Representatives Call At Residence Today On Pleasing Mission

Dr. H. S. Bridges, former superintendent of the Saint John public schools, for a long period principal of the High School and previous to that of the faculty of University of New Brunswick, was signally honored at his home, Duke street, this afternoon by the 247 members of the teaching staff of this city's school system. Following the reading of the appended address Miss Thompson presented to Dr. Bridges a bouquet composed of 80 roses. He made suitable reply to both presentations.

NICELY PREPARED

The address, which was engrossed by William C. Clarke and bound by J. & A. McMillan, was covered in light brown padded morocco, looked in real gold and bore the outside wording: "Address to Henry Seabury Bridges, A. M., Ph.D., L.L.D., Dean of Teachers of Saint John, April 9, 1926." The inside of the covers were lined in white flowered silk and the 16 parchment pages of the address were most artistically illuminated at the borders and top and bottom by the lettering itself which was of a semi-Old English type. The fly-leaf of the address was particularly rich in the illumination disclosing an oval in which were painted the Lamp of Knowledge and the Open Book wreathed in many garlands.

THE ADDRESS.

Dear Doctor Bridges: The teachers of Saint John have learned with sincere sorrow that your physical condition has rendered it necessary for you to retire from active service and to lay aside the duties of superintending the schools. It is necessary for you to retire from active service and to lay aside the duties of superintending the schools. It is necessary for you to retire from active service and to lay aside the duties of superintending the schools.

During the 30 years that you have been the chief agent securing adequate and improved accommodation for our pupils, in regulating the organization and grading of the schools, and in improving the quality of instruction in several branches of study, so that for many years the schools of Saint John have held a recognized position of excellence.

As teachers we found in you a kind advisor. Commendation of good teaching and rebuke of bad teaching were given, when it was ever tempered by encouragement and wise counsel. You gave us the best of your judgment and wisdom, and by your words and example have inspired many teachers with a deeper regard for the importance of their work. To the discharge of your duties you brought broad scholarship, a deep sense of the value of sound discipline and of thoroughness in endeavor, as well as a personal dignity of manner which secured you the whole-hearted support of all our staff.

We desire to express to you our continued goodwill and affection, to assure you of the honor in which you are held by us who have the privilege of serving under your guidance in the work of the schools.

We trust there are still in store for you many years in which to enjoy that "otium cum dignitate" that your long period of service has earned and that, as our superintendent, Emeritus, you may have opportunity to manifest your interest in the schools and cause us to feel that we are still within the sphere of your kindly thought.

As an expression of our individual affections, and with the desire that we each may continue to be remembered by you, the entire teaching staff of Saint John have hereto affixed their signatures.

Saint John, N. B., April 9, 1926.
