consented that he should go over the bill with leave to make remarks and prepare amendments;" and the fact is no longer disputed that he secured and induced them to vote for those immortal clausesthe one forever proscribing slavery, the other encouraging religion, morality and education. Of course, this derogates in nothing from the credit previously due Thomas Jefferson. Thus was planted upon the border of Virginia a typical "New England Abolition town," which has retained its original characteristics through all the charges of a century. through all the changes of a century.

July 13 the pregnant "Ordinance of 1787" became a law; on the 27th congress authorized the sale of lands to the Ohio company, and on the 27th of October following the contract for 1,500,000 acres was signed in New York city, by Samuel Osgood and Arthur Lee for the treasury stepartment and Manasseh Cutler and Winthrop Sargent for the company. The price was $1 per agree, with large allowances for waste land at nominal figures. Dr. Cutler also secured an additional Dr. Cutler also secured an additional prant of two townships for a university, with a proviso that one mile square in each should be set apart for common schools and one for the support of religious institutions. This was probably the last measure directly appropriating na-tional treasure or land for religious pur-poses; for, though the Constitution does not in terms forbid it, the spirit of that clause has effectually done so, and ate support to certain sects as late as 1820. In Ohio, however, this little precedent was ignored; but the reservation of the section of the lands for universities and common schools has been a feature of all subsequent laworganizing territories. The Ohio company had, meanwhile, grown big enough to furnish took for much good laughter to the will.

now the most that can be secured, even at a remote Indian agency, is ground enough for a church building. As the Constitution does not forbid the states to pass laws establishing or maintaining religions, some of them continued a moder chusetia war were just then anxious to direct emigration to Maine, and many excellent squibs were almed at "Putnam's Paradise" and "Cutler's Indian Heaven." And for twenty years afterward eastern people were regaled with the same "chestnuts" which afty years later, were reserved for the Wabsach country. It was ironically published that fat hogs, ready roasted, were found walking about with knives and forks stuck in their backs; that one spring flowed pure brandy, and that a species of Ohio flax bore bits of linen instead of leaves. In sober earnest it was stated that the catinate was very enervating; that the cattle's horns were enervating; that the cattle's horns wer shaken off with ague, and that all the lat-ter part of each summer was a long battle with disease. One caricature represented a well dressed, ruddy man on a fat horse, with the legend, "I am going to Ohio;" while in the opposite direction was headed a wreck of humanity in rags, on a wretched beast, with the words, "I've been to Ohio."

wretched beast, with the words, "I've been to Ohio."

All this time the pioneers were struggling with fearful difficulties. The first company, under command of Maj. Haffield White, spent the winter of 1787-88 in building boats on the Youghiogheny, an affluent of the Monongahela in western Pennsylvania; early in 1788 the others crossed the mountains, and on April 1 the little band of forty-eight men embarked in three log canoes, a flat boat and a craft of fifty tons burden, called first the Adventure Galley, but afterward the Mayflower. On April 7 they anchored at the landing of the present Marietta and on April 8 got out their stuff and went to work. Fort Harmar still stood on the Muskingum opposite their location; but the ploneers soon constructed their own fact the Coconing of the present of the Monongahela in western dentity over a hillside will hold the snow in the wheat, and the stalks will not interfere with harvesting.

If open, outdoor feed-troughs are turned over at night they will not be filled with snow and ice in the morning. the pioneers soon constructed their own fort—the Campus Martius, an elegant block house, surrounded by a strong palisade. The block house was 180 feet square, containing seventy-two rooms, each eighteen feet square; and it was designed to shelter in case of processity. signed to shelter, in case of necessity, 900 people. The Delaware and Mingo Indians were there before them; but long before the Indian's day the site had been the Mecca or the Jerusalem of that far more mysterious race to whom scholars have given the vague name of "Mound Build-ers." given the vague name of "Mound Builders." The most striking of the mounds left by that people are still preserved, and give an antione charm to Marietta.

Territorial lovernor Arthur St. Clair, and Judges James M. Varnum and Samuel H. Parsons arrived within the weeks. Mal. Winthrop Sargent was appointed secretary, and on the 15th of unitarial government was formally that the first civil court was opened of September. The long and terrials indian war checked the growth of the oldony; thirty persons were killed in the unimediate vicinity. "Mad Anthony" We ended the war in 1795, and therea or Marietta grew with a regular and mathful growth. Primary schools were established in the Campus Martius; a school house followed soon after the neace, and in 1800 the Muskingum acad my first high school in Onio, was the St. Clair, and with Commodore Abraham Whipple in command, went out by New Orleans to Hayana, and thence on ocean travel. Her commander was the leader of the Rhode Islanders who burned the British schooner Gaspee in Narragansett bay. Such were the men who founded Marietta. And yet they had a hard fight to keep slavery out of Ohio. When the constitu-tional convention met at Chilicothe in 1802, a clause was reported allowing slav-ery for a limited time, and on the first test it had in the convention a majority of one. There is some unpleasant evidence to the effect that Thomas Jefferson and William Henry Harrison favored this partial repeal of the anti-slavery clause in the ordinance. Judge Ephraim Cutler, of Marietta, by an earnest speech, secured the one vote needed to defeat the measure. In 1835 Marietta college was established, and is now one of the most prominent colleges of the west, with some 200 students and a library of over 25,000 volumes. The site of Marietta retains all its natural beauty, while around it extends a highly cultivated region, now as healthful as any in the country, and filled with an intelligent, moral and public spirited popula tion.

Lonsdale Going North.

Nearly everybody will remember Lord Lonsdale, the sprig of English nobility, who sometime ago made such a parade over his protege. Violet Cameron, the English burlesque actress, in New York and elsewhere on this continent. The jealousy of the noble lord felt by De Bensaude, the actress' husband, and the sensational newspaper articles the whole time he is not managing a va-slety actress. He proposes now to explore the north -to risk his precious self in Arctic regions, and, if possible, to succeed in those fields of ex-LORD LONSDALE.

Vision is a Pair of Axis Cut Pebbles Celebrated

The frauds that have been perpetrated on the spectacle wearing sublic by most spectacle dealers and peddlars by giving assumed and ancy names to ordinary glass, speaks for the ignorance of the public generally, in the all-important subject of the preservation of sight. there are only two articles from which the spectacles leases can be manufactured viz: Pebble and glass-call glass by any other name, it still remains glass. Pebble, on the other hand, is from nature's. own manufactory. It is a natural crystal found generally in freestone formation, and is harder than the ruby and emerald, and nearly as hardas the diamond. The Pebble is not more or less than a transparent stone, cut by aid of diamend dust, and the greatest amount of power is placed immediately over the centre of the grain found in all pebble. It will give to the spectacle wearer the coolness. freshness and a pleasant feeling that the ordinary spectacle lenses cannot by any possibility impart. All spectacles and eyeglasses are stamped B.
