[CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.]

it may be seen that in this solitary objection to trades unions the men are disposed to give it up. They will ground arms to-morrow. They will strike their tents at once so far as they have been set up for fighting purposes, if the employer will generally accept equitable conditions for carrying out conciliation and arbitration. The matter is left in their hands and if they are disposed to arrange with the men for the creation of tribunals whose award shall be final in all matters of disputes, strikes and lock-outs may be numbered amongst the things of the past, and the industry of England, mighty in its power, peacable in its progress, fertilizing and enriching by its uninterrupted activity, may bring to all connected with its blessings in the future a hundred-fold more abundant, more fraught with advantage, moral and material, than anything known to

A Statue of Nelson, modelled by Lord Clarence Paget, which has been erected on a rock in the Menai Straits, was unveiled lately. It is 19 feet high, and stands on a pedestal 20 feet in height, immediately below his lordship's park (Plas Llanfair), and is intended to serve as a memorial to Nelson (the only one in Wales) and a landmark to guide vessels from certain danger-

A TRAIN ON FIRE .- An alarming accident occurred recently on the Helensburgh and Glasgow railway line. When the train leaving Helengburgh for Glasgow at 8.20 had proceeded about a mile and a half on its journey, it was observed that one of the third class carriages was on fire. A large number of passengers were in the carriage. Before the train could be pulled up the passengers had scrambled out by the windows, and the carriage was completely destroyed. Many of the passengers were found lying at different parts along the line, and six of their number-five men and a young woman, were suffering from serious injuries. Two of the men, both laborers, belonging to Dumbarton, were severely injured. The accident was caused by a smoker throwing a lighted match on the floor where some oil had been spilt.

FEMALE SUFFRAGE IN THE COLONIES .-The Hour expects that Miss Becker and the other ladies who are anxious that "persons," as well as men, should have their names inserted on the electoral roll, will be glad to hear that in one portion of the British Empire there is a possibility of their views becoming law. The Legislative Assembly of Victoria have decided by a small majority that all female ratepayers may exercise the franchise at the election of members to the local Parliament. The experiment was tried in that colony several years ago. Through a clerical error on the part of a draftsman the names of all the female ratepayers were inscribed upon the electoral roll, and at the general election which followed a few women exercised their rights. During the next session of Parliament the female ratepayers were deprived of their franchise, without a single voice being raised in favor of its retention. It would be interesting to know the arguments which induced the Assembly, after an interval of ten years, to reverse its former decision.

From recent advices from St. Petersburg, relative to the movements of the Russians in Central Asia, we learn that the amount of the contribution imposed upon the Jurnuden was 300,000 roubles, and the force sent to collect this sum consisted of eight companies of infantry and 10 guns, including two mitrailleuses, 800 cavalry, and a rocket battery. An advanced guard of 500 cavalry reached the enemy's caravan, near Saikes river, on July 21, and captured their cattle and dispersed the enemy. Many of the Jurnuden were drowned in the river, and other succeeded in escaping. On the 22nd July the Russian force encamped at the village of Tschandyr, where on the 26th they were attacked by the enemy, who were repulsed with great loss, On the 27th a large body of Turcomans made a night attack npon the camp, and a sanguinary hand to hand combat ensued. The mitrailleuses inflicted most fearful losses upon the enemy, who fought most bravely. After the battle the force proceeded to the gardens of Iljalla, in the Turcoman territory. The loss of the enemy in dead alone was 800 men. The total number of Turcomans engaged amounted to 10,000 men. On the 31st July, General Kauffman arrived at Iljalla with reinforcements from Khiva: The defeat of the Jurnuden has produced a great impression in Khiva.
