HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

FRIEND of the writer in discussing the importance of promoting social life in the country brought out the importance of utilizing the country schools for the purpose of the education of the farmer's boys and girls in respect to the possibilities of Canada, and particularly of our own Province of Ontario. He pointed out that by co-ordinating the activities of the various departments of the Government, the agricultural, the educational, the structural and the institutional including the public health department, and showing them in the form of film pictures a most useful and entertaining social circle might be form of film pictures a most useful and entertaining social circle might be formed in each rural school section. A most satisfactory film machine, producing excellent pictures, can be purchased for about $225.00 or in large numbers perhaps for about half that sum. If the numbers perhaps for about half that sum. If the numbers development would provide the picture films and to the SOCIAL LIFE IN Government would provide the picture films and to the local ones add those illustrating the geography, history, and scenery of other countries that an educational feature might be established. There is no limit to what it might achieve! In addition, the film pictures which have been shown all over

In addition, the film pictures which have been shown all over the province by the Provincial Board of Health might be advantageously introduced and prove of lasting benefit to every community. There are enormous educational opportunities in the moving picture. Its valuable features are not confined to the Charlie Chaplin variety so much exploited in cities and towns: beyond all these it has an importance and value which in cities and towns; beyond all these it has an importance and value which will be realized before many years have passed by.

Patent medicines have had a wide use in this as well as in older countries. Great fortunes have been made by their exploitation, the chief cause of their success being not in the value of the remedies themselves but in the skilful manner in which they are advertised. The trade in patent medicines has not been as successful in recent years PATENT in patent medicines has not been as successful in recent years as formerly. One reason is that the public is better educated than it used to be and the truth as to the character and usefulness of these remedies has been placed before the people. The rank fraud found in many cases, the absurd promises of cure for every kind of ill, which have been advertised, and the knowledge of the great mass of the people that these promises have not been made good have made people wary of purchase. There is a question if any patent medicine is of much value. There is no doubt that many of them are a downright injury to those using them.

The American Medical Association, through its Journal, has done an The American Medical Association, through its Journal, has done an enormous service to the people of America by its exposure of the frauds practised upon the public by the hundreds of so-called "cures" sold under the guise of Cancer cures, Consumption cures, cures for drunkenness, for female sickness, for baldness, obesity, and hundreds of other human ills. If the patent medicines of a past generation had possessed the power claimed the patent medicines of a past generation had possessed the power claimed for them they would have continued to sell them no longer advertised; or, if there was no sale for them, it would be because they had banished sickness from the earth. Of the patent medicine fakes perhaps the greatest have been those purporting to cure consumption or tuberculosis of the lungs. Few place any reliance upon such advertised remedies for consumption nowadays, because the knowledge has been spread far and wide that consumption is cured only by means of living in the fresh air, by rest, by good food, and by abstinence from alcohol.

No medicine is of any value in the treatment of the disease except such as promote the appetite and allay cough, pain, and other complications. The death-rate from tuberculosis in Ontario as well as in all civilized countries has been materially reduced of late years. In 1901 the death-rate in Ontario was 148 per 100,000 of population. To-day, thanks to increased application of knowledge in regard to this disease, the rate is 85 per 100,000 of population. This death rate is still capable of much reduction. In fact if people utilized all the knowledge we have of it the disease would be wiped out in the next generation and a death from condisease would be wiped out in the next generation and a death flow comparison would be as rare as a death from smallpox. People are learning not to fear fresh air. They do not seek to keep it out of their homes. Milk from tuberculous cows, the greatest cause of tuberculosis in children, is pasterrized and the germs of the disease killed in the milk supply of most pasterrized and the germs of the disease killed in the milk supply of most of our cities. Many anti-tuberculosis societies have been established all over the country. Boards of Health have spread the truth about the disease. Sanatoria for the care of the afflicted have been started here and there through the agency of philanthropic people.
