Dr. Curtis in supporting the resolution grouped his logical remarks into several sub-divisions— the Federal Parliaments having no ontrol over the minor parliament, the doption of the system being purely ystem of government based on the anadian system would settle Ireland, omplete our Imperial defence and orporate the Empire, its trade migraaddresses also sustained the resol

Capt. Kean, who was leader for the negative, brought forth some very tell-ing points to show why an adoption of the resolution would be unwise. It would be unwise and of unsound policy, he thought, to adopt this system into the British Empire, and showed that Newfoundland would not be benefited by the act. The debate was listened to with much interest, and Capt. Kean's supporters ably bore him out in his contentions.
