CARLETON BOYS FALL ON BATTLE FIELD

Sad News Comes of Many of Our Boys Dead and Wounded

Carleton county boys at the Front are getting their baptism of fire, and evidently are passing through the thick of the fray. Some are killed; Many are wounded.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hanning of Hartland received a cablegram announcing that their son Edward had been seriously wounded in the hip. He went with the 26th.

Mrs. L. M. Stephenson has received news that her son Edward, who went with the 55th, is in a hospital at Zettersport suffering from shell shock.

Other casualties reported are: Omer L. Shaw of East Coldstream, wounded.

S. Poitras, Grand Falls, wounded.

Sergt. Thomas Nason, Debec, wounded.

Fred M. Buck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Buck, shot in the chest by a German sniper. He signed with the 26th and was transferred to the 55th. He was 19 years of age.

Jack Chandler, son of H. A. Chandler, district engineer of the C.P.R. at Woodstock. He left with the 55th, and is 19 years of age.

Oliver Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archer Hanson. He went with the 55th.

Earl Moxon has been wounded on three different occasions since going to the front.

George E. Carr, of the Mounted Rifles, an East Glassville boy, wounded.

Lance Corporal Woodford George, who was killed in action in France recently was 21 years of age and a son of the late Burton George and the present Mrs. Wm. Dickson. He was born a native of Graytown, near Woodstock, and went overseas with the 55th Battalion, enlisting in this town. He was wounded several months ago, recovered and went back to the firing line about six weeks ago. His brother, William, was with him at the front and another brother, Theodore, is with the 104th in England.

Marich-Phillips

Bristol was en fete on the nineteenth inst. celebrating a September wedding of more than ordinary interest. The principals in the event were Edgar E. Marich formerly manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and Mona E. Phillips, youngest daughter of A. W. Phillips, one of the best known of the up-river merchants.

The handsome residence of the Phillips' was filled with the relatives and friends of the young couple who came to express their good wishes and to assist in magnifying the occasion generally. An artistic hand had fittingly arranged and decorated the interior of the

Victoria Observer

SUBSCRIBERS ATTENTION!

Failing to secure the right man to look after the business and news interests of The Victoria Observer, we are this week amalgamating that paper with The Carleton Observer. This is intended only as a temporary arrangement and the manager is still desirous of securing the services of an experienced newspaper man to be placed at Grand Falls.

Meantime the Carleton Observer will be made to include the full news service the Victoria edition has been giving, and it will be sent to all subscribers instead. The combined papers will have a local news service that will easily place it in the lead of all competitors, and also a circulation larger than any of the competing weeklies. This will surely appeal to both subscribers and advertisers.

house, the west parlor, set apart for the wedding service being a subject of comment by all. It was a beautiful in-door picture of the season, a shimmering sheen of autumn leaves, their red and gold drapings buttoned here and there with varicolored astors singly and in knots. The entire scheme was made subservient to a delicate tendril arch which divided the room and formed a leafy canopy beneath which the wedding party was to stand.

To the strains of the wedding march rendered by Crystal Davis, the bride, preceded by Florence Noble and Doris Phillips as flower girls, was conducted by her father to the side of her husband-to-be, who with E. Roy Hunter as groomsmen, was already in his place beneath the arch. Beulah Phillips of New York, sister of the bride, was in attendance as maid of honor. The bride wore a most becoming gown of white crepe de chene trimmed with lace and medallions, the latter from Malta in the far away Mediterranean a gift from the groom's family. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Phillips was attired in white voile with astres for flowers. Rev. George A. Ross of Florenceville performed the ceremony, the bride being given away by her father.

Luncheon was served following the ceremony, concluding in time for the guests to escort the newly-married couple to the train on which they left for a tour of Maritime Provinces.

Mr. and Mrs. Marich will reside in Bristol where they will be at home to their friends on and after Wednesday evening Oct. 4.

How to Live Long

Many ailments find their beginning in a torpid sluggish condition of liver, kidneys and bowels. As a matter of fact you can add years to the length of your life as well as comfort and happiness by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to keep these organs regular and active.

LIBERAL CHIEFTAIN URGES RECRUITS

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Points Out the Duties of Canadians in the Present Crisis

At Montreal, on Sept. 27, about 15,000 people gathered to hear the Liberal chieftain, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Alphonse Verville, M. P., and others in an open air meeting arranged by Mr. Verville, the well known labor representative in Parliament.

Sir Wilfrid's address was strongly patriotic. He made it clear that he still strongly favored the cause of Great Britain and her Allies in the war, and that he regarded it as the duty of French Canadians to assist therein.

Sir Wilfrid reiterated his declaration of some months ago: "When Great Britain is at war we are at war." Further, he said, "It is our duty to defend our country and the best place to defend it is beyond the frontiers of our country."

As to the Nationalist view that Canada should not take part in the wars of the English, Sir Wilfrid referred to the fact that Great Britain is fighting for France and Belgium, and said he, "if you will not fight for England or France, I say, to you, will you not fight for yourselves?"

He spoke of the German military policy to terrify populations, and justified the claim that the Allies are fighting for civilization against barbarism.

"I admire the young Canadians who are today fighting on the soil of France," said Sir Wilfrid, "and I do not want it said that we left the deliverance of France to the citizens of British origin. The honor of the French-Canadians must not tolerate the statement that we have not done what our co-citizens of the English race have done."

Sir Wilfrid expressed the fear that after the war militarism would be expanded in England, and he declared that if the military party in England prepared a system to include Canada, he would fight against it.

"I am anti-militarist, like the radicals of France," he said, "who today are fighting to keep France alive and integral. There is Major Asselin, who has gone to the front. He is anti-militarist, but did not hesitate to don the uniform, because he believed that he should make the sacrifice for the triumph of civilization."

"After this war there are men who will want to drag us into militarism, and I will fight that in the future as in the past. It is not in this direction that we Liberals want to put our efforts. We think that after the war there will be a transformation, but we want it to be directed to the best interests of civilization, and to the economic and social problems, and to establish the dignity of labor."
