HALLOWE'EN PRANKS

Many were the Halloween pranks played last evening but the majority of them were harmless. A number of boys dressed up in fancy attire and paraded King Street, A couple Maple City youths dressed up in Prince Albert coats and silk hats and walked about a bit. They were quite a dudish pair.

Handsome Parrott as an arguer is all right, but he's not very strong on facts.

Times must be good in Chatham because there seems to be consider-able money in dirculation.

Wonder what insult the nickel novel Banner will be offering to the intelligent colored citizens next?

Mr. Conservative Worker, get out and hustle to-night while Dredge the River Stephens is tied up with his spell-binders.

Handsome Parrott hasn't tackled the corn question since he tried to hoodwink the intelligent farmers at Charing Cross Friday night. A mighty hush fell over the vast assemblage of the enemy as Sleuth Kerr made his appearance in their midst. The boldness of the brave man was too much for the crowd. He gave his face a few M. K. Cowan twists and the bunch were subdued. They had become his vassals. Thus the Nick Carter organette had another story.

A HOLD-UP

There were a couple of scared men in the ticket office at the C. P. R. station last night about eleven o'clock.

Mr. Scott, the day operator, who is relieving here at the present time, was there straightening up his ticket report. Mr. Burns, the night operator, was there doing his regular work and they both received a severe shock to their nerves. They were working away quietly when a voice at the wicket yelled out "Throw up your hands! Hand out your money!"

And the barrel of a shotgun was

And the barrel of a shotgun was thrust through the wicket.

Both of the gentlemen were for some time at a loss to know just what to do, but after ducking and dodging around they were able to keep from in front of the barrel and finally one of them got out of the cage and secured the shot gun from the intruder.

The would-be hold-up was drunk and was evidently playing a practical halloween joke on the operators, but it was a serious one for the young men. The man had a number of rounds of ammunition with him, but the most humiliating part of the whole affair for the operators was the fact that the shot gun was empty the fact that the shot gun was empty all the time.

H. M. S. PINAFORE

At a full meeting of the Board of the Children's Aid Society held in Harrison Hall yesterday afternoon, it was unanimously decided to give an elaborate production, in miniature, of Gilbert & Sullivan's masterpiece, "H. M. S. Pinafore," in the Grand Opera House, on Thursday and Friday, November 24th and 25th.

There will be a hundred and fifty children, in the cast and choruses, ages ranging from five to fourteen years. Beautiful costumes, and special scenery will be used, and an augmented orchestra will accompany the children's voices. The first practice will be held in Northwood's Hall tomorrow at 4.15, under the direction of H. B. DARING HOLD-UP

Saturday night, two men held up a young fellow named Dauphin and relieved him of $2, all the money he had. Dauphin recently purchased a couple of acres east of Chatham on the Eberts' property and was going up to his place in the evening. When near Cornhill's brick yard, he was held up by two men at the point of revolvers and forced to disgorge. The matter was reported to the police.
