CURIO SHOPS RANSACKED IN SEARCH OF THESE TREASURES.

The Tables Almost as Scarce as the nal Can Be Made by a Good Cabi-

The smart drawing room of the moment is not complete without a trico-teuse or Louis XVI. embroidery and tense of Louis XVI. embrodery and rnitting table. Consequently every woman who keeps up with the fads of the day is ransacking old curio shops in search of such treasures or, failing in the quest-for these tables are almost as extinct as the dodo—is having a reproduction of the original made at a good cabinetmaker's. The reason for setting up these tables in the drawing oom may be traced to the recent craze for copying Louis XVI. embroidery for you will recall that it was in his time that the silly vogue for unravel-ing gold lace and braid for fancy work reached such a craze that ladies went about from saloh to salon carrying with them their embroidery and were not above demanding from their admirers the sacrifice of gold lace from the coats they were wearing. Wool work and tapesty were then, as to-day, the favorites of the French lady, and Marie Antoinette must have often sat by her tricoteuse occupied with her needle while Mme. Campan read to her. The table of this unfortunate queen was ornamented with the lilies of France, and a dolphin formed a trophy on the lower ledge. The less aristocratic of these little worktables are more simple in design, but all have a special charm, and an aroma of roce still seems to cling about their fragile woodwork. The tricotense is oblong-indeed, almost boat shaped—and is usually made of mahogany. The upper tray is surounded by an upstanding piece of wood generally bound with brass and soring the working implements against the danger of being swept off. One side of this little ledge is fitted with hinges to be let down by the fair em-breidress when sitting at her work. Beneath the top is a drawer opening from either side. Under this drawer is slung when the table is used exclusively for knitting a large bag fashioned frem handsome brocade.

A Linen Shower. The latest evolution of the shower idea, which for so long has been popwar with brides and their friends, is set of linens for the table-fifty-two pieces in all-stamped to match with the bride's favorite flower made into an effective design. One of the bride's friends plans it and directs the stamp ing. Then the cost is divided among a number of her friends, among whom the work is also apportioned. When the set is done it makes the prettiest sort of shower, and its first time of using is often at the bridesmaids' luncheon the bride gives.

Picture Hais.
It is the fashion to trim picture hats with whole birds with wonderful tail feathers that are all curved, but no curls. Many of these adornments are made at the bird factories, and for this reason should not prove obnoxious to bird lovers.

A smart Color.

A great deal of blue in dull, electric and Wedgwood tones is seen in fash-ionable millinery, giving an entirely new and rich effect to combinations of color which must make their own appeal to the artistic taste.

The City of Monich.

Munich is one of the most beautiful cities in Europe, with broad streets, frequent fountains, many stately statues, numerous open squares, large wooded parks, a swift river flowing directly through the center of the residence section, galleries that contain several of the finest recollections of pictures and sculpture in the world. libraries, academies of design, schools of science, a magnificent opera house, a theater that was erected exclosively for the production of Wagner's operas, and various other attractions which do disturb the classic atmosphere but appeal to the artist, the student and whoever seeks for beauty and for rest. No city of equal size has so many noble monuments and public buildings, while probably a larger number of the population of Munich is engaged in study and artistic and scientific pursuits than may be found in any other city. The Royal library is one of the greatest in existence, probably second only to the British museum,-William E. Curtis in Chicago Record-Herald.

HOW TO BE GRACEFUL.

A Beautiful Woman's Appearance Spoiled by Awkward Movements. Not one woman in a hundred knows or thinks about seating herself grace-fully. Columns have been written about how to enter a room gracefully, as possible.

The average girl spends much more of her time sitting than walking or dancing. How much more necessary, then, that she make the most of her opportunities!

A woman may be very beautiful and her whole appearance may be spoiled by her awkward movements. How distressing to watch her flop down in an ungainly manner in an attempt to seat herself somewhere!

If a woman is tall she should choose the highest chair to seat herself in instead of doubling herself into a disjointed position in a low chair or one too small for her. When she seats herself at a table she should not lean over it lazily or rest her elbow on it. These habits are too easily acquired, and a woman does not add to her attractiveness by indulging in them.

THE APRON FAD.

Pascinating Affairs Made of Sheer Lawn and Lace.

The mere fashioning of aprons is a positive delight for the woman who enjoys fine needlework. If one wishes to extremely particular, they can be made entirely by hand, but they are almost as dainty and can be much more quickly done on the machine with a very small stitch and fine thread. A very fascinating apron can be made like the one in the illustration. It is of sheer blue dimity or lawn, with the front breadths tucked and sharply pointed and two pointed revers turned back on broad shoulder straps for the bib. This is trimmed with valenciennes lace insertion about an inch wide and lace edging to match. An extra fluffiness is given by a ruffle of the material outlining the bottom and finished with a lace edge.

A dusting apron may be carried out either in white or colored handkerchief linen, trimmed with insertion and edging of embroidery. A panel arrangement of the insertion on the front gore of the apron and outlining the sloping tucks at the bottom just above the ruffle of the material is most effective.

It is so very fashionable to match one's furs to one's gown and so many people are doing it that one really begins to feel very old fashioned unless one's furs do match. They can be se-

Pin and Ring Case. A useful case for hatpins, pins and rings is made of a plece of fancy ribbon with one of soft flannel tacked on to it and the two bound with nar-row ribbon. At one end are sewed two or three little pieces of chamois leather, scalloped round the edges. This is to stick the pins into. At the other end a little bag is made, which draws together at the rim and is in-tended for rings. The hatpins are run into the lining, and the whole case is rolled and tied with ribbon.

The following tonic is excellent for the hair: Bay rum, one ounce; ammonia, one dram; cantharadin, one unce: alcohol, two ounces, and distle. Apply this at least three times a week for a month. It is useless to hope for any good results in less time. Massage the scalp in the meantime as often as possible.

FORGOT TO FIGURE COST

When Confronted With the Expense of Keeping Forty Cows He Gives Up the Project.

[Copyright, 1905, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]
" OW, then, what is it?" asked Mrs. Bowser as she and Mr. Bowser reached the sitting room shortly after dinner the other evening.

"What is what, dear?" he replied, trying to look surprised. "I want to know what project you have on hand. I can tell by the way you look and act that something has happened today. Are you going to try to make artificial coal, manufacture leather from bark, or what?"

"Mrs. Bowser, I am working six days a week, am I not?" "Yes."

"And we are only saving a few dollars a year?" "No: we are not saving much, but the trouble is with your fads. You are always paying out money"-"Stop right there!" he interrupted. "I never had a fad in my life. I never paid out a dollar to experiment with a fad. If you want to discuss matters with me, begin by stating facts. "Well, you work six days a week, and we don't save much money. What is to follow?"

"I am not growing any younger." "No.

"And therefore it's natural that I should look about to see how I can.

"I START OFF WITH FORTY COWS." etter the situation. I have been look ing for several years, but nothing has urned up until today."

"And what is it? I hope you don't think of going into poultry or squabs. I was reading yesterday about a man raising squabs for the market. Does he want to self out to you?

Resents Her Criticism. "Don't begin to speak in sarcasm or you won't get a word out of me. I know nothing about frogs or squabs, but I think I have a better thing-far better-than poultry. In fact, I wouldn't exchange it for any gold mine at Cripple Creek. I don't want to seem too enthusiastic, but the facts are that I have struck the opportunity of a life-ple of minutes and looked wise and "I propose to sell out as soon as possible and start a dairy farm. I have had the idea in view for some months, but never got down to figures until to-day. If I had gone into the business ten years ago I should have been a millionaire now. There is nothing on the face of this earth so profitable, and I am amazed that every farmer hasn't gone into it." "You-you have got figures, have "Any amount of them. Mrs. Bowser, your husband is not the man to ing first figured. I can show you how we can make $10,000 a year as easy as turning a hand over." "That will be nice. Now state the case.

"Well. I trade this house and lot even up for a farm of 100 acres. That's even up, remember."
"Yes."

"Then I start off with forty cows. I figure that each cow gives ten quarts of milk a day. That is 400 quarts per day. It will sell to the creamery at 5 cents per quart. Figure that for a year, and you get $12,280. Do you want any better income than $1,000 a month? We'll knock off the odd figures and say, $10,000 a year. We not only have that money coming in as sure as the interest on a government bond, but we are out in the pure air of the country and living on the top shelf all the time."

"But you have made more figures than these?" queried Mrs. Bowser. "What's the use? You get so much wilk per day and sell it for so much.
It's a simple sum in arithmetic."

"Let us see if it is. You start with forty cows?"
"Just forty."

Dairy Plan

"I see by the papers that a good cow is worth $40. You will have to pay out the sum of $1,600 to get your drove. Had you figured on that?"

Mr. Bowser's jaw dropped, and he turned red. He hadn't. "You figure on ten quarts of milk per day for each cow. That is summer figuring. If you get seven quarts a day from each in the winter you will be doing well. You must knock off many hundred quarts from your estimate. You must remember, too, that to have new milk cows in the spring some of your cows will be out of the milking for weeks. Had you figured on that?"

"You are finding fault already!" he growled as he pounded on the table and bristled up. "I might have known that you would do your best to kill a good thing."

What It Will Cost "But I'm not, dear. I only want to understand how you figure. Each cow will consume two and a half tons of hay during the winter. That is 100 tons for all, and at $20 per ton we have $2,000. You figured on that, didn't you?" Mr. Bowser flushed red and white, but did not answer.

"There will be other food needed for the winter if you want the supply of milk kept up, and you can put that down at $200. You must have a team and wagon to start with to deliver your milk at the creamery. The cost will be all of $400. To run the farm and take care of forty cows you must have three men. I don't think you can get them for less than $30 per month. and you will have to board them. That means $9 per week, besides the wages and board of a hired girl. Then you must feed your team, you know. I suppose you provided for all these things. Mr. Bowser tried to say something in reply, but words failed him.

"You speak of trading our place for farm," continued Mrs. Bowser. "Has the farm got a cow barn on it?" Mr. Bowser got up and walked about.

"Probably not, or you would have mentioned it at the start. Well, a good barn for forty cows and a team of horses will cost you at least $2,500. If you are going into figures, you must figure the interest on your capital. If you are going to run a dairy farm, you must figure in what your own time is worth. You may have half a dozen calves to sell in the spring, but you may lose two or three cows in the course of the year. If you raise your own hay, corn and oats, you must have agricultural implements. There will be a constant replacing of things. You will also want a horse and buggy you think there is quite $10,000 a year in it for us, Mr. Bowser?"

Changes His Mind. "In what?" he asked as he came to a halt and glared at her.

"Why, we were figuring on the profits of a dairy farm, and you said"—
"I said nothing—nothing whatever."

"But you said"-"Mrs. Bowser, I am no man to refer to any one's misfortunes, but as your husband I feel it my duty to observe that I have seen signs of late that you are not quite right in the head. Don't you think it would be a good idea to have the family doctor over here this evening to give us an opinion?"

"But you came home and said you were going into the dairy business,' she protested.

Mr. Bowser looked at her in a pitying way and then passed down th hall. He was boiling over. He had gone into the dairy business to make $10,000 a year and had come out with out a gallon of frozen milk to his name. He stood at the gate wondering what he should tear down first en a man came along and inquired for Witherspoon. "Prepare to die, villain!" yelled Mr. Bowser in reply, and the next minute he was after the frightened man and the two were going up the street a the rate of thirty miles an hour. It was dark, and a cold wind blew and snowflakes fluttered down, and as Mrs. Bowser heard the yelling and the scrambling she sighed and mused:

Afraid He'd Change.

"Could you guess how old I am?" said the girl with the crow's feet, giving a little giggle,
"Why, you're about twenty-four," said the man who thought he ought to be kind to her.

"Remember," she said, with more giggles, "I only gave you one guess."-Yonkers Statesman. A Swindle.
