FAMOUS FOOT RACES OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

Death of Billy Snook Recalls His Contests With W. G. George.

Memories of other days in England are recalled by the death of W. Snook of Shrewsbury, who passed away last month at Birmingham. He was born in 1850, being two years junior to his great rival, W. G. George. Those who have followed athletics since the early eighties will recall the many duels these two famous runners had, fortune sometimes favoring one and then the other. Snook won both the Midland and National cross-country championships in his time, and many a Midland, northern and English championship on the flat. Snook was a champion runner in 1883, when he had the satisfaction of winning both the mile and four miles championship of England. His great rival, "W. G." was a bit off on championship day, and the result was a series of matches later in the year. They were to be at one, two and four miles, but the rubber was not necessary, as the Whitehorse runner proved the winner in the first two events.

Prior to this, however, they had come together in rather a curious way due to the enterprise of the honorary secretary of a well-known London club. He put on a one-mile scratch race, in which both George and Snook entered. To get them to both appear, however, was a problem, so he interviewed both, and told each the same tale, viz., that the other was so confident of winning that his friends were willing to lay 6 to 1 on him. It was never more than 6 to 5 on either, and naturally the two runners were tempted by the odds, both taking a bet at 6 to 1.

The event resulted itself into a duel, and after a fine race George won in a shade over 4 mins. 21 sec., which was a record at the time. Snook, however, was a problem, so he interviewed both, and told each the same tale, viz., that the other was so confident of winning that his friends were willing to lay 6 to 1 on him. It was never more than 6 to 5 on either, and naturally the two runners were tempted by the odds, both taking a bet at 6 to 1.

The pair had some more remarkable races in the following year. Prior to the championships, George had a sunstroke, and was unable to appear. He had to play second fiddle to Snook, particularly when the Shrewsbury man beat his rival in a 1500 yards race in record time. This was only one week before the championship, but George was on a lot of nerves and after a terrific race he defeated Snook in the mile, with the watch showing 4 mins. 21 sec., which was a record at the time. Snook, however, was a problem, so he interviewed both, and told each the same tale, viz., that the other was so confident of winning that his friends were willing to lay 6 to 1 on him. It was never more than 6 to 5 on either, and naturally the two runners were tempted by the odds, both taking a bet at 6 to 1.

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, gives an invitation to any ball player to join his Giants in the spring at Marlin for a try-out at their own expense.

M'GRAW WILL TRY YOU OUT AT MARLIN

Any Ball Player Who Will Pay His Own Expenses to the South.

New York, Jan. 25.—John McGraw, who specializes in baseball, has a new idea which, he thinks, will eliminate the middle-man in the production and distribution of ball players. McGraw's idea is to give tryouts to the numerous garden, college, and town players, who, each spring, offer to go to Marlin with the Giants, at their own expense. While the idea of plucking ball players direct from the garden where they grow, and not through the produce merchants, is not entirely new to McGraw, this is the first time he has ever attempted it on a general scale.

Town and college players who are looking for a tryout and anxious to have their own expenses are going to be given a chance they have long looked for. McGraw is particularly anxious to meet them on a half dozen of these confident young men to report to him at Marlin. If any of the players who are looking for a tryout and anxious to have their own expenses are going to be given a chance they have long looked for. McGraw is particularly anxious to meet them on a half dozen of these confident young men to report to him at Marlin.
