INCREASED NUMBER WORK ON VIADUCT

Good progress was made yesterday of the grading work at the approach to the Bloor street viaduct, on the Danforth avenue side.

Four teams were employed carting and dumping earth in the gully at the south side of the bridge. One large section of the road was finished in readiness for the asphalt from the end of the viaduct the asphalt from the end of the viaduct to Cambridge avenue, and large piles of stones have been placed in readiness for use on Cambridge avenue.

Two iron poles to carry the trolley wires were placed in position on each side of the Danforth avenue approach, and barriers, with the "No Thorofare" sign, were placed across Danforth avenue, between the new oil station and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

On the Rosedale side, the detached, double, solid-brick residence on the edge of the roadway has almost been cleared away by the wrecking company, and that portion of the cement roadway on Drumsnab road, facing the viaduct, has been broken up and removed. A steam roller was used on a portion of the completed road, Between seventy and eighty men were employed at various jobs at both sides of the viaduct during the day.

"BOHEMIAN GIRL" GIVEN BY BOSTON OPERA CO.

"The Bohemian Girl," Balfe's "string of melodic pearls," was the offering of the Boston English Opera Co, last night at their second performance in the New Princess Theatre, That there was not a larger audience was due, no doubt, to the counter-attraction at Massey Hall.

"The Bohemian Girl," with its fascinating melodies and animated choruses, never fails to please. The enunciation of most of the singers last night was excellent, and this is always a gratifying attribute.

On Monday night a concert was given in the Eglinton Presbyterian Church under the auspices of the W.C.T.U., North Toronto. An excellent program was given to an audience that filled the church to the deors.
