WHAT IS THE ANSWER?
To the Editor of The Times:
Sir, I read with surprise a few days ago that Mr. Commissioner Potts had been selected by the city commission as one of those who are to make up the lists of voters which will be used at the next provincial and dominion elections. As this appointment was made after Mr. Potts had announced to his friends his determination of being a candidate for the government nomination in place of Hon. John E. Wilson, I am sure the commissioners must have overlooked that, since nothing would be more out of place and unfair than for anyone proposing to be a candidate to compile, or assist in compiling, the lists of voters to whom he intended to appeal for election.

It seems to me to be in order for Mr. Potts or the commissioners to take some action.

I am,
Yours truly,
ST. JOHN, AUG. 17, 1915.

The blue or sulphur-bottom whale is the largest animal living today. Specimens have measured eighty-seven feet in length, which, in all probability, weighed about seventy-five tons. Oddly enough, although the mouth will permit twelve men to stand in it, the throat is only nine inches in diameter. From the inside of one of these whales, five barrels of blubber were taken.

ELOQUENT APPEAL FOR MORE HELP FOR STARVING BELGIAN PEOPLE

G. K. Chesterton, the Eminent Author, Writes in Their Behalf—Belgium Died For Europe—The Victims of a Blow From Hell—A Million and a Half in That Country Destitute and Must be Given Relief by the World for Which They Suffered

Editor Times-Star:
Sir, I hope you will grant me space to say a few words about the Belgians still in Belgium. The admirable efforts of the National Committee for Relief in Belgium are going a long way to avert famine, but if the million and a half destitute Belgians are to be kept alive, the National Committee must have yet further support. The only conceivable cause of doubt in the matter must be, but by such wholly unimportant things as time and language. I think therefore the best way of presenting any possible neglect of so great a matter is to repeat once more the great truths upon which rested the whole original claim, not so much on our sympathy as on our common honesty. The simplicity and enormity of the Belgian story can best be set forth perhaps in four truisms, all toweringly self-evident.

First, of course, the mere badness of the story is almost too big to be held in the mind. There have been stories of a woman or a child actually robbed of reason for life by the mere ocean shock of some appalling cruelty done in their presence. There really was a danger of something of the kind paralyzing our protest against the largest, and by the help of God, the last of the crimes of the Prussian king. The onlookers might have been struck into a sort of gibbering imbecility and even amnesia by the full and indefensible finality of the foul stroke. We had no machines that could measure the stunning directness of the blow from hell. We could hardly realize an enormous public act which the actor did not wish to excuse, but only to execute. Yet such an act was the occupation of Belgium; almost the only act in history for which there was quite simply and literally nothing to be said. Bad history in the whole basis of Prussia; but even in bad history the Prussians could find no precedent and no palliation, and the more intelligent Prussians did not even in bad history find any excuse for what they had done. They had found dangerous documents in Brussels, as if what they had done could possibly be excused by things they did not mention when they did it. This they did not mention when they did it. This they did not mention when they did it.

Second, it must be remembered that this murder has been done upon a people of such proximity and familiarity that there cannot be any mistake about the matter. There is some shadowy justification for the comparative indifference to the wrong of very remote people; for it is not easy for us to guess how much "finch-like" shocks a negro or a Chinese or a Hindu might feel. But the keepers of Oxford felt exactly as the world would. We have to remember that historic cruelty coming suddenly upon a scene which was civilized and almost commonplace. Imagine tigers breaking out of the Zoological Gardens and eating all the people in Albany street; imagine the Indians exhibited at Olympia literally from Mennel to Liban shows the terrible distress left in the wake of the advancing army. Entire villages of several hundred houses, like Komati, are totally burned, having suffered most from the fire of the ships. One of the most ghastly massacre reports, the village of Komati, was the scene of a terrible massacre, and sixty of its principal summer villas destroyed. The palace of Count Felix Tyssens, whose family has intermarried in America, escaped from destruction, but the chapel of the village was partly destroyed. The hotels and casino and most of the villas stretching along the sea front were burned, and portions of the hotel remained. The village of Komati, which was later used as barracks for Gen. von Burlew's cavalry forces. Many were killed, including a number of children during the occupation of Poland. At Liban a monopoly of the bread supply was established under German military direction, all flour being taken by them except two kilos allowed to each inhabitant. Among the many arrested were two Orthodox Russian pastors who were accused of praying to the saints for the invaders, but were released on the plea that their prayers were against invaders of all nationalities. The fortifications of Liban, particularly on the sea front, were strengthened by large forces of men. The visit to Liban of Prince Henry, brother of the Kaiser, for a conference with Field Marshal von Hindenburg, was the occasion of much ceremony, and prolonged discussion between the prince and the commander of the military forces in the north, presumably on the campaign which soon after developed northward to Riga and then in a great circle southward around Warsaw.

Outside of Lubin the surrounding country is devastated and abandoned. This is specially true of the districts of Kalvaria and Marjampol, the grain fields, usually richly productive, being unown and in places blackened from fire. The districts of Suwalki and Kovno have similarly suffered. Many incidents are given of banditti who have made their appearance in the country districts owing to the distress and complete prostration of the civil organization, and commit widespread depredations. The Warsaw Kourier prints a statement from Petrograd giving official reply to attacks on the Central Committee of Warsaw charging that they discriminate against Jews, not giving them a fair share of the emergency food supplies from the committee warehouses, and limiting the distributions to the army. The reply states that the committee keeps the warehouses open from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m. daily, and makes distinctions without any distinction of nationality or religion. The only restriction is against applicants who seek to get supplies for the purposes of speculation, and the reply says there are unfortunately many Jews in this class. The warehouses, it is explained, are meant only to meet the daily needs of the poor people. As evidence of their impartiality it is cited that from May 31 to June 4, out of a total of 97,877 people thus assisted, 66,
