Mr. Sullivan knows how it is him-self. He realizes how Love makes the world go round—very round—as well as spurring a failing man to valorous deeds at a critical moment! He knows ecause he has been there, and of this writes with intensest sentiment:
"When Mitchell was almost too weak to run, fighting with me in France his second put his head through the and Woman ropes and yelled: "Think of your wife, Charlie; think of your little babies at home crying for bread." It was all a lie, for Mitchell's father, is rich and ais children could never want; but it nelped Mitchell wonderfully, and in ess than a minute he spiked me, driving the steel spikes into the bone of my instep. He didn't mean to do it, it was only his enthusiasm, and I con-tented myself with telling him to be a gentleman and stop splicing me. But t shows what a little touch of tender feeling will do." Again Mr. Sullivan's phraseology be comes tantalizing. Whether he means that Mitchell was encouraged because he remembered he had a rich father This is something to ponder! We are
