SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Isobel Stormont, daughter of Sir David Stormont, a wealthy Scotch country gentleman, disappears without leaving the slightest trace. She was a quiet, retiring girl, with only one striking feature, a beautiful Italian hair, which had been inherited from her mother. Her father, Sir David, was a man of high position and great wealth. Her mother, Lady Stormont, was a woman of high character and great beauty. The disappearance of Isobel was a great mystery to all who knew her.

HE HAD but newly returned to Stormont after a few days' absence. He was a man of high position and great wealth. He had been away for some time, and his return was a great event for all who knew him. He was a man of high character and great beauty. He had been away for some time, and his return was a great event for all who knew him.

Isobel's look when her eyes had met his, raised her head from his shoulder. She was a woman of high character and great beauty. She had been away for some time, and her return was a great event for all who knew her.

CHAPTER VII

ISOBEL'S LIFE AS CLOSED.

W HATEVER communication Sir David might have made to Isobel, he seemed in no hurry to do so. He was a man of high position and great wealth. He had been away for some time, and his return was a great event for all who knew him.

"I have done what I could," he muttered unconsciously, half aloud. "His can't say that I did not—I even said 'I will remember.'" He looked at the shudder he had given to the floor. "Why should I keep these to haunt me?" He made a swift motion, as if to snatch the book and papers from the drawer, when a step sounded outside the heavy door.
