NORTH END BOYS FOR PRIESTHOOD

Students Left This Morning to Resume Studies in Redemptorist College

The local clerical students at the Redemptorist College of St. Mary's, North End, left this morning to resume their studies. They went on the S. S. Prince Rupert, going back to school by way of Yarmouth and Boston. The young men will arrive at the college on Saturday, but it will probably be a week, or nearly so, later before they are put into classrooms for their regular studies, as they have to go on a retreat on their arrival.

Those of the party leaving this morning were: Antony McDiarmid, John McDonald, William McLaughlin, Leo Dever, Roy Hanson, Alphonse Conahan and Simon Oram. The last two named are beginning their first year of a year's retreat required before qualifying as Redemptorists. An interesting fact in connection with their departure is that with the exception of Mr. McLaughlin they are all former members of St. Peter's Sunday school. Two other North End boys are at present in one of the southern colleges, Wm. McLaughlin and Chas. O'Hara, with but a few more years' study before being ordained.

MOVE LAST CRIB LIKELY NEXT WEEK

Good Progress on New Carleton Wharf—Probably Ready for Winter Season.

D. C. Clark, contractor for the new wharf being built by the government on the west side, reports that good progress is being made. A crew of men are now engaged in building the last crib, No. 9, and it will probably be moved into position next week and then built to the required height for sinking.

At high water, when the men are prevented from working on No. 6 crib, they are employed in building up on those already placed. No. 1 crib is now built up to within two feet of the top and the other sections are also being added to as the tide permit.

The wharf will probably be ready for use this winter if needed though the ware house will not likely be finished in time to be utilized at the coming season.
