The stout girl in this picture is only thirteen years of age, but she cannot go to school because she cannot find boots large enough to fit her. Her name is Hilda Flack and she lives at Buckhurst Hill, Essex, England. Although she weighs 190 pounds she plays with children of her own age just as if she were as small as they.

THE LAST OF THE FAMOUS FEUDISTS

"Devil Anse" Kept Kentucky Traditions Alive
WAR BEGAN IN 1880

More Than a Hundred Men and Several Women Killed in Feud Which Began Over a Few Pigs

Anderson Hatfield, better known as "Devil Anse," who was at the point of death several days ago, and may have passed out by now, was one of the most famous of Kentucky feudists. The fighting between the Hatfields and the McCoys was hardly less celebrated than the feud between the Montagus and the Capulets or those between York and Lancaster. Not so many lives were lost but still more than a hundred men are supposed to have been killed as well as several women as a result of the quarrel some time ago over the trifling matter of some pigs. In those days pigs were not of much more value than cats. A war over a pig now would not attract so much attention. In the beginning the pigs were owned by Randolph McCoy, or so at least Randolph contended. He missed them, and one day when passing the Hatfield place, he observed several shots that he at once identified as his property. Hatfield refused to surrender them, and an appeal was made to the nearest magistrate, who, as a Hatfield, decided that they were Hatfield's. That was the beginning of the quarrel between the two families, which up to that time had got along in neighborhood fashion.

The First Killing.
There were several feuds between younger members of the families but nobody was seriously injured until 1880, when Paris and Sam McCoy met William Statton, a Hatfield herdsman, in the mountains. He got the drop on them and shot Paris, who falling put a bullet through Statton. Neither man was seriously injured, and they were able to rise, throw away their weapons and go to the mat in good old Kentucky fashion. They gouged and bit and kicked until both were covered with blood and bruises. Then Sam McCoy, it is alleged drew his pistol and killed Statton. He escaped to the mountains, but was later on caught and placed on trial. He was acquitted. Of course, it did not lessen the bitter feeling between the two factions, and every time one of the rival clans would meet there was likely to be a fight. Gradually most of the neighboring families were drawn into the feud, for the McCoys and the Hatfields were numerous and had many affiliations by marriage. The pig grievance had long ago been forgotten. It was now a matter of avenging human blood. The next big fight occurred in 1882, and was provoked by an election dispute.

The Battle Thickens.
Ellison Hatfield dared Talbert McCoy to fight him. The challenge was accepted and the fight began. Hatfield was getting the better of McCoy when the latter drew a knife and plunged it into his adversary's side. Hatfield, though streaming with blood, had strength enough to raise a big stone and was in the act of dashing it at McCoy's brains when he was shot by a partisan of the opposing house. Presumably this was Phamer McCoy, who with Talbert and Randolph McCoy Jr. was arrested, while the still breathing Hatfield was carried away. The Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for my daughter. For three months she was under the doctor's care and got no better, always complaining about her back and side aching so I didn't know what to do. I read in the paper about your wonderful medicine so I made up my mind to try it. She has taken five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and doesn't complain any more with her back and side aching. She has gained weight and feels much better. I recommend Lydia E. NOWLAN'S FATHER TELLS STORY ON WITNESS STAND

Richibucto, Sept. 11.—The hearing of Albert Nowlan, charged with the murder of Dominion Police Officer Richards, was resumed before Magistrate Duigan at Richibucto at 9:30 today. William Nowlan, father of the accused, was the first witness called. He gave evidence of the police officers being at his house on the morning of August 22 last and that he had heard a report that morning that sounded like a pistol shot. "If you fellows come in here tonight the officers had referred to in their evidence. He said that he had not seen the accused that morning and had not seen him for about two days previous to that. He stated that he saw his son, Albert, the accused on the Saturday following the death of Officer Richards. He was coming from St. John and his son called to him. He spoke a few words to his son and asked him if he knew what had happened and his son said he did not. He told his son that he had better come out that night.

The next witness called was Robert Debo who stated that he had been a dominion constable officer up to last March and that sometime in that month he went to the Nowlan home at Richibucto, a north of the accused, as a constable and that he saw accused for the first time on that visit. He had been stationed at Richibucto in front of the house to keep watch. He saw the accused through a window upstairs in a room and he heard him say, "If you fellows come in here tonight some of you will get shot. I am all ready for you."

On cross-examination by Mr. McDonald he stated that he was not positive that it was Albert Nowlan who used those words. The court then adjourned until 2 p.m. and upon resumption Dr. Mart Delaney was called. He gave evidence of holding an autopsy on the body and described the wounds that he had found. On cross-examination by Mr. McDonald he stated that it was his opinion that the wounds were caused by an explosion and that the explosion must have been near the body. He stated that a rifle bullet could not make the two wounds he found in the leg unless the bullet

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing saggy hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by Ross Drug Co. in St. John and most druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing. Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten, and pale cheeks bloom with the bloom of perfect health. "I gained 15 pounds and never before felt so well."

CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

turned and came back. He stated that the wounds did not join at the base near the bone and that the bone was not injured and also that a rifle bullet which would cause a wound of that nature would go through the leg.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well. Artificial digestants are not needed in each case and may do real harm. Trying to force the stomach to digest by using a few ounces of Bismuth Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quart glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bismuth Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

LARGE ESTATES TO BE BROKEN UP

War Costs Are Pressing Heavily on Many English Land Owners —To Make Sacrifices

England has ever been famous for the beauty of its homes. They have been the setting of English literature and of much of the history of England. As such they have been something of an institution to many millions of people who never saw the Island Kingdom.

The stately homes of England, How beautiful they stand, Amidst their tall ancestral trees, O'er all the pleasant land.

Hundreds of years ago many of these houses were a part of England and of English life. From generation to generation the same families lived in them, families which, when all is said and done, have never hesitated to serve in any English cause or to die in it, that land might be kept inviolate and the English name unstained. In these days of housing committees, when Jack is as good as his master, or a little better, it is perhaps a heresy and an offence to think of these things, much less to speak of them, but if that be so, there is some comfort and satisfaction to be found in the fact that today scores of great English and Scotch estates are being broken up and castles, mansions, and manors are passing into the hands of, as one London newspaper puts it, bitterly, "the war profiteer and no longer the noble family descending in these houses, whose fathers and forefathers lived in them, are putting them under the hammer of the auctioneer, and are going away."

It is one of the war's consequences. So heavily has the war borne upon the English landowner that he finds himself no longer able to maintain his estates, so, in whole or in part, he is giving them up and, as usual, saying very loudly about it. Long lists of estates and large in the London newspapers, and nearly every day there is a brief account of some old family demesne passing, after many generations, into strange hands. Here there is an old Tudor mansion, there a Georgian house, and there a castle, with manors and farms galore. Flat-dwellers would read with wonder of the astonishing numbers of rooms in these

"Ancient homes of lord and lady, Built for pleasure and for state."

Set around, these houses are, with broad lawns, plantations, and park lands. There are old yew hedges, and there are rose gardens, rock walls and iron gates, and inside there are halls and chambers, whose walls are panelled in oak. There are Jacobean stairs which in bygone times, knew the tread of great ladies in farthingales, and of men who arrayed themselves richly, took snuff, wore swords and used them, and maybe knew good port from bad. The Lord O'Hagan is selling or has sold the historic house of Pyrgo Park in Essex, once a royal residence. In Pyrgo Park there still stands and flourishes the old oak tree under which sat the great Stephen Beaufort when he was brought to her of the defeat of the Armada. Others who are selling include earls and dukes, many knights and a few men of high rank and naval and army, and some who fought through the war and are now called upon to make still further sacrifices. The Marquis of Epsom, who has sold parts of the Haddo House estate. Mr. Walter Long has parted with some, if not all, of his South "Wrexham" estate. There was a sold Shrewsbury recently the Sandown estate, which has been associated since the Norman Conquest. "Most of the farms," says an account of this sale, "were bought by the tenants, and included holdings as historic as Albright Homsey, a moat, half-timbered Saxons Homestead, and Battledown Farm, the site of 'Ye Bloode Bataille of Shrewsbury,' when Falstaff fought a long hour by Shrewsbury bridge."

Castle Maynard, in Argyleshire, Ruthin Castle, one of the historic landmarks of Denbighshire, Elton Castle in Aberdeenshire, and Lonsdown, with its subterranean caverns, and the famous Bulmers O'Buchan, are in the list, as is the old baronial castle of Closeburn in the Nith Valley, near Dumfries, Singleton Abbey, the residence of Lord Swansea, is for sale, with the Duke of Beaufort is turning over to the nation the famous Raglan Castle in Monmouthshire, built in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries on the site of a still older edifice. In nearly all these cases if not in every one, the sale is due to conditions left by the war. "I think it is only tonight," wrote Mr. Hugh Corbett, to his Sandown tenants "that I should explain the causes that have compelled me, much against my will, to dispose of the estate. The causes are directly due to the war, and are of a purely financial nature: (1) The very large increase of interest on encumbrances that for over 100 years have been charged on the estate; (2) Increase of title and taxation; (3) Rise in wages and in price of all materials; (4) Heavy fall in my income not derived from land." This with slight variations is the explanation generally applicable. It is only one feature of the war's cost one in which nobody having socialistic leanings will find occasion for regret. Yet it means, to some extent a wrenching out of the roots of English life, and of a phase of English life that has not been a bad thing for England or the world, which men of English blood uphold.—Montana Gazette.

GRAND FALLS MAN SHOT AND KILLED

Felix Francoeur Dies Instantly and Warrant Out For Joseph Grenier

TROUBLE AROSE OVER BUSINESS

Eye Witnesses of Tragedy Say Dead Man Used His Fist When Grenier Whipped Out Revolver — Constable on Way to Grenier's Lonely Home.

Grand Falls, N.B., Sept. 11.—Felix Francoeur, aged fifty-two years, engaged in sawing lumber, was shot through the breast, and instantly killed this afternoon. It is charged, by Joseph Grenier, a farmer, about seventy years of age. The shooting took place in the Drummond road, about half a mile from Grand Falls just in front of the home of Napoleon Michaud, and he and others in the house witnessed the tragedy. It is said that Francoeur and Grenier had been unfriendly for some time as a result of a dispute over some lumber. They met in the road and a quarrel took place. As a result, witnesses say, Francoeur with Grenier with his fist and the latter immediately whipped out a revolver from beneath his coat and fired point blank at Francoeur. The latter lurched forward and fell dead. Grenier then replaced the weapon and walked away, presumably going toward his home, about six miles from town. News of the shooting was brought to Grand Falls and the town was greatly excited. James Tibbitts of Andover, sheriff of the county, was communicated with and on his instruction a warrant was immediately issued by W. E. McMonagle for Grenier's arrest. Late in the afternoon Constable Jeremiah Sullivan set out for the St. John River road to apprehend Grenier, but up to a late hour tonight he had not returned. Geo. Ryan, coroner, has empanelled a jury and an inquest will begin this morning.

Francœur, known also as "Hart," an English rendering of his name, leaves his wife and one daughter. Grenier has a wife and family. His home is located some distance in the woods and difficulty was anticipated in reaching it tonight, while there is no absolute assurance that he went there.
