the following efforts Mile, not a hundred feet away. The current had he knew that the spur had been his desire to sit in for a hand at that big game. And again, why? What as those that never won more than grubstakes. Then again, why? But the blank stretches in his thinking process began to come more there and he surrendered to the delightf I lassitude that was creeping over him.

He roused with a start. Something had whispered the muck for gold, that dreamed and aspired and were doomed to fail. He must put all his rallied brought him to the very door. But the same current was now sweeping him past and on into the down upon signs of Bob Henderson's work, and also at Australia Creek, thirty miles further on. The weeks came and went, but Daylight never encountered the other man. However, he found moose plentiful, and he and his dogs prospered on the meat diet. He found "pay" that was no more than "wages" on a dozen surface bars, and from the generous spread of flour gold in the muck and gravel of a score of creeks he was more confident than ever that coarse gold in quantity was waiting to be unearthed. Often he turned his eyes to the northward ridge of hills and pondered it the gold came from them. In the end he ascended Dominion Creek to its head, crossed the divide and came down on the tributary to the Klondike that was later to be called Hunker Creek. While on the divide, had he kept the big dome on his right, he would have come down on the Gold Bottom, so named by Bob Henderson, whom he would have found at work on it, taking out the first pay gold ever panned on the Klondike. Instead, Daylight continued down Hunker to the Klondike, and on to the summer fishing camp of the Indians on the Yukon.

Here for a day he camped with Carmack, a squaw-man, and his Indian brother-in-law, Skookum Jim, bought a boat, and with his dogs on board drifted down the Yukon to Forty Mile. August was drawing to a close, the days were growing shorter, and winter was coming on. Still, with unbounded faith in his hunch that a strike was coming in the Upper Country, his plan was to get together a party of four or five, and if that was impossible at least a partner, and to pole back up the river before the freeze-up to do winter prospecting. But the men of Forty Mile were without faith. The diggings to the westward were good enough for them.

Then it was that Carmack, his brother-in-law, Skoosum Jim, and Cultus Charlie, another Indian, arrived in a canoe at Forty Mile, went straight to the gold commissioner and recorded three claims and a discovery claim on Bonanza Creek. After that, in the Sour- good dough saloon that night, they exhibited coarse gold to the sceptical crowd. Men grinned and shook their heads. They had seen the motions of a gold strike gone through before. This was too patently a scheme of Harper and Joe Ladue's, trying to entice prospecting in the vicinity of their town site and trading post. And who was Carmack? A squaw-man. And who ever heard of a squaw-man striking anything? And what was Bonauza Creek? Merely a moose pasture, Indians were camped beside the frames on which to old timers as Rabbit Creek. Now, if Daylight or Bob Henderson had recorded claims and shown coarse gold they'd known there was something in it. But Carmack, the squaw-man! And Skookum im! And Daylight, too, was sceptical, and this despite his "Boys, I want to tell you-all something," he said.

in advance, to pole up a thousand pounds of grub?" Curly Parsons and another. Pat Monaha and, with his customary speed, Daylight their wages in advance and arranged the the supplies, though he emptied his sack He was leaving the Sourdough when he turned back to the bar from the doer.

"Got another hunch?" was the query "I sure have," he answered. "Flour's sure going to be worth what a man will pay for it this winter up the Klondike. Who'll lend me some money?' On the instant a score of the men who had declined to accompany him on the wild goose chase were crowd ing about him with proffered gold sacks. "How much flour you want?" asked the Alaska Commercial Company's storekeeper. "About two ton.' The proffered gold sacks were not withdrawn, though their owners were guilty of an outrageous burst of merriment.

"What are you going to do with two tons?" the storekeeper demanded. "Son," Daylight made reply, "yon-all ain't be'n in this country long enough to know all its curve going to start a sauerkraut factory and dandruff remedy."

He borrowed money right and left, engaging paying six other men to bring up the many more poing boats. Again his sack was empty and he was heavily in debt. Curly Parsons bowed his head on the bar with a gesture of despair. "What gets me," he moaned, "is what you're going to do with it all."

"I'll tell you-all in simple A B C and one, two Daylight held up one finger and began three.' ing off. "Hunch number one, a big strike com Upper Country. Hunch number two, Carma Hunch number three, ain't no hunch cinch. If one and two is right, then flour ju go sky high. If I'm riding hunches one just got to ride the cfich, which is number I'm right, flour'll balance gold on the scale I tell you-all boys when you-all get ter it for all it's worth. What's luck good ain't to ride it? And when you-all ride I've been years in this country jus the right hunch to come along, and he

to play her, that's all. Good

CHAPTER X.

I'm

ach were without laith When Daylight, with his heavy outlit of flour, arrived at the mouth of the Klondike he found the big flat as desolate and tenantless as ever. Down close by the river Chief Isaac and his they were drying salmon. Several old timers were also in camp there. Having finished their summer work on Ten Mile Creek they had come down the Yukon bound for Circle City. But at Sixty Mile they had learned of the strike and stopped off to look over the ground. They had just returned to their when Daylight landed his flour, and their report was pessimistic

"Damned moose pasture," quoth one, Long Jim a blamed rotten sell. They're just motions of a strike. Harper and Ladue's and Carmack's the stool pigeon. Who even mining a moose pasture half a mile betwe and God alone knows how far to bed rock?" Daylight nodded sympathetically and co for a space.

"Did you all pan any?" he asked, finally. "Pan hell!" was the indignant answer. "Think I was born yesterday? Only a chechaquo'd fool around that pasture long enough to fill a pan of dirt don't catch me at any such foolishness. On was enough for me. We're pulling on in the ing for Circle City. I ain't never had faith Upper Country. Head reaches of the Tanana ugh for me from now on, and, mark my when the big strike comes she'll come down rive Johnny, here, staked a couple of miles below Dis

ERSONS having w per week growing ing fall and wint time to pl and illustrated Supply Company EN WANTED an in each loc ise our Roya Specific and sumers as $15.00 a v

WAN

The largest Write Jenkins Mfg.

ANTEDteacher for Dist deen. Schoo stating salar Kenneth, rustees.

ANTED-A seco male teacher aston, York o Apply, stati Thomasto

estant comm VANTED-Cook wages. Apply TANTED-A Sept. 5, for erences rec tter to Mrs. hesay.

VANTED-A rtson, Rother 15.00 A WEEK

man or lad previous em arvey, Mgr.,

Toronto TANTED-Cook an by letter, Mrs. N.B.

> ANTED-For th a compe esay School for > > VANTED-Girl fo no washing. Apt . 1 Mount Plea IART WOMAN dairy and house w ges wanted, to Mrs. le, Rothesay.

AGENTS

ORTRAIT AGEN nen we start give

ted. Toronto LENDID OPPO liable and energe line of First demand for demand ty-two years inces puts ments of the tr ent situati onto. Ont.

FOR S

TARM FOR ten aci the heart of ng centre in ings county: arge barn, 33x40, dwelling, se llar. House nearly rings. Making and only operty must be sol tgage claim. ly to Alfred Burle John, N. B

Cultus Charlie! No, no; that was asking too much. faith in the Upper Country. Had he not only a few faith in the Upper Country. Had the date of an and with never a thought of prospecting? But at "Damned moose pasture, quota the mug "Damned moose pasture, quota the mug Harney, pausing to blow into his tin mug "Don't you have nothin' to do with it, Daylight eleven that night, sitting on the edge of his bunk and unlacing his moccasins, a thought came to him. He put on his coat and hat and went back to the Sourdough. Carmack was still there, flashing his coarse gold in the eyes of an unbelieving generation. Daylight ranged alongside of him and omptied Carmack's sack into a blower. This he studied for a long time. Then from his own sack into another blower he emptied several ounces of Circle City and Forty Mile gold. Again for a long time he studied and compared. Finally he pocketed his own gold, returned Carmack's and held up his hand for silence.

"She's sure come-the up-river strike. And I tell you-all, clear and forcible, this is it. There ain't never been gold like that in a blower in this country ned, the things that were not flesh and nerves and sensitiveness, the sand and muck and gravel, the stretching flats, the mountains, the river itself, freezing and breaking year by year spirit, in the effort. The boat rose. He thought he down all the years. When all was said and done it was a scurvy game. The dice were loaded. Those that died did not win, and all died. Who won? Not himself into it, landing fn a sick heap on Elijah's game-Life, the ever flourishing graveyard, the everlasting funeral procession.

- He drifted back to the immediate present for a moment and noted that the river still ran wide open and had struck the bank. A dozen times it whirled and that a moose bird perched on the bow of the boat was surveying him impudently. Then he drifted dreamily back to his meditations.

There was no escaping the end of the game. He Conventional religion had passed Daylight by. He right playing with other men and he had not indulged the boat against it. Crawling forward, he fastened in vain metaphysics about future life. Death ended the painter to a root. The tree, deeper in the water, all. He had always believed that and been unafraid. was travelling faster, and the painter tautened as the And at this moment, the boat fifteen feet above the boat took the tow. Then, with a last giddy look water and immovable, himself fainting with weak- around, wherein he saw the banks tilting and swayness and without a particle of strength left in him, ing and the sun swinging in pendulum sween across he still believed that death ended all and he was still unafraid. His views were too simply and solidly based to be overthrown by the first squirm, or the last, of death fearing life.

field of his vision, by scores, came such deaths. He sharp jerk informed him that the boat, swerving slack saw them over again, just as he had seen them at the into the painter, had been straightened out by the time, and they did not shake him. What of it? They swifter moving pine tree. A piece of stray drift ice were dead, and dead long since. They weren't both- thumped against the boat and grated along its side. ering about it. They weren't lying on their bellies Well, the following jam hadn't caught him yet, was across a boat and waiting to die. Death was easy, his thought as ne closed his eyes and slept again. easier than he had ever imagined; now that it was near the thought of it made him glad.

A new vision came to him. He saw the feverish city of his dream, the gold metropolis of the North, perched above the Yukon on a high earth bank and far spreading across the flat. He saw the river steamers tied to the bank and lined against it three deep, and head swimming, as he dragged himself into a sitwith double sleds behind, freighting supplies to the diggings. And he saw, further, the gambling houses banks, stock exchanges, and all the gear and chip and markers, the chances and opportunities, of 9 vastly bigger gambling game than any he had ever seen. It was sure hell, he thought, with the bunch a-working and that big strike coming, to be out of it all. Life thrilled and stirred at the thought and once more began uttering his ancient lies.

against it as he sat on the ice. He wanted to be in on that strike. And why shouldn't he? Somewhere in all those wasted museles of his was enough other attempts.

He lifted, and he lifted with the soul of him as well as with the body, consuming-himself, body and call, but found he had no voice left. An unearthly was going to faint, but he continued to lift. He felt the boat give, as it started on its downward slide. legs. He was beyond attempting to rise, and as he lay he heard and felt the boat take the water. By watchin the tree tops he knew it was whirling. A smashstruck, and then it floated easily and free.

Daylight came to and decided he had been asleep. The sun denoted that several hours had passed. It was doomed surely to be out of it all. And what of it? stern and sat up. The boat was in the middle of the stream. The wooded banks, with their base lines of had lived a sort of religion in his square dealing and huge uprooted pine. A freak of the current brought flashing ice, were slipping by. Near him floated a the sky, Daylight wrapped himself in his rabbitskin robe, lay down in the bottom and fell asleep.

When he awoke it was dark night. He was lying on his back and he could see the stars shining. A sub-He had seen men and animals die, and into the dued murmur of swollen waters could be heard. A

> The sun showed it to be midday. A glance around by famine, and he was obsessed by fear of repeating the mighty Yukon. Sixty Mile could not be far away. He was abominably weak. His movements were slow, fumbling and inaccurate, accompanied by panting ting-up position in the stern, his rifle beside him. He ain't got storage for another bite. I'm going back to looked a long time at Elijah, but could not see whether he breathed or not, and he was too immeasurably far away to make an investigation.

He fell to dreaming and meditating again, dreams and thoughts being often broken by stretches of scious nor was aware of anything. It ceemed to him more like cogs slipping in his br in. And in this inter-Daylight rolled over and off the boat, leaning alive and most likely would be saved, but how came it that he was not lying dead across the boat on top the ice rim? Then he recollected the great final effort strength, if he could gather it all at once, to up-end himself. It had not been fear of death. He had not Indian River. he had made. But why had he made it? he asked the boat and launch it. Quite irrelevantly, the idea been afraid, that was sure. Then he remembered the guttural hiss alternately rattled and wheezed in his jeers went up. throat. He fumbled for the rifle, got it to his shoulder and pulled the trigger. The recoil of the discharge suggested. tore through his frame, racking it with a thousand agonies. The rifle had fallen across his knees, and an attempt to lift it to his shoulder failed. He knew he must be quick, and felt that he was fainting, so he pulled the trigger of the gun where it lay. This time it kicked off and overboard. But just before darkness rushed over him he saw the kitchen door open and a woman look out of the big log house that was dancing a monstrous jig among the trees.

CHAPTER IX.

- EN days later Harper and Joe Ladue arrived at Sixty Mile, and Daylight, still a trifle weak, but strong enough to obey the hunch that had come to him, traded a third interest in his Stewart town site for a third interest in theirs on the Klondike. They had taith in the upper country, and Harper left downstream with a raft load of supplies to start a small post at the mouth of the Klondtke.

"Why don't you tackle Indian River, Daylight?" Harper advised at parting. "There's whole slathers of creeks and draws draining in up there, and somewhere gold just crying to be found. That's my hunch. There's a big strike coming, and Indian River ain't going to be a million miles away."

"And the place is swarming with moose," Joe Ladue added. "Bob Henderson's up there somewhere; been there three years now, swearing something big is going to happen, living off'n straight moose and prospecting around like a crazy man."

Daylight decided to go Indian Rivor a flutter, as It was bright day when next he opened his eyes. into accompanying him. Elijah's soul had been seared the experience.

"I jest can't bear to separate from grub," he explained. "I know it's downright foolishness, but I jest can't help it. It's all I can do to tear myself away from the table when I know I'm full to bustin' and Circle to camp by a cache until I get cured."

Daylight lingered a few days longer, gathering strength and arranging his meagre outfit. He planned to go in light, carrying a pack of seventy-five pounds and making his five dogs pack as well, Indian fashblankness, wherein h neith r slept nor was uncon- ion, loading them with thirty pounds each. Depending on the report of Ladue, he intended to follow Bob Henderson's example and live practically on straight meat. When Jack Kearns' scow, laden with the sawmill from Lake Linderman, tied up at Sixty Mile, Daylight bundled his outfit and dogs on board, turned his town site application over to Elijah to be filed, and the same day was landed at the mouth of

Forty miles up the river, at what had been de-

he put all of it in that there would be none left for river wilderness. No one was in sight. The place before. It's new gold. It's got more silver in it. Youmight have been deserted, save for the smoke he all can see it by the color. Carmack's sure made a saw rising from the kitchen chimney. He tried to strike. Who-all's got faith to come along with me?" There were no volunteers. Instead, laughter and

"Mebbe you got a town site up there," some one

"I sure have," was the retort, "and a third interest in Harper and Ladue's. And I can see my corner lots selling out for more than your hen scratching ever turned up on Birch Creek."

"That's all right, Daylight," one, Curly Parsons, interposed soothingly. "You've got a reputation, and we know you're dead sure on the square. But you're as likely as any to be mistook on a film-fiam game, such as these loafers is puttin' up. I ask you straight when did Carmack do this here prospectin'? You said yourself he was lyin' in camp fishin' salmon along with his Siwash relations, and that was only the other day

'And Daylight told the truth," Carmack interrupted excitedly. "And I'm telling the truth, the gospel truth. I wasn't prospecting. Hadn't no idea of it. But when Daylight pulls out, the very same day, who drifts in, down river, on a raft-load of supplies, but Bob Henderson. He'd come out to Sixty Mile, planning to go back up Indian River and portage the grub across the divide between Quartz Creek and Gold Bottom"

"Where in hell's Gold Bottom?" Curly Parsons de-

"Over beyond Bonanza, that was Rabbit Creek," the squaw-man went on. "It's a draw of a big creek that runs into the klondike. Inat's the way I went up, but I come back by crossing the divide, keeping ong the crest several miles and dropping down into Bonanza. 'Come along with me, Carmack, and get staked,' says Bob Henderson to me. 'I've hit it this time, on Gold Bottom. I've too: cut forty-live ounces a'ready.' And I went along, Skookum Jim and Cultus Charlie, too. And we all stuked on Gold Bottom. I come back by Bonanza on the chance of ...nding a moose. Along down Bonan.a we stopped and cooked grub. I went to sleep, and what does Skookum Jim do but try his hand at prospecting? He'd been watching Henderson, you see. He goes right slap up to the foot of a birch tree, first pan, fills it with dirt and washes out more'n a dollar coarse gold. Then wakes me up and I goes at it. I got half the first lick. Then I named the creek 'Bonara,' staked Discovery and we come here and r corded." He looked about him anxiously for signs of belief, but found himself in a circle of incredulous faces-all save Daylight, who had studied his countenance while he told his story. "How much is Harper and Ladu g'vin' ou for manufacturing a stampede?" some one demanded.

"They don't know nothing about it," Carmack an-"I tell you it's the God Almighty's truth. I swered. washed out three ounces in an hour."

"And there's the gold," Daylight said. "I tell you all boys they ain't never been gold like that in the blower before. Look at the color of it." "A triffe darker," Curly Parson said. "Most likely Carmack's been carrying a couple of silver dollars along in the same sack. And, what's more, if there's anything in it, why ain't Bob Henderson smoking along to record?"

"He's up on Gold Bottom," Carmack explained. e made the strike coming back." A burst of laughter was his reward.

"Who-all'll go pardners with me and pull out in a poling boat to-morrow for this here Bonanza?" Daylight asked. No one volunteered.

"Then who-all'll take a job from me, cash wages covery, but he don't know no better. Johnny looked shamefaced. "I just did it for fun," he explained. "I'd give plaintively.

my chance in the creek for a pound of Star plug. "I'll go you," Daylight said promptly. "But don't you-all come squealing if I take twenty or thirty thousand out of it.' Johnny grinned cheerfully.

"Gimme the tobacco," he said. "Wish I'd staked alongside," Long Jim murmured.

"It ain't too late," Daylight replied. "It ain't too late," Daylight replied. "But it's a twenty mile walk there and back." "Til stake it for you to morrow when I go up," Day-light offered. "Then you do the same as Johnny. Get the fees from Tim Logan. He's tending bar in the Sourdough and he'll lend it to me. Then file in your own name, transfer to me and turn the papers over to Tim.

"Me, too," chimed in the third old timer And for three pounds of Star plug chewing tobacco Daylight bought outright three five hundred foot claims on Bonanza. He could still stake another claim in his own name, the others being merely transfers. "Must say you're almighty brash with your chewin' tobacco," Long Jim grinned. "Got a factory somewheres?"

"Nope, but I got a hunch," was the retort, "and I tell you-all it's cheaper than dirt to ride her at the rate of three plugs for three claims."

But an hour later at his own camp Joe Ladue strode in fresh from Bonanza Creek. At last non-committal over Carmack's strike, then, later, dubious, he finally offered Daylight a hundred dollars for his share in the town site

"Cash?" Daylight queried. "Sure. There she is."

So saying, Ladue pulled out his gold sack. Daylight hefted it absent mindedly, and, still absent mindedly, untied the strings and ran some of the gold dust out on his palm. It showed darker than dust he had ever seen, with the exception of mack's. He ran the gold back, tied the mouth of the sack and returned it to Ladue.

"I guess you-all need it more 'n I do," was Daylight'

Nope; got plenty more," the other assured him. "Where that come from?"

Daylight was all innocence as he asked the qu tion, and Ladue received the question as stolidly an Indian. Yet for a swift instant they looked in an indian. Fet for a swift instant they fooded like each other's eyes, and in that instant an intangible something seemed to flash out from all the body and spirit of Joe Ladue. And it seemed to Daylight that he had caught this flash, sensed a secret somethi in the knowledge and plans behind the other's eyes

"You-all know the creek better 'n me," Da went on. "And if my share in the town site's worth a hundred to you-all with what you-all know, it's worth a hundred to me whether I know it or

"I'll give you three hundred," Ladue offered desperately "Still the same reasoning. No matter what I don't know, it's worth to me whatever you-all are willing Ťł it was that Joe Ladue shamelessly gave over. He led Daylight away from the camp and men and told him things in confidence. "She's sure there," he said in conclusion. "I didn't sluice it or cradle it. I panned it, all in that yesterday on the rim rock. I tell you you can shake it out of the grass roots. And what's on bedroc down in the bottom of the creek they ain't no way a tellin'. But she's big, I tell you, big. Keep it and locate all you can. It's in spots, but I wo none surprised if some of them claims yie high as fifty thousand. The only trouble is that it's spotted.

> (To Be Continued)

loose Leaf Systems. lanifolding Systems Self-Balancing Ledge Latest Edition of I urrough's Adding Gammeter Multigrap General Up-to-Daten Latest Catalogue to re time each day Tag Brand guar Seeds. ssful varieties re ience required; w s. Handsome sam

WE WAI

VM. L. WILLIA

Merchant,

et. Establ

price list

mission paid we son to start. W

DOMINION Montreal

HE SHIE

Cures

No Doctor

every organ system. Alm every stage y The Oxygen Liver, Kidney, Nervoucher

Nervousness, S tion, Brain Fa Trouble, Cough gia, Headache, tion, Nervous ment of Tubero wonderfully eff ing, delightful, Give us an c

BOX 8

CHATHA.

PERFE

Oargeno