LONDON - CANADA.

JOHN CAMERON, President and Managing Dir.

C. P. in his heaven.

And right with the world.

—Browning.

London, Saturday, July 10, 1897.

The electors of Ontario will certainly not buy Mr. Whitney's "pig in a poke."

Mr. J. S. Willison, managing editor of the Globe, will take his first trip to the old world next month. He will no doubt enjoy his well-deserved holiday.

An Ottawa correspondent says that Hon. Mr. Tarte, minister of public works, will within the next few days visit and inspect a number of harbor improvements now in progress in Ontario.

It shakes one's confidence in humanity something to read that the author of "Darling, I am growing old; silver threads among the gold" has been taken into court for failing to support his wife.

"After all," asks the Ottawa Journal, "Why should not Sir Wilfrid be prime minister of the British empire yet?" Yes, why not? One of these days the Canadian nation will be a very much more influential portion of the British empire than it has been in the past.

Cincinnati city council has recognized the rights of the bicyclists to fair treatment on the public highways. It has passed an ordinance providing for a dry strip of from four to six feet wide in the middle of the road, and imposing a fine on any one who violates the law.

The Hamilton Herald, which is not Liberal in its predilections, says that when Mr. Whitney talked at Dundas he spoke the same piece as he had spoken at other points of Ontario, "but," adds our contemporary, "somehow it fails to convince Mr. Whitney's hearers that Whitney will win, or to show them why he should win."

The Welsh version of the jubilee hymn is a most awe-inspiring production. Here is the first verse:

Dy deyrnas sydd, a Breenin mawr,
Er dyddian tragwyddoldeb;
O flaen dy Faine conauan aur
A deifi dy Saint mewn undeb
Neudian ddiar modorol ych
Gan goran p e r ddadseiniant;
O gad i'w blant i agosau
A cwyu eu hawerth molaent.

The great trick for the non-Welshman is to repeat more than one line at a time without becoming tongue-tied.

The Investors' Guardian, of London, England, thus refers to the outlook in Canada: "Apparently Canada is to show the States the way to prosperity at any rate, while the republic is still laboring uneasily amidst general depression, trusts and tariffs, something of a boom is developing in the Dominion. The over-sea trade of the colony, both export and import, is showing great elasticity, and city men and speculators are already busily at work on the mining potentialities of British Columbia. These, among other things, point to a great revival in Canadian affairs." The possibilities for a progressive and prosperous future for Canada are certainly many.

Nearly a month ago The Advertiser reported the likelihood of the Wabash sending its freight over the G. T. R., as well as its fast passenger service. The news is now confirmed, but it will be a month or two before the freight passes over the G. T. R. system. The reason lies in the fact that the Wabash has for years had an agreement with the Michigan Central to send its freight by that line, and it does not expire for some time yet. At its expiry, the Wabash freight will likely go over the Air line, that arrangement enabling the G. T. R. management to more fully devote their fine track through this city to passenger traffic.

Here is a description from a recent letter of a burning day in Australia: "It was more like a revelation from another world yesterday than a phenomenon hot day, for when morning broke the town was literally a huge oven, over which the skies hung inverted in flaming sheets of brass. The streets were yellow tornadoes of whirling dust, whilst waves of heat, that seemed almost visible, met the discomfited wayfarer everywhere; and very early in the day many people emphatically professed to have solved the problem of whether life was worth living. The wind was from the north, and the heat from everywhere, and towards 7 o'clock the rays of the sun, which could only now and then be seen, showing fiery red from the blinding haze that enveloped it, beat down still more fiercely. At that hour the thermometer registered 103 degrees of heat. In the shade, whilst in the sun the mercury showed 118 degrees. The wind was raging along with great velocity, and when matters were at their most unendurable pass the force of it was registered as 55 miles an hour."

This should reconcile us to the comparatively mild, though unusual, hot spell we have been called on to endure recently.

Sir Richard.

We have good reasons for stating that Sir Richard Cartwright will not go to Great Britain as high commissioner, but will remain a member of the Dominion Government. Sir Richard would make a good high commissioner, but his services as a member of the cabinet are invaluable.

The Fast Steamship Line.

Harper's Weekly (New York) commenting on the new Canadian fast steamship line says:

"The expectation in connection with the line, at Ottawa, is that not only will it secure a large part of the passenger trade of the Orient, which now goes from London and Southampton, but that it will cut into the trans-Atlantic passenger trade of New York and Boston. It has been urged ever since the idea was first mooted that Montreal is as convenient a port for a large part of the United States as New York, and that with a fast and luxurious line of steamers it will inevitably become a rival to New York as a trans-Atlantic passenger port."

The Canadian line, sailing for hundreds of miles in sight of land, along the mighty St. Lawrence, is certainly by far the most attractive route. When the tourist goes by way of New York, he is out of sight of land in a couple of hours. It is gratifying to know that though the new line costs Canada $250,000 a year less than the late Conservative government of Canada had resolved to grant another company, there has been no difficulty in financing the enterprise. The money was provided by British capitalists as soon as it was asked for.

Everybody Has Work in Britain.

Mr. John Stark, president of the Baptist home mission board, and a leading Toronto business man, who has recently returned from a trip through England, informed the Mail and Empire that apparently there was not a man in the old country out of work who was desirous of employment, and this appeared to be the case equally in England, Scotland and Ireland. This is a condition of affairs in marked contrast with that which prevailed for some time in the United States and other protectionist countries, where very large numbers of workmen have been idle and are so still. In Great Britain the conditions are steadier than over the border, because the natural trend of trade is not interfered with by governmental restrictions. The progress of the United Kingdom, in the last half century, has been phenomenal. Mr. Mulhall, the eminent statistician, prints a striking summary of the progress made in Britain during the Queen's reign. His figures given below are relative, not actual, the 100 representing "par," and the others the ratio of increase:

Population 137.0 to 157.0 1897.
Commerce 100 480 623
Shipping 100 322 507
Mining 100 310 602
Textile manufactures 100 252 369
Hardware manufactures 100 459 569
Agriculture 100 162 351
Revenue 100 120 105
Wealth 100 148 195

Here is Sir Charles H. Tupper's picture of Britain's condition:

"What is the whole policy of the civilized markets of the world, steadily and every year finding their outlets in the vast markets of the world, they spend millions on their navy, and millions on their army, to force their wares and their goods and their merchandise into the uncivilized markets of the world—which they are endeavoring to occupy, to settle and control."

In view of the facts Sir Charles Tupper ought to apologize for his rash and ill-founded statements.

Canada's Industrial Progress.

There are many indications that business is improving throughout the Dominion. New opportunities to invest capital are springing up on every side.

At Guelph, the Linsseed Oil Company has been formed. It will employ, to begin with, 20 men.

The Standard Chemical Company, of Toronto, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $80,000, to manufacture chemicals, wood pulp, etc.

The Canadian Paper Supply Company, Montreal, is being incorporated with a capital stock of $15,000, to manufacture stamp canceling machines, and accessories pertaining thereto.

The Brantford Machine Tool Company, Brantford, Ont., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $150,000, to manufacture machinery, castings, machine supplies, etc.

The Canadian Manufacturer says that the Perth, Ont., canning factory has proven such a success that an enlargement is now necessary.

The Albion Iron Works, Victoria, B. C., have recently greatly enlarged their works.

The Halifax Chronicle states that an English company will build a factory for the manufacture of terra cotta in Halifax county, N. S.

WOULDN'T IT?

From the Atlanta Constitution. Now wouldn't it be nice On a plunging ship of ice To sail away where Arctic waters roll! To fare and fare away Where it's freezing every day, And hang our summer straw hats on the pole!

To present our tickets there, Where the dancing polar bear Gives the only entertainment—without price.

To shake his frigid paw And to give him our applause In a comfortable theater of ice!

A MELTING APPEAL.

Hamilton Herald.

"If people who have the faculty of 'freezing with a glance' will come this way, they may find something to their advantage."

A GOOD OMEN.

Montreal Herald.

Shipments of cattle from Montreal last month were larger than for any corresponding month in five years. The export trade is expanding in all branches.

POINTS FOR BUSINESS MEN.

OH, KAM, KAM!

Belleville Sun.

An exchange claims that there are two kinds of women—those who think it is nicer to kiss a lot of men once, and those who think it is nicer to kiss a lot of men lots of times. A visit to some Canadian summer resort would lead to the suspicion that still another kind exists—those who think it is nicer to kiss a lot of men lots of times.

THE WIFE IN RUSSIA.

St. Louis Republic.

"This is a curious custom you Americans have of referring to your wives by their husbands' names," observed Glanvock Kaplon, an intelligent Russian traveler. "I suppose the Americans hold his wife in as high esteem as the Russian holds his, but if at home I should speak of my better half as Mrs. Kaplon, my friends would at once conclude that my domestic relations were not as pleasant as they should be, and that I was the victim of a legal separation. When I first heard an American speak of his wife as Mrs. Jones, for example, I felt almost intolerable. I wish you a good morning." Like a ghost Bella wandered pale and spiritless about the house for a couple of days. Finally, she went to her mother, and bending down to kiss the face that looked vacantly up at her, murmured, "Mother, I have sacrificed all but thee." And with a soft "Good-bye," she left the room. Five hours later she returned, the door was open, and found the tub filled with water. In it was the girl dead.

THE BICYCLE COMES DOWN.

[Chicago Times-Herald.]

A heavy cut in the price of a commodity that has come into such universal favor as the bicycle, the manufacture of which employs millions of dollars of capital and much of the best business brains of the country, is a matter of such general interest that it may well engage the attention of those who study trade conditions.

The effect of the bicycle business upon general industrial prosperity has been a subject of much speculation and much controversy. While certain mercantile interests deplore the increasing tendency of humanity to invest its savings in wheels, there are others who contend that this mammoth industry has mollified the asperities of industrial depression by distributing vast amounts of capital and by furnishing employment to hundreds of thousands of skilled mechanics.

Whether the bicycle has been a winged distributor of prosperity or has been a swift messenger of impoverishment, it is certain that the decision of Col. Pope to cut the price of the Columbia will cause a revolution in the bicycle business. The conservative character of the Pope Company and the tenacity with which it has clung to the figure as the standard price of a standard wheel the world over, makes the announcement of the cut all the more sensational.

While hundreds of firms have been engaged ostensibly in manufacturing $100 wheels they have made no secret of the fact that they have also been supplying $50 and $75 wheels in great quantities to meet the demands of the trade. The key to the situation is found in one of the interviews published in this paper in which the manufacturers declared that they had been making $100 wheels all along, but that they "never let anyone get out of the store because he had only $50."

While some dealers will continue to adhere to the old price there is no doubt that the old-fashioned prediction that the $100 wheel is doomed is about to be fulfilled. With increased and constantly growing competition, increased popular demand for cheaper wheels and increased mechanical facilities for enlarging and perfecting the product, it is not possible to hold a high-grade bicycle at the price it obtained ten years ago when the business was in its infancy.

Salt and Its Properties.

Used in washing the hair it will prevent the hair from falling out. A teaspoonful of salt in a lamp will make kerosene oil give a brighter light.

Added to a bucket of water it forms a remarkably effective fire extinguisher.

A handful of rock salt added to the bath is the next best thing to an ocean dip.

Damp salt will remove the discoloration of tea and the like in dishes that have been carefully washed.

New calicoes soaked in a strong solution of salt for an hour before washing will retain their color better.

As a dentifrice salt and water will not only cleanse but whiten the teeth and will harden the gums.

When broiling steak a pinch or two of salt thrown on the fire will quench the flames arising from the dripping fat.

A weak solution is good for sore throat, to be used as a gargle and this is still better if a few grains of red pepper are added.

Ink stains may be removed by the use of moistened salt. When comes discolored remove it and use a fresh supply until no color remains.

Dissolved in water and snuffed up the nostrils it is of use in curing catarrh, but when chronic its use must be persisted in night and morning for several months.

A little salt in raw or boiled starch will prevent the iron from sticking and make the starch whiter. If the iron is rough lay some salt on a piece of brown paper, lay a warm bath with Citicura Soap, gentle applications of Citicura Soap, and after a few days the iron will be bright and smooth.

A bag of salt heated and applied over a painful spot is often very efficacious in allaying pain, especially those of a colicky nature, in the stomach and bowels, says a writer in the Boston Traveler. A weak solution of salt in water is a good remedy for light indigestion, especially that characterized by a sense of weight and oppression.

Column of Casualties.

Lovely Young Girl Dies Broken-Hearted.

A Montreal Man Shoots an Abandoned Woman and Himself.

A Lunatic at Halifax Kills Another With a Blow From a Bed Slab—Two Men Drowned.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 10.—Behind the death of Miss Bella Lloyd, who was found drowned in a bathtub, at her mother's home, is a sad story of sacrifice of hope, happiness and, at last, life itself to shield her mother's weakness from the eyes of the world. The girl was only 20 years of age, but she managed the boarding house, called the Dudley Arms, owned by her mother, where they lived. The mother was always kept out of sight, few of the boarders having seen her in a number of years. Alcohol and drugs had made her a physical and mental wreck. Finally there came one who filled the girl's idea of manhood. He did not understand why he never saw the mother, of whom she spoke with such gentle love. She would say to him that her mother was an invalid and saw no one; that on the wedding day he would meet her. Shame, love, fear and pride kept the poor girl silent, and of the real truth her betrothed was kept in ignorance, until one day a rumor reached his ear. The girl saw her doom, as he strode into her presence, his face hard with anger.

"Is it true?" he demanded, pointing upward to the room where the inebriate mother was hidden from sight. Her eyes told the tale as she burst into tears.

"You have lied to me," he cried brutally, "and an alcoholic mother is intolerable. I wish you a good morning." Like a ghost Bella wandered pale and spiritless about the house for a couple of days. Finally, she went to her mother, and bending down to kiss the face that looked vacantly up at her, murmured, "Mother, I have sacrificed all but thee." And with a soft "Good-bye," she left the room. Five hours later she returned, the door was open, and found the tub filled with water. In it was the girl dead.

KILLED AT SEATTLE.

St. Thomas, July 10.—Barney Padon, M. C. R. conductor, has received a telegram conveying the sad information that his brother James had been killed at Seattle, Wash. The deceased left the city about ten years ago. He was a brakeman on the M. C. R. here. About three years ago he was on a visit to his relatives here.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY IN MONTREAL.

Montreal, Que., July 10.—The east end of Montreal was the scene last night of a shocking double tragedy. A young French-Canadian named Xavier Charbonneau, 25 years old, and a mulder by trade, shot and killed Rosina Therrien, 40 years old, and then committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart. The tragedy was the result of a quarrel between Charbonneau and a woman named Melinda Ouellette, 35 years old, who was a respectable house, and having had a dispute with Charbonneau, she put him out. Yesterday afternoon they did not wish to have anything to do with him. Charbonneau then pulled out a revolver and shot her. KILLED BY A LUNATIC.

Halifax, N. S., July 10.—There was a horrible tragedy in the Annapolis county jail here yesterday morning. An inmate named Barry attacked his room-mate, another inmate, and was killed by him senseless with one blow of a bedstead slat, and then beating out his brains. The latter was later taken to Yarmouth, and the murderer to Annapolis.

TWO MEN DROWNED.

Two men named Daniel and Shea, who left Pictou Island for Pictou in an open boat two days ago, are supposed to have been drowned. Their boat has been found adrift, but the occupants are missing.

MURDER AND ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Waverley, N. Y., July 10.—A tragedy occurred here last evening, as a result of which H. Masterson, a resident of the village, is dead, and his wife is expected to live. Masterson and his wife lived on Chemung street, and had frequent quarrels. Last night before last Mrs. Masterson became afraid of her husband, and notified the police. They responded, and took a revolver and a knife from her. Since then Mrs. Masterson has kept away from her husband, being afraid of his life. Yesterday afternoon Masterson called to see her. He had been drinking. She refused to see him, but he insisted, stating that he wanted to kiss her. At his request she opened the door of the house, whereupon Masterson drew a revolver and fired at her. The bullet took effect in her side, shoulder and breast. Masterson then turned the weapon upon himself and fired the remaining three shots into his shoulder, breast and arm.

A TORONTO GIRL'S SUICIDE.

Toronto, July 10.—Maggie Gammage, a 17-year-old girl who was engaged to be married to William Ryan, committed suicide here. Her parents discovered that she was in trouble, they called to see her. He had been drinking. She refused to see him, but he insisted, stating that he wanted to kiss her. At his request she opened the door of the house, whereupon Masterson drew a revolver and fired at her. The bullet took effect in her side, shoulder and breast. SOUTH AMERICA'S LARGEST CITY.

Those schoolbooks which yet set down Rio de Janeiro as the largest city in South America will have to be corrected. Another city, lying far to the southward, has gone ahead of it in our times—the rapidly growing city of Buenos Ayres, in the Argentine Republic. The population of that city is twice as great as it was twelve years ago; it is now 700,000. There are only four, or we may say, three cities of larger population in the United States. Buenos Ayres has rushed forward, and that very steadily. A few years ago it began to gain upon Rio, which is now a good distance in the rear, perhaps 100,000 souls. The cause of the extraordinary growth of Buenos Ayres is immigration. One-half of its inhabitants are Europeans, the greater number of whom are Italians. The immigration of Italians into the city for a year past has been very great. The growth of the commerce, the industries, the wealth, and the prosperity of the city has been very remarkable than that of its population. The schoolbooks must hereafter place Buenos Ayres first among the cities of South America.

Now my nerves are strong, and I feel healthy and vigorous, and can recommend them as a splendid tonic for weak nerves, heart trouble, etc."
