The Nursery

Care of the Teeth.

There are certain periods in baby's life that we have been taught to look forward to with dread. One of these is the teething period, and many young mothers worry for months because baby may cut his teeth during that period. If your baby is the kind I have been dealing with in these columns, the normal, healthy baby, you need have no more fear of his teething-outting than you have of his learning to talk.

It is a perfectly natural process and it does often cause the wee man some suffering, there is never any cause for alarm. Some babies cut their teeth much earlier than others, but it is never wise to force the growth of the teeth. Between the ages of four and six months the two middle teeth in the upper or lower jaw appear. And from then on little white spots are visible on either side of the mouth until when baby is a year or a little older he has four teeth in each jaw. When he is 18 months old the four front teeth are usually thru. Next come the four eye-teeth, and the four back double teeth, completing the milk set are usually out at two and a half years.

Very often the teeth are thru before you suspect that they are coming, but as a general rule there is drooling at the mouth and baby is not as good-natured as usual. If there is a slight fever or an attack of diarrhoea, or vomiting, it is usually because the teeth are making it weaker. In severe attacks give only plenty of water for a day or two, and give him plenty of boiled water to drink and bathe him if he is feverish.

Many mothers do not realize the importance of looking after the first permanent teeth. In severe attacks give only plenty of water for a day or two, and give him plenty of boiled water to drink and bathe him if he is feverish.

Have you ever eaten OATMEAL BREAD?

Many people are afraid to eat fresh bread because it is hard to digest. But oatmeal bread can be eaten as soon as it comes from the oven and there is no difficulty in digesting it.

The addition of Tillson's Oats, which you will see in the recipe below, gives to this bread a delicious flavor and a dietetic balance.

If you have been fond of brown bread you will forsake it in favor of this oatmeal bread.

Try it.

Oatmeal Bread

With one quart of boiling water scald two cups of Tillson's Rolled Oats. Add one tablespoonful of salt and one of yeast. When cool, add one yeast cake dissolved in one cupful lukewarm water, and three cupfuls bread flour, or enough to make a stiff dough. When light add one-half teaspoonful of sugar. Beat eight cupfuls of flour into the batter, making the amount of flour, which should be added gradually, bearing in mind the stirring continuously. Turn into the tin, let rise, and bake one hour in a slow oven.

Your grocer has Tillson's. Two sizes—10c and 25c. Each 25c package contains a handsome piece of English Porcelain Tableware.

GOOD PROGRESS IN HOSPITALS

Work Being Done is Appreciated by the Public, Says Dr. Bruce Smith's Report.

There are now 70 hospitals in the Province of Ontario, according to the 4th annual report upon the hospitals and charities of the province, which has just been issued by the provincial secretary's department. In addition there are 36 refuges, 31 orphanages, 8 homes for incurables, 2 convalescent homes, 2 Magdalen asylums, 29 county houses of refuge, and 4 sanitariums for consumptives.

During the year ending Sept. 30, 1911, there were 88,968 patients under treatment in the hospitals of the province, not including those regarded as outdoor patients.

The provincial grant to hospitals amounted to $180,220, and the amount received from all sources was $1,907,618.62. During the past year there was a larger number of patients under treatment than ever before, and the total expenditure was $2,048,972.25, which $456,177.25 was on capital account.

"These expenditures," the report says, "clearly prove that the work the hospitals are doing is appreciated by the public." The past year has seen one of exceptional progress in connection with the hospitals of Ontario. There has been a larger expenditure for building than ever before, and the necessity of having fireproof construction, as far as possible, is more than ever before recognized.

Organized charity is a necessity was stated emphatically. "The necessity of having in every city and large town a system of organized charity is more than ever realized," says the report. "Too often there is a serious overlapping in our local charities, which might be avoided with great economic advantage. Indiscriminate relief-giving undoubtedly is a more potent factor in creating and perpetuating pauperism than anything else carried on in the name of charity."

While admitting that the greatly improved accommodation will bring Toronto's hospital facilities up to a standard never previously attained, the report states that with a population of 400,000 and ever-increasing, even with the large accommodation to be afforded, the hospitals of Toronto will probably find that the demands of this growing city have not yet been provided for.

The report urges the establishment of a municipal sanitarium, especially when the government grant is liberal. Far from being a menace to the community, the report says, "the establishment of these local institutions will not only effect a cure, or improvement, in patients under their shelter, but one of their great missions will be to teach a proper mode of life to the community."

MORE SUFFRAGETTES TO JAIL

LONDON, March 26.—(Can. Press.)—A special sitting of the County of London Sessions opened today for the trial of 126 women who have been committed in connection with the well-known smashing raids in London on March 1 and 4.

Travers Humphrey, solicitor for the treasury, in his speech for the prosecution, emphasized that the raids were an organized attack on property and could not be tolerated.

Judge Robert Wallace sentenced a succession of suffragettes to terms of from four to six months' imprisonment. In some cases, where the women undertook not to repeat the offence, they were bound over to come up for judgment if called upon.

Flirting Manual

The fact that Harry Bulger in a new edition of "The Flirting Princess," is under the sole direction of Mort H. Singer, is sufficient assurance that this merry musical farce will be given a perfect presentation, for Mr. Singer is always most thro in his staging, and gives a great deal of attention to the costuming and scenic features of a play. Dale Fuller, Helen Darling and the other "two dozen flirts" have compiled the following flirting manual, which they guarantee is "sure fire":

1. Don't be shocked if you find yourself flirting; it is a perfectly natural impulse.
2. If you want to learn a man, flirt with him.
3. It is the defective woman who tries to break hearts.
4. Flirtation is one of the best mental exercises.
5. You must flirt with a man to understand him, and you must understand him to do him justice.
6. Flirting creates an insight into human nature.
7. Capable flirtation calls for mental exertion.
8. Women take delight in conquest—so do men; this is a deep-seated instinct in all animated beings.
9. Some women would flirt if there were no third person to look on.
10. A man who flirts to arouse jealousy is giving away to the primitive instinct of combat.
11. There is as much difference in flirting as there is in table d'hotes.
12. Flirting to one girl is mental exercise, to another it is cunning torture.
13. The man who flirts with a mercenary motive is a rare bird.

"The Flirting Princess" comes to the Royal Alexandra Theatre next week with usual matinees and special Good Friday matinee.

Seasonable Recipes

Prune Pie—Wash one and one-half pounds of prunes, soak in cold water overnight. Cook in the same water until soft, take out stones and cut prunes in quarters. Add one-half cupful (scant) of sugar, and one teaspoonful of lemon juice and a little salt. Reduce the liquor to one and one-half tablespoons. Line a plate with paste, cover with prunes, pour over the liquor, dot with small bits of butter and dredge with one tablespoonful flour. Put on the upper crust and bake in a moderate oven for thirty-five minutes.

New Lemon Pie—Mix one cupful of sugar and three tablespoonfuls of flour, add three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, yolks of two eggs, slightly beaten, one cupful of milk, one tablespoonful melted butter, a little salt and the whites of two eggs beaten stiff. Bake in a moderate oven. The white of the egg rises to the top and makes a coating.

MODES IN BRIEF

English tweeds, diagonals, home-spuns and whipcords—these are the favorite woolen fabrics for spring. The wale is rather wide, and the diagonal weave seems most popular.

Among the new ideas is the separate white coat, which may be worn with grey gowns, but is best with black satin. They are made of wool, silk or linen as suits the weather.

Thin one-piece gowns in two colors are made in coat and skirt effect.

Flowers on hats are used with a view towards softness. Little flowers are arranged about the brim, while large ones are built up into aligrettes, pompons or wings.

Long white kid gloves are stitched entirely in black, and black ones are stitched with white.

"THE GOLDEN AGE"

New Opera Given Successful Tryout at Royal Alexandra Yesterday.

An interesting "try-out" took place at the Royal Alexandra Theatre yesterday afternoon, when the music of "The Golden Age," a new opera bouffe, was played over by a large orchestra, under the direction of the composer, Mr. J. Navin Doyle of Belleville. Three or four of the vocal numbers of the opera were also rendered by talented amateurs.

The music proved to be of sterling quality and decidedly above the standard of the ordinary musical show. Some of the numbers are quite catchy enough to be whistled. Mr. Doyle has had a large experience with light opera, having spent ten years with Savoy, during which time he conducted the "Merry Widow," the "Runaway Girl" and other successes.

It is the intention to put on a full rehearsal of the opera later on during the season, when the representative of some of the big New York producers will be here to look it over.
