One of the new "thrillers" Wm. S.
Hart introduces in "Wolves of the Rail," the feature photodrama of this week's offerings at Loew's Yonge Street Theatre and Winter Garden, is a spectacular ride on horseback along the railroad track, swinging into the cabin of a runaway engine and stopping it in time to avert a collision. "Concentration," the vaudeville feature, will be surrounded by the following acts: Adele Oswald, in "The Woman of It"; Al. Wohlman, the song composer, and company; Edward Farrell and players, presenting "Suspicious Hubby"; Howard and Sadler, "A Study in Harmony"; John Dolan, in a juggling oddity; The Three Bartos, acrobats supreme, and Dolan, a new instalment of Loew's topic and a new lifetures. comedy pictures. The speaker also pointed out that the rules of the Buddist faith prohibit either the use or sale of intoxicants, of animals or of slaves. Asked whether the Turks as such were good examples of the Mohammedans, Mr. Tallman corrected the impression that the Turks were bona fide followers of that religion, stating that they had been originally hired as fighters in the service of various Moslem shefks, and had finally overthrown their masters by virtue of the bloodthirstiness of their disposithe bloodthirstiness of their disposi-tions, and had in time inculcated this ferocity into the veins of their own orthodox Mohammedanism, practically perverting the real ideals into an unrecognizable mass of degrading plati-tudes and regulations.

AGITATION GROWS FOR HOME RULE IN INDIA

Rev. W. A. Earp States That Not Enough Attention is Paid to Unrest.

Preaching in St. Cyprian's Church on Sunday evening, Rev. W. A. Earp, principal of the M.S.C.C. Normal School, Kangra, India, who is in Can-ada on furlough, spoke at some length and in a most interesting manner on the growing agitation for home rule in India; a movement that has gained considerable headway in spite of the fact that little attention has been paid to it by either the British, American or Canadian press. In fact, since he had left India he had not seen the subject mentioned in the

seen the subject mentioned in the newspapers, and was most anxious to know of its progress, or otherwise. It was pointed out that Canada, South Africa and Australia had practically self-government, which had proved satisfactory to them and the motherland. The other side of the question was briefly that the danger of self-government in India lay in the self-government in India lay in the illiteracy of its people. There would have to be immense educational prog-ress before such a step could be even

The government acted liberally in the matter of education and en-couraged it in every way, and had promised wider powers of home government when the mass of the people were able to understand and under-take the responsibility. The majority of the few educated natives saw the grave danger of handing over too much power to a people who were as yet ignorant of its use and purposes, and were advising strongly against it: and those who were agitating the movement were, for the most part, men who had axes to grind.

"It's failure," he said, "would throw Ireland back into the old round of alternate outbreak and repression, blasting every hope of progress and prosperity. The reform must, however, be thorogoing. The half measures which have been the bane of Ireland in the past, so far from proving a remedy, would aggravate the disease. It would be lamentable if measures were produced which the reople would reject with criticism, as they so often before have rejected worthless projects."
