

WHEREABOUTS OF DEPOSED SULTAN UNKNOWN AS YET

Cable to Near East is Cut in Turkish Thrace—British Hope Peace Conference Will be Held Nov. 20.

London, Nov. 9.—London late tonight was still without news from Constantinople, but the cable company whose lines have been cut in Turkish Thrace said it hopes that communication might be restored soon.

The government also appeared to have had very little wireless communication with Constantinople and Premier Bonar Law, at the Lord Mayor's banquet in the Guildhall tonight, was unable to throw any further light on the situation in Turkey. The government knows nothing concerning the whereabouts of the deposed Sultan, except that he has not taken refuge, as had been reported, on a British warship.

Official circles point out that the situation is an almost exact counterpart of that which arose from the Balkan crisis, with the important difference, as emphasized by Bonar Law tonight, that there is now no question of isolated action by the powers, who are all working in agreement.

Must Fash, the foreign minister of the Turkish Nationalist government, is known to be in Constantinople waiting to go to the Near East conference at Hausanne so soon as the date for the meeting is set. Although the British government maintains the opinion that the change of complexion of affairs necessitates a postponement of the date, it is willing that the delay in convening the conference shall be as brief as possible and hopes it will be able to meet by November 20.

ONE COMBATANT SLAIN IN GUN FIGHT

Man Under Arrest in Hospital With Three Bullet Wounds—Another Shot in Arm.

New York, Nov. 10.—Gregorio Lagna, a salesman of 198 President

The longest trail in the world

GOOD YEAR ALL-WEATHER TREAD

866

street, Brooklyn, was killed, and Joseph Bursardo, a drug clerk, received three bullets in his back as the result of a pistol fight which followed an argument between the two men at Tosca Garden, an Italian restaurant in Brooklyn. Bursardo is a prisoner in Long Island College Hospital. Samuel Pellegrino also went to the hospital with a bullet in an arm.

The police said that when Lagna and Bursardo drew pistols after an argument, the shooting became general. They did not know whether Pellegrino was a combatant or a bystander. The first policeman to reach the restaurant, which is on the second floor, pursued two men holding pistols. At the bottom of the stairs one, Lagna, fell dead. The policeman fell over him, and the other escaped.

Uniformed reserves and detectives drew a cordon about the neighbor-

SHIPS WARNED OF BIRD ROCK LIGHT NOW NOT VISIBLE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Montreal, Nov. 9.—A message broadcasted today from the Government Signal Service station at Fame Point states: "Charlottetown, P. E. I., advises that Bird Rock light is reported not visible. Ships should be careful when in this vicinity until communication is established with the rock. The lighthouse gas and whistling buoy reported out; will be relinquished when the weather moderates."

LIEF JONES, M.P.

An English prohibition leader and a joint president of the world league, who will be one of the chief figures at the world non-alcoholic convention this month.

MUSEUM HAS RARE SARCOPHAGUS

Specimen of Klazomenian Coffin is Second of Its Kind in America—Made 2,600 Years Ago.

A Klazomenian sarcophagus has just been acquired and put on exhibition by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, which announces that it is the second of its kind to be brought to the United States. The other specimen is in the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

The new sarcophagus is in the third room of the Classical Wing with other third century B. C. objects. The ancient coffin, according to the announcement of the Metropolitan Museum, has been set up on end instead of horizontally, as might have been expected.

This unconventional pose of the coffin from Klazomenai, the little town at the entrance of the Gulf of Smyrna, believed to have been the centre of sarcophagi manufacture, is adopted because that position gives a more advantageous display to the decoration. The position given to the sarcophagus is further justified by an article in The Bulletin of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, which, among other things, says:

"It has been set up vertically instead of horizontally both to economize space and because the decoration undoubtedly can be seen better that way. It is interesting in this connection to recall a theory of Meur (Jahrbuch d. Arch. Inst. 1902, pp. 65ff.), to the effect that the sarcophagi were originally designed to be shown upright. The decorated rim serving as a frame round a bandaged corpse in the funeral rites."

Terra-cotta sarcophagi, dating back for the most part to the sixth century B. C., have been found at intervals in the little town of Klazomenai, further says the Bulletin. The list of recorded examples was slightly more than a score twenty years ago, and in 1918 the number of specimens had been increased to more than seventy. The article then says:

"Quite recently the actual cemetery in which these sarcophagi were buried has been located and scientific excavations have been begun, so that we may expect a considerable increase in the supply."

"This is fortunate; for the importance of these monuments is considerable, not only on account of their intrinsic beauty and interest, but because of what they can teach us of the contemporary Greek paintings which have disappeared. Being on a fairly large scale they naturally can give us a better idea of full-size compositions than the terra-cotta vases—our only other contemporary Greek painted objects."

The sarcophagus now on view at the Metropolitan was brought after its importation to New York City. Its dimensions are: Length, 7 feet 5.5 inches; width at head, 32 inches; and width at base, 29 1/2 inches. The measurements prove that it was designed for an adult, according to Museum authorities.

The scenes painted on the old stone include a battle with chariots and warriors at the head. Animals are pictured at the foot, but the siren and the centaur also have their place on the sides. In subordinate fields there are decorative frieze patterns of monsters and animals.

"The sarcophagus is made of coarse red clay, covered with a finer red slip on which is applied a white engobe," says the announcement. "On this white engobe the designs are painted in brownish black glaze, the upper portion entirely in silhouette, with superimposed white here and there, the lower with some outline of drawing and details 'reserved' in the color of the background."

"The technique is the same therefore, as that on the Rhodian vases of the seventh century, B. C., and generally on earlier Ionian pottery. The connection with Rhodes was probably particularly close, since we know of several Klazomenian sarcophagi having been actually found there."

ELOPING GIRL IS BROUGHT BACK TO SYDNEY MINES, N. S.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Sydney, Nov. 9.—With love's young dream disturbed but not shattered Mary Nicholson, fifteen, who on Tuesday night eloped from her mother's home at Sydney Mines, was brought back from New Glasgow today by Chief of Police Hall. Leo Shweiry, twenty-eight, a foreigner, who ran away with Mary, is following by a later train, determined to win back his bride through the courts, if necessary. Mary says that after trying unsuccessfully to induce Sydney Mines clergyman to marry them, they finally had the ceremony performed in Sydney Tuesday afternoon.

When they reached New Glasgow Wednesday the police took charge of Mary and Shweiry went on to Truro, where he sought legal advice and was told to return to Cape Breton, to combat a possible charge of abduction.

New Glasgow has lately been a mecca for Sydney elopers, no fewer than six runaways having been brought back from there recently.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Sapphire Rebekah Lodge, No. 37, last night held an anniversary celebration in Odd Fellows' Hall in Simonds street and spent the evening most enjoyably. The noble grand, Mrs. Ray Colwell, presided, and after a bountiful supper had been served under the convership of Mrs. Hartt a short programme was given, each number being well received. The programme was as follows: Reading, Miss Vera Roberts; reading, U. Staples; toe dance, Miss Helen Henderson; due, Miss Helen Henderson and Miss Josephine Murray; reading by the noble grand of Peerless Lodge, Ray Colwell; due, Miss Bernice Smith and Miss Josephine McMahon. Speeches were made by several members of the lodge and each was heartily applauded.

JUDGE DEFIES BOOTLEGGERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 10.—Threatened with death if he persisted in sending bootleggers to jail, Federal Judge Page Morris defied writers of anonymous letters by announcing that more drastic punishment than ever was in store for violators of the prohibition law.

At least three anonymous letters have been received by Judge Morris and turned over to postal authorities. Judge Morris, who is sixty years old, attracted general attention in his district a few weeks ago when he announced his intention of sending liquor law violators to jail. Thus far he has sent ninety-six men to jail for terms of from twenty-five days to seven months.

There's Joy in the Land!

He's Found it at Last a really fine Cigar for

None Genuine Without the Aluminum Peg

Rock City Tobacco Co. Limited

CHECK CIGAR

"As Good as Gold"

Mallory Hats $7.50
Borsalino Hats 7.50

Seems as though all the men in town are coming to Oak Hall these days for winter

Overcoats

And it's only logical that they should, too. Because right here at Overcoat Headquarters you'll find a vast assembling of the best models of many leading makers rather than a big duplication of styles from only one or two makers.

Thus you get the best in style, in quality, in tailoring—garments worthy of your confidence and our endorsement. There's the great big roomy Klavicle, the Raglans, the Kimonos, etc., for you to choose from, all economically priced.

$25
$35 $45
$55

Men's Boots
$6.50 $7.50 $9.00

OAK HALL - SCOVIL BROS., LTD.
Germain St. - King St.

Revival of Italian Coral Fishing.
The Italian coral industry was paralyzed during the war, but it is now being revived with the aid of motor boats, which will exploit the waters of Algiers, Tunis, Dalmatia, and Greece. Japan has a virtual monopoly of the industry at the present time—Scientific American.

WARMTH

For Any Form of Cold
Apply ThermoGene! It's dry, comforting, medicated warmth is just what your chilled system craves. Far better, every way, than position or planter.

THERMOGENE

At all Drugstores 50c per package

MUTT AND JEFF—CICERO MUTT THOUGHT HIS FATHER WAS THE CLASS

By "BUD" FISHER

THERE'S OSWALD SPIN! HERE'S WHERE I RUB IT INTO THE POOR FISH AND MAKE HIM THROW A JEALOUS FIT!

CHEERIO, OSWALD! GEE, I'M GLAD YOUR POP ISN'T MY POP! THERE'S CLASS TO MY OLD MAN! HE BELONGS TO THE LION TAMER'S CLUB! GET THAT?

WHATCHA MEAN, CICERO MUTT?

LISTEN! MY POP'S A LION TAMER! HE'S A BRAVE MAN OR HE COULDN'T BELONG TO THE CLUB! MY POP ISN'T AFRAID OF ANYTHING IN THE WORLD, AND FURTHERMORE—

AND IT WAS AFTER THREE O'CLOCK WHEN YOU CAME IN THIS MORNING—

NIX, DEAR NIX! FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE HAVE A HEART!

SAP.

NIX WIFEY NIX!

LANE!

TEE HEE.