FALSE IMPRISONMENT IN ITALY

Italy has her Beck case, with circumstances even more painful than the famous English miscarriage of justice.

In 1882 Lieutenant Pasquini, one night at home left his overcoat hanging in the hall with six thousand francs of regimental money in the pocket. When he returned the money was gone, but he hesitated to accuse any one, and said nothing of the matter until the money was needed. Then it was too late. He was court-martialed for embezzlement, and condemned to ten years' imprisonment, with the loss of civil rights, and was degraded from the army. The sentence was carried out, the degradation being sustained by him with a courage which won admiration even from those who considered him guilty. As he was being taken to a picket of his comrades to prison he saw pass a detachment of his beloved Bersaglieri, and then, and only then, tears coursed down his cheeks. To the astonishment of all, the Bersaglieri stopped short, while the Lieutenant in command rushed forward, and, embracing Pasquini, exclaimed: "Courage, dear innocent one!"

As time went on the many who had never believed in the guilt of the unfortunate man were reinforced by others, but notwithstanding many efforts, it was never possible to prove him innocent. Now, forty-three years

IF I KNOW HE LOVES ME

Shall Not be Lawful for any Young Man to Attempt to Court any Young Woman Before he is 24.

New Orleans, June 19.—Representative Smith of Belgium has introduced in the State Legislature a bill, applying only to whites, which provides: It shall be unlawful for any young man to attempt to court any young woman before he is twenty-four years of age. Before making such attempt he shall inform the parents or guardians of the woman he proposes to court of his intention to do so. He shall make affidavit before a Justice of the Peace that his courtship is in good faith.

It shall be unlawful for widowers over the age of forty years to attempt to court any woman under the age of eighteen beyond the confines of the parish of their residence. Summary fine.

Murderer Whipped Daily With Thorns; Walled in Living Tomb

Awful Doom of Slayer of 36 Women—Cobbler Who Was to be Crucified Meets a Terrible Fate

Tangier, June 23.—With such details of fiendish cruelty that they cannot be fully realized, Mohammed Meskewi the arch murderer of Marakesh, has been walled up alive.

It was this same Meskewi who was to have been crucified for his terrible crimes. It is known that he murdered not fewer than thirty-six young women—and who was saved from that fashion of execution by the outcry of the resident foreign officials.

THE ARCH-MURDERER'S CRIMES.

Meskewi was a cobbler and public letter writer. Associated with him in his crimes was an old woman seventy years of age named Annah. Many girls of the city disappeared in the last days of April and the parents of one young woman traced her to the cobbler's shop. Annah was put to the torture and confessed.

She told that the girls, who came to dictate letters, were treated to drugged wine and then beheaded. Twenty decapitated bodies were found in a deep pit under the shop and sixteen more in the gutter near the torture and Meskewi confessed. By an ancient Moorish custom he was condemned to be crucified.

His crucifixion was set for May 2, but this form of punishment, on up because of the foreign demand, and it was announced that Meskewi would be beheaded. His death by the still more awful process of immurement shows that the Moroccan authorities "blinded the eyes" of the foreigners.

Meskewi was kept in the Marakesh jail until outside attention was still, and then, on May 12th, his torture began.

Daily he was led into the market place and whipped with switches of the thorny acacia. The cobbler was stripped to the waist, and while two assistants held the victim arms outstretched, the city executioners laid on the spiked rods.

Ten strokes were given each day and each stroke drew blood. The number of strokes were kept down because Meskewi was an old man and the people of Marakesh had no idea of letting him die too easily.

MOST MERCIFUL CRUELTY.

After each flogging the cobbler's back was toughened and anointed with oil, so that he might be fit for the next day's ordeal.

So the daily whippings went on and when it was seen that despite all care Meskewi was falling into exhaustion it was decided to carry out the supreme sentence. This was that he be walled up alive in the public market place.

The currier who brings this news from Marakesh to Tangier asserts that the order of execution bore the Sultan's own signature, and the fact that the sentence was carried out in the great square of the city and the full view of the populace shows that the officials of Marakesh knew the awful program would not be interfered with.

The day of execution was set for Monday, June 11, that being the Marakesh market day. The news of the execution had been spread and the market place was thronged with thousands of Moroccans, who squatted in the blazing sunlight and waited for the ghastly show to commence.

A death by walling up alive had not been seen in Marakesh for many years, but there were those who told others that victims had been known sometimes to live for a whole week, and so the good news spread and the people brought their provisions and the caravansaries were crowded.

Just inside the jail, where Meskewi was confined stands the chief bazaar. It has very thick walls, and in one of these, facing the market place, two masons dug a hole six feet high, two feet wide and two feet deep. Meskewi was very thin and these dimensions gave the doomed man quite a free space and some little air, for just as his fellow-townsmen would not let him slip away by too much flogging, so they did not intend to smother him too quickly.

About three feet up two staples with chains were fixed in the back of the recess in the wall and two more staples with chains were attached. The purpose of these was to keep the victim erect so that he might not lie down out of sight of the crowd.

Meskewi had not been told of his fate and when he was brought out of the prison on Monday morning he thought he was being led forth to his daily whipping.

HE SEES HIS LIVING TOMB.

As soon as he saw the expectant thousands, however, and heard their howls of hate he knew that his day had come. Then he saw the hole dug in the wall, and, being an old man, he knew what that meant. He had taken his whippings with fatalistic fortitude, hoping that he might die under the thorns, but when he was dragged toward the upright tomb he struggled with his jailers and screamed for mercy.

Screaming, he was thrust into the recess in the thick wall, and, screaming, he was chained up. There he was left for a while, for there was plenty of time. The masons stood aside and the crowd struggled and fought to get in the front rank, scoffing in derision at the screaming old man and pelting him with the frightful filth and offal of the market place.

Then the masons came forward and very deliberately laid on the first course of the masonry. The stones and mortar rose to Meskewi's knees and then the chief jailer came forward and gave him bread and water.

The masons again stood aside and again the crowd's jeers and his howls of the victim.

So it went on, course by course, stone by stone, water and bread, until only Meskewi's screaming head was seen. The last stone was thrust in place, and Meskewi's living tomb was completed.

But the crowd was not yet satisfied. Meskewi was not dead, and the throng pressed forward and kept quiet to hear the muffled screams for mercy that came out of the wall. Every time Meskewi screamed the crowd yelled.

Night came, braziers were lit, coffee was made and still Meskewi screamed. Tuesday, June 12, came in, and the market place was as crowded as ever, and Meskewi was still screaming for mercy.

No it went on all day and all night. Only Meskewi's screams were growing fainter. When Wednesday came those close up to the wall reported that the dead-head was only moaning. Finally the morning stopped and we crowded cursed Meskewi for dying so soon, and the delayed business of the market was resumed.

No Had Mohammed Meskewi expired his crime.

OF INTEREST TO PHILATELISTS

The Grecian, Italian and French governments are issuing new postage stamps, which show a distinct improvement over former achievements in philatelic art.

The Greek publication is in the form of a series, with designs intended to symbolize the Olympic games. They display, respectively, a discus thrower; a jumper with jumping weights; Victory with a small caduceus; Atlas, having changed places with Hercules, supporting the heavens (represented by eight stars and a moon); Heracles and Antaeus wrestling; wrestlers, with a view of the Acropolis; Victory holding a cock typical of cock-fighting; a group of runners; victor of torch race offerings; sacrifice. Every stamp of the series bears the words "Olympic Games" and "Athens, 1907," in Greek characters.

An interesting circumstance is connected with the issue of the new Italian stamp. It is the reproduction of the portrait of Victor Emmanuel III, which a canvasser of the manufacturers of souvenir postal cards has proved to be the most popular among Italians. With the new 10-centime stamp France for the first time adopts a postage which has long been in vogue in the United States; that is, the rate of 2 cents per half ounce for domestic letters. The new 10-centime red stamp takes the place of the old 15-centime stamp. In regard to the design of the cover upon its face, it is interesting to note that she spreads the seed against the wind, and not with it, as was erroneously depicted on the old stamp—New York Times.

A Will on Ice.
The strangest will on record is that of a Connecticut clergyman who broke through the ice of a certain pond finding that he was unable to get out upon the ice and realizing that he had but a short time to live because of the bitter cold, he took his knife and wrote his will on the smooth surface of the ice. It was found, duly sworn to and recorded as his last will and testament.

Offhand.
"Some grocers," remarked the customer, "have an offhand way of weighing sugar, but I notice you're not one of them."

"Offhand way? How do you mean?" asked the grocer.

"I noticed you kept your hand on the scales just now while you measured out five pounds for me."

Simplety.
Only small souls assume exclusive airs. The more truly a man the more simple do we find him. Rarely do we come in contact with a person from whom we may not receive something if we meet him on the plane of a kindly human sympathy. It all lies in our innate feeling.

A Frod.

BAPTIST MINISTER STABBED

WHILE ON HIS WAY TO CHURCH

Port Hope, June 22.—Word has just been received here of a startling affair on Sunday night near Baillieboro, a small village about twelve miles north of Port Hope. Rev. O. E. Nichols, formerly of Toronto, but now pastor of the Baptist church at Baillieboro, while driving to church, was met by a man on foot and, without warning, was stabbed twice in the left arm.

Luckily the clergyman raised his arm in time to guard the blow. The blade pierced his shoulder and glanced to the inner joint of the elbow, inflicting a nasty gash. The minister slipped up his horse and escaped to a nearby residence, where a search party was formed, but no trace has been found of the assailant, nor can any reason be assigned for the strange act.

TO FIGHT 151 DUELS

Hungarian Sportsman Insults Bank Clerk and all Latter's Friends For Summer.

Vizma, June 24.—Richard Zombory a well known Hungarian sportsman, residing at Budapest, has placed himself in the position of having to fight one hundred and fifty-one duels as the result of refusing to accept a challenge from a bank clerk whom he insulted.

On receipt of a challenge from the clerk, M. Zombory sent back word that the clerk's social position precluded giving him the usual satisfaction. Thereupon one hundred and fifty officials of the bank challenged him because of their offended colleague and promptly challenged M. Zombory.

His hundred and four seconds and a meeting last night and arranged for the duels to be fought with pistols. The meetings will take place on Sunday night, one after another, until satisfaction is secured, one bullet being exchanged in each duel.

M. Zombory's doctor, Casper, was the cause of the challenge. He hit a bank clerk named Johna Szuecs, slightly tearing his leg. M. Szuecs rallied at the dog, for which M. Zombory, it is alleged, insulted M. Szuecs. This is followed next day by the challenge.

M. Szuecs and the other challengers belong to the Hungarian Land Mortgage Bank. The 151 challenges will stand in rows, formed in military fashion, and lots will be drawn in order to ascertain who will fight the first duel with Zombory.

Unknown Friend

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done this toward making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by S. N. Ware.

The long hot summer thins the blood, and leaves you weary, worn and listless. Nothing can cure this summer fag except Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—because they actually make new blood and thus strengthen every organ and every tissue in the body.

Every dose fills you with new strength, new energy, new life. Purge the pills only weaken you more. Common tonics only stimulate for the moment. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood, and nothing but good, pure rich red blood can brace you to stand the summer. That is why you should take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now. Mr. W. J. Norfolk, White Horse, Yukon Territory, says: "I am thirty-five years of age, and have been an athlete who scarcely knew the meaning of illness. Last year, however, my health gave way. I became nervous, did not sleep well and grew as weak as a kitten. It seemed as though I was completely worn out. I tried several so-called tonics, but it was only a waste of money, for they did me no good. Finally I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they put me on my feet again, and gave me new health and strength."

Every weak and easily tired man and woman will find new health, new strength and new energy through a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They cure all blood and nerve diseases like aneurism, nervous exhaustion, headaches and backaches, indigestion, neuritis, rheumatism and the special ailments that afflict most growing girls and women of mature years. Consumption Divorce Cause

Los Angeles, Cal., June 18.—Because his husband is suffering from tuberculosis Mrs. Charlotte T. Scammell was granted a divorce by Judge Bowdell in the Superior Court. The woman is also allowed to resume her maiden name of Boyle.

According to evidence brought out today Scammell was closely interrogated by his sweetheart previous to the marriage regarding his physical condition.

Mrs. Scammell says her husband denied at the time that he was tubercular, but it shortly after the wedding the disease developed. The decision is regarded as of great importance.

MARTIAL LAW

A South African Commissioner Who Won High Praise Indeed.

It is generally believed that martial law is an unmitigated evil, and that it cannot be administered with any success. An interesting contradiction comes from Natal. Mr. R. C. Lloyd, Resident Magistrate and Civil Commissioner, has been in office at Barkly East for the past four years, and had a good deal to do with the administration of martial law. Recently he was promoted to a more lucrative post, whereupon he received complimentary addresses, not only from the English residents, but from the Afrikaners as well. The first address read was from the residents of the town and district. It was most complimentary in character, and concluded with the cheering information to Mr. Lloyd that the committee had provided a tangible souvenir of their respect for him in the shape of an eighty guinea piano. The piano secured for the presentation was a very fine Gurlay made in Toronto by the firm of Gurlay, Winter & Leeming. The Secretary of the committee had heard of the instrument through Canadian friends and selected the Gurlay because of its reputation as the best upright on the market. The reputation of good goods goes far, and it is certain Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd will spread its praises still further. Mrs. Lloyd is a magnificent singer and a musician of excellent taste.

Sore Muscles

Prominent athletes throughout the country find that the best treatment for sore muscles after severe exercise or hard work of any kind, is a hot bath at bed time, which opens the pores. This should immediately be followed with an application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm vigorously rubbed into the skin. This liniment removes all stiffness and soreness and has become a favorite rub down, as it acts promptly and keeps the muscles in excellent condition. For sale by S. N. Ware.
