Dr. Pugsley in a sensational speech made fuller reference to his corpuption charges against the Conservative party, admitting that both sides had been guilty of improper practices. He said he greatly deplored this, but even more than political corruption he would condemn the hypocrisy of any public man who, being guilty of electoral corruption, would claim for his own party all the virtues and impute to his opponents all the vices.

PUBLIC BODIES APPROVE

At a meeting representative of the public bodies of Toronto, held in the city council chamber last night, resolutions were passed warmly approving the stand taken by the council in deciding to urge upon the railway com-mission that the railways be compelled to build a viaduct along the Esplanade. The organizations represented at the meeting, which was presided over by the mayor, were the Manufacturers' Association, Public Ownership League, Trades and Labor Council and the Retail Merchants' Association. Among those who spoke were J. P. Murray, A. W. Wright, J. H. Duthie, W. A. Sherwood, J. Jocelyn, J. Gibbons and Harry Ellis, all of whom, on behalf of the bodies they represented, heartly endorsed the viaduct solution. On the suggestion of the mayor, it was agreed that each of the organiza-tions should have a representative on a committee to confer with Corpora-tion Counsel Fullerton, with the view The Excelsior Roller Rink are intro- of strengthening the city's case for presentation to the railway commissi A resolution to this effect by E. The Electrical Ring and Cheap Power been thus eighteen months before the public. The Globe, of course, makes no reference to them, altho they have remained uncontradicted during that period. The table gives a comparison of rates for power and light in various municipalities in the Niagara district. Toronto is one of them, and, in parallel columns, appear the prices charged by the Toronto Electric Light Company, and the estimated rates to be levied under the alternative schemes proposed by the commission.

Here are the figures	for Toronto:

10.0	. 160.00	te	$45.00
20.0	. 54.00		the Contraction

22.50.....

If this table is correct, the benefit to the consumers of electricity for lighting and power purposes that will accrue from the adoption of either of the commissioners' schemes is very great. The prices charged by the Lighting Company run from $180 for 10-hour power per h. p. per annum, in the case of small consumers, to $51 for 30 horsepower. As against these rates, the commissioners propose, under their first scheme, to charge from $33.75 to $22.50, and under their second scheme $45 to every consumer, large and small. For incandescent lighting, again, the commercial rate is cut in half by the commissioners, and the residential rate from 8 cents to 5 cents. And there is no question here about metre rates and flat rates. The World can confidently affirm that, so far as the purchasers of light and power are concerned, the commissioners' estimated prices contemplate only payment for the actual metre quantity taken. And if their figures are to be challenged, it must be done in some more detailed and informative way than a bald statement by the company's manager, that "the average payment received by the company from their customers is $16 per horsepower per year." Not very comforting, indeed, to small consumers, who are mulcted $90, $135 and $180 per horsepower used per annum. They would doubtless appreciate better the commission's price of $22.50 to $33.75, or even $45, without the salve of a calculated average price.

The Globe talks about the evils of competition, and, in the same breath, complains that, even after the advent of Niagara power, the company has not reduced its prices. And it never will without the compulsitor of competition. The city can afford the luxury of competition if it means reductions in price, such as those indicated by the Hydro-Electric Commission. But the benefit of competition under similar circumstances has already been shown in the case of Ottawa. Table 42, appended to the report, gives the rates that prevailed in Ottawa before competition, and those that followed it. The com

Ottawa suffered severely from excessive rates, and finds a competitive system pays, altho it contracted to take 1500 horsepower, and only uses between 1000 and 1100 horsepower. Notwithstanding this additional handicap, the rates were cut in the case of incandescent lighting to less than half. This is an illustrative example of the immediate benefits of

No unprejudiced individual can doubt for a moment the advantages which must accrue to any community from a service based on legitimate expenditure, and operated exclusively in the interest of the consumers. Another of its benefits is referred to in the report, as follows: "Perhaps the most striking advantage to be derived from the use of electric power. as compared with other power, is that the small consumer can obtain power at a rate which should not be appreciably greater than that made to the large consumer, altho the present practice in selling electric power is to discriminate against the small consumer, for the reason that electric power prices made by private companies are not based on cost of service, but are merely made with a view to displacing steam." A municipal plant can be, and will be, run at prices based on the actual cost of service. Even The Globe, in one of its temporary lapses into virtue, states that it is the consumers' interests that should be the supreme consideration. Yet it is doing its best to rivet the chain that binds Toronto to a corporation that more than trebles the price to the small consumer, and bases its charges not on cost of service, but on the old monopolistic principle that imposes all the service can bear. If Mr. Wright wishes to make a really valuable contribution to the discussion, let him come out with a justification of his table of rates, and show precisely where and how the commissioners err in estimating the prices to be charged consumers under their alternative scheme at such a very large reduction on the rates the company

The Globe talks about an arrangement with the Toronto Electric Lighting Company on the footing of guaranteeing the company's dividend; a pledge to do no more stock-watering, but to sell future issues on the open market, and to put back all surplus profits into reduction of rates.

But what of the stock-watering already done in the various companies controlled by the electrical ring? There is reason to believe that the cost of the electrical development plant was more than covered by the bond issue, and that the ordinary stock represents not one cent of real value. Dividends are expected to be paid on this water, and they can only come out of purchasers of the Electrical Development Company's power. And just the same thing with the whole string of associated corporations that worked so hard to sew up the city for private profit. Then again, what about the position of the city when its present street-lighting contract terminates, and the agreements with the Lighting and Street Railway companies expire. With a municipal power plant in operation, the city will be absolutely free and independent and in the most favorable circumstances to undertake the full operation of these two important franchises. The present establishment of a municipal distributing plant will place the key of the whole situation in the hands of the citizens, and will line Toronto up with the other municipalities now looking for cheap electricity from the Hydro-Power Commission. The citizens will do well not to be led away from the real trail by red herrings, such as that dragged across the track by the manager of the Toronto Electric Lighting Company and its press allies. The government plans are understood to be now perfected, and infinitely more reliance can be placed on the assurances of public men who are working in the straight interests of the citizens than on the vague representations made on behalf of a ring of financiers who had hopeful visions of becoming multi-millionaires out of the public services of Toronto.

STEAL A TON OF SUGAR

Charged with the theft of more than ton of sugar from the Canadian Lake and Ocean Navigation Company, Ermine Zarnke, 28 years, 34 McGillstreet, and Michael Flannigan, 39 years, 64 Anne-street, were lodged in the Court-street police station last The thefts have been systematic and extend over the whole shipping season of the company. The men were arrested upon information furnished the police by Noble's Dominion Detective Agency, which has had oper-atives at work upon the case at various times during the summer. Zarnke, who is the company's foreman at its freight sheds at the foot of Bay-street, was arrested there at 6 o'clock by P. C. Redford last even-

6 o'clock by P. C. Redford last evening. He indignantly protested his innocence. Flannigan was arrested at his home at 7.40 o'clock by Acting Detective Guthrie after he had confessed and implicated the other man. He is now admitted to bail in the sum of $400. The sugar, largely in bags, was recovered from a number of restaurants and private houses, where it had been sold by the thieves. It is stored been sold by the thieves. It is stored in No. 1 station, where it was removed in the patrol wagons. Ten bags men.

was secured in one private house.
The thefts as outlined in Flannigan's confession have been carried out upon an ingenius plan. Karnke went about in the evenings taking orders for the sugar at the rate of $3 per bag, having a market value of $4.47. He represented himself as a salesman for a steamship company, and said that the sugar was excess cargo, and must Flannigan delivered orders. Both collected and signed reof the last lot disposed of, 16 bags were removed Oct. 3, and 17 bags on Oct. 4. The first clue to the theft was sup-

The first clue to the theft was supplied to the company by an anonymous letter written by the wife of an employe about the dock. The bags in the sheds were counted Sunday, Oct. 6. after Zarnke had been taxed with the theft two days before. Flannigan was accused yesterday afternoon and admitted the deal, declaring that he had been only a tool in the hands of the other man and had not at first suspected anything wrong. not at first suspected anything wrong. The detectives then went to the sheds and called Zarnke into the office. He denied the theft and told them to count the bags. This was done, and it was found that 21 had done, and it was found that 21 had been returned since the previous count. These had been collected from those to whom they had been sold, the people being told that there had been a mistake and the money refunded.

The informations against the men were sworn to by Hugh Young, traffic manager of the company. A. E. Noble and A. M. Allan, superintendent of the agency, worked up the case. Zarnke
