E. A.'S LATIST CASE.

He Objects to Being Called a Renegade And Traitor. A very funny case was tried before Mr Baxter yesterday. Upon complaint of E.A. Macdonald. Frank Lloyd appeared to answer to the charge of using grossly insulting and abusive language towards the plaintiff. E.A. deposed that on May 4 he entered the Con servative committee rooms in Queen-street east. He saluted those present and tendered his services for the Conservative candidate, when the defendant made use of the terms complained of, calling him "a renegade, sneak and traitor," "a turncoat" and other unpleasant and impolite names.

In reply to a question from Mr. Holmes, who appeared for the defendant, E. A. said that he did not consider himself a renegade. He admitted that he had made speeches advocating annexation, but claimed he had only exercised the sacred right of free speech. Mr. Holmes could not make him believe, however, that Lloyd had only exercised the same privilege in expressonly exercised the same privilege in express-ing his opinion of Macdonald. The cross-examination of E. A. occasioned consider-

Mr. Baxter delivered judgment as follows:
"If this had occurred on the street it might have led to a breach of the peace; but it having occurred in a room to which both plaintiff and defendant had equal right, I think the case should be dismissed."

The result was not at all to E. A.'s liking, and he went away with a sorrowful look.

The Nevertheless Municipal Reign. Editor World: For some time past there has been an impression throughout the city that his Worship the Mayor has been playing the role of the obstructionist. This the Mayor emphatically denies, and appears to be honest in his contention. At the mass meeting in Dingman's Hall last week Re Ashbridge's Bay, the Mayor—who acted as chairman—stated distinctly that those who said he was opposed to the wishes of the citizens, and of those in the East End re the reclamation of the Bay, and the location of the Isolation Hospital, were disciples of Ananias. This declaration, taken in consideration with his course of action in his public capacity, is difficult of comprehension. Verdict of Accidental Death, Coroner Johnson yesterday held an in-quest in the case of the accidental shooting of the boy Edwin Wood on May 24. There was but little evidence and that pointed conclusively to the purely accidental character of the shooting. Frost, who is a tall boy, was standing looking upward, while the smaller lad passed in front of him and touched the gun, moving the trigger, which is exceedingly loose. The jury, in accordance with the facts, brought in a verdict of "accidental death by shooting."

A Popular Hotel. There are few hotels in Canada that have gained widespread popularity in so short a time as the Elliott House, Toronto.
