Twins Come to the Hopes, Wedded Last Year—The Brigands of Andalusia

(Copyright, 1912, by the Brentwood Company)

Twins are lucky, it is said. The house of Hopes, which has so many American affluents, is to be congratulated, for the Marchioness of Linlithgow, the wife of the head of the family, has just presented to her husband two boys who, according to the latest bulletins received, are both doing well. The happy father, to give the benefit of his full name and titles, is "Victor Alexander John Hope, Marquis of Linlithgow, in the County of Linlithgow, West Lothian, Earl of Hopetoun, Viscount Athlone, and Baron Hope, of the County of Lanark, in Scotland, Baron Hopetoun, of Hopetoun, and Baron Niddry, of Niddry Castle, County Linlithgow, in the United Kingdom."

He is in his twenty-fifth year, and succeeded his father, as second marquis, in 1902. In March, 1911, he married Doreen Maud, daughter of the Right Hon. Sir Frederick George Milner, Bart.

His first-born sons to a peer are rare. The most notable instance that occurs to me at the moment is that of Lord Darhan in the United Kingdom, and his wife, the Duchess of Manchester, Consuelo, daughter of Mrs. Ymagre of Scotland, had twin daughters, who grew up to be beautiful girls, only both died of consumption at eighteen. Lady Grey-Egerton, daughter of the late Major J. Wayne Guyler, U. S. A., also had twins, and afterwards obtained a divorce from her husband, could mention other cases where international marriages have proved prolific.

The bride is already an unassuming one in point of numbers, and as always been famed in England for appropriating a large share of the government's loans and fishes, in the shape of good, fat offices.

The popular point of view was inadvertently expressed by a rather modest, neat clergyman, in the parish church, near Hopetoun House, in Scotland. It was on the occasion of the coming of age of the late marquis. The bulk of the congregation was composed of members of the Hope family, and they had been led to believe that the minister would preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion. All were on the qui vive, eager to catch every word he uttered. But they were astounded when the discourse began with the words: "Brethren, the world is full of blasted hopes!"

Notwithstanding the sacredness of the edifice in which they were assembled, a titter broke out, which swelled into a roar of laughter, much to the dismay of the bridegroom, who was utterly innocent of the double meaning that could be attributed to his words.

I have said so much about the Hope family in these letters, that I do not think it necessary for me to recapitulate here the history of the family. As to the twins, I supposed the usual precaution of having taken to the children the first born, who is destined to succeed to the noble honors and estates, from which they will have to be contented with the meagre portion of a younger son. Probably the elder will be ornamented with a star on his forehead, and the younger will wear a turquoise earring, or some other such precautionary arrangement, so that the nurse may not mistake the diamond of that name, which is no longer in the family, does not deprive, and ever should have had, the reputation of being a "hoodoo," which some of the unfortunates, unaccountably ascribed, to it. So far from this being the case, the owners and wearers, during the time that its history can be traced, have been singularly fortunate. If superstitious people desired to attribute any occult influence to the famous gem, it seems to me that it would be more appropriate to call it "marquise."

Until four or five years ago, Andalusians still offered to tourists who were eager for violent emotions, some very presentable brigands, those best known and most frequently referred to being the audacious "Pernales" and the wily "Vivillo," both natives of Estepa, a small manufacturing town about sixty miles from Seville. Vivillo's real name was less melodious than his alias, for it was simply Joaquin Camargos. After being arrested with his competitor "Pernales," he succeeded in escaping to the ranks of respectability and to enjoy the pleasures of a life of ease, on the proceeds of his previous occupation, as well as the esteem of Argentinian officials, when an unfortunate treaty of extradition brought him, much against his wishes, to Spain, where he began to charge, none of them at all trifling, were awaiting him.

Meanwhile "Vivillo" has known so well how to plan his defence and also a surprising number of alibis, casting most of the blame, it goes without saying, upon the absent "Pernales," and his machinations against himself, not to mention the timely greasing of many paws, that he has been set at liberty on bail, awaiting his complete rehabilitation, and restoration to the ranks of respectability and civic worth. Then he will return to Argentina, where dwell his charming wife, and his two yet more charming daughters, whose beauty, careful education and comfortable marriage portion, excite the envy and admiration of all.

Meanwhile "Vivillo" is profiting by his conditional liberty, to visit Madrid, to write his memoirs, and to prepare a series of lectures, dealing with his "La Legende du Banditisme." This is a rare chance for the impresario who wish to introduce to their audiences something new and choice in the way of entertainment. Unfortunately, Vivillo, now of Estepa in proportions, no longer realizes the classical type of "the handsome brigand of the Sierra-Morena," which may interfere with the possibility of his becoming a matinee idol.

Daily Hints For the Cook

CUSTARD PIE.
Line a deep plate with pie crust, being careful not to let any air bubbles get underneath; leave about an inch of crust all around the edge, which turns over, form a ridge (which makes the pie thicker) and with thumb and forefinger pinch together, making little scallops. For a medium-size plate beat two eggs, add a pinch of salt and sugar to taste. The milk may be scalded, or not, as one prefers. In cold weather I like the chill off, as then the crust will not brown before the pie is gently swelled in the center, when it is done. Fill the plate and grate nutmeg over top. Don't have the oven too hot, else it will be apt to whet, and you want it to cut down solid, like cheese.

PARKER HOUSE ROLLS.
One large coffee cup of cold boiled milk, teaspoonful of salt, large tablespoonful of sugar, same of shortening. Rub flour, salt and shortening together. Use half a cake of compressed yeast, dissolved in the milk, and mix same as for bread, till the knife or spoon used in mixing cleaves from the dough. Use bread flour and do not mix more than a pint, till you see if it makes it stiff enough. If not, add what may be needed. Rise over night, cut down in the morning, let rise again, cut and rise the third time. Then knead the dough smooth and rise once more. Then roll out, cut with a biscuit cutter, about half an inch thick, dip your finger in a dish of melted butter, rub over the top, fold, and put to rise in pan, the last time. Bake in a good hot oven fifteen minutes.

GLENWOOD RANGES FOR COAL, WOOD OR GAS

The delight of every housekeeper is her cooking, and it is not the cook to blame if the stove does not bake well, if the fire strips are warped out of position, and the oven top is cracked, so as to allow the ashes to drop down on your cooking, or your oven top is so thin that the heat goes through it so quickly, that it burns every thing on top, before it is cooked in the bottom.

Your first move then is to get a new range, you can go and see all the different ranges that are on the market, find all their advantages, then come and see the Celebrated Glenwood, that is made in St. John, you have over thirty different styles to choose from, and 3,000 excellent testimonials from satisfied users in St. John. This is evidence enough of the satisfaction they are giving, and what they are doing for others they will do for you.

You Can't Always Sometimes Tell
By RUTH CAMERON

If there is any one situation, to which the excellent maxim "You can't always sometimes tell" is more thoroughly pertinent than to any other, it is to other folks' quarrels and family disagreements.

"I do think Gertrude is terribly disagreeable and unjust to her sister," I heard one girl say of another. "Why, the other day Gertrude snatched her sister up because she made some little statement that wasn't exactly accurate. And she's just as sweet and nice. I can't see what made Gertrude so hateful to her."

Of course, this self appointed critic couldn't see what made Gertrude so hateful. How should she be able to? She has never lived with the sister, doesn't know how trying her habit of hose and inaccurate statements has become, how irritating it is to hear her talk fluently about matters of which she knows absolutely nothing.

That's just the trouble with all our snap judgments of other people's family disagreements. We see the result of innumerable little causes without seeing more than one or two of these causes.

"Mrs. So-and-so is terribly impatient with her husband," we say. "Why, the other day he was fifteen minutes late to dinner and she would hardly speak to him all through the meal," or "Mr. Such-and-such is so strict with his daughter. He doesn't believe in company and he wouldn't even let her have her college room mate to spend a week with her."

Now, that certainly sounds as if Mrs. So-and-so and Mr. Such-and-such were very unreasonable people. But in each case we have criticized a result without taking into account more than one of the innumerable little causes which stood behind that result.

It was not because Mr. So-and-so was late for dinner that one day that his wife was so indignant. It was because his tardiness that day was but one more manifestation of his habits of needless tardiness to meals which has made her household harder all her married life.

It was not merely against this one visit that Mr. Such-and-such protested. It was against that as the culmination of a series of visits which had been tiring to the little wife and mother.

It is the whole load which breaks the camel's back. We criticize the camel because we only see the last straw.

In the close corporation of family life there are many conditions which an outsider cannot possibly appreciate. If you are a friend of the square deal in thought and word, as well as in action, do not try to judge of such matters. Remember that "You can't always sometimes tell" is a most excellent maxim.

SEE MORE HOPE FOR RICHESON

Noted Alienist Has Been Carrying on Examination and Will Report to Governor

Boston, May 8.—The explanation for the long delay of Governor Foss to deny the petition of Clarence V. T. Richeson for commutation of the death sentence to that of imprisonment for life for the slaying of Avis Lamell, or refer to it to the governor's council was learned when it became known that Dr. Lloyd Vernon Bidgley, a nerve specialist and insanity expert, has been examining the prisoner and either already has or will report to the governor his findings.

The fact that this noted specialist was asked or commissioned by the governor to examine the prisoner has been kept a profound secret, but it is learned that Dr. Bidgley has been at the jail and talked with Clarence V. T. Richeson and is to report to the governor on the physical and mental condition of Richeson.

Governor Foss has shown a disposition from the start to act cautiously and in a manner that will meet the approval of the fair-minded portion of the public who are interested in the case so soon to be decided.

Things are beginning to brighten up a bit for the prisoner, and his friends are now more hopeful that the governor will refer the petition to the governor's council. In fact, it looks more encouraging for Richeson than it did a week ago.

Meanwhile the ominous sound of the workmen on the roof of the death house at the state prison, where Richeson will be transferred some time in the night of Thursday unless the governor stays the sentence of death until such time as the governor's council can pass on the case.

Richeson is reported from the Charles Street jail as being in fairly good physical condition and hopeful that his sentence will be commuted.

SHE GAVE UP HOPE

When Mrs. Joseph Lombard, who lives at 229 Starr street, Brooklyn, wrote this letter in the hope that it would be seen by discouraged women, she did something that will be of help to many thousands.

She says: "After suffering for five years from weakness and loss of flesh without finding any relief, I almost gave up hope of ever getting better."

"About this time Vinol was recommended to me and I have found it a truly wonderful remedy. I have regained my health and feel strong and well again. I cannot say enough in praise of Vinol."

All weak, exhausted women and men, all pale, puny children and feeble old folks, can have new health and strength by taking this delicious cod liver and iron remedy. It contains no oil and is agreeable to even the most delicate stomach. Vinol is a great appetizer and body-builder for every person who is run down and weak. We give back your money if Vinol does not do all we claim. Watson's 100 King street.

NOT A GREAT SUCCESS.
Frederick Mall—There was a heavy frost last evening at the City Opera House, the occasion being the performance of the "Alabama Troubadour." The troupe, it is said, is composed of colored people from St. John, who have been playing towns up the river. What audience did attend the show took the hint when the song, "Everybody's Doing It Now," was sung. Everybody left the house.

GORGING IS SUICIDE

In these words a prominent graduate of Harvard Medical School, E. R. Moras, M. D., calls attention to the habit of "over-eating," which is resulting in the shortening of so many useful lives.

Every day you read of deaths of persons in middle life caused by acute indigestion, peritonitis, appendicitis or Bright's disease. All of which result from over-eating, which is the habit of the modern man.

The liver gets sluggish, the bowels become constipated, and the whole system is poisoned by the fermenting waste matter.

You can overcome this poisoned condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Then turn over a new leaf and eat less, particularly of meats, pastry and highly-seasoned foods. One Kidney-Liver Pill occasionally at bedtime will keep the liver and bowels active and insure the healthful working of the organs of digestion.

Women In Society

Lifeless Hair Doesn't Match a Graceful Form and Handsome Face

Glorious hair! how many women want it and how few have it. The care of the hair is a puzzle to most women, yet any woman, no matter what her station in life, can easily acquire a wealth of radiant, luxuriant hair, as fascinating that everyone will admire it.

Use PARISIAN SAGE, that's the secret of beautiful hair. Use this refined, refreshing, hair dressing regularly, and soon dandruff will disappear; falling hair will cease; scalp itch will vanish and life and beauty will quickly appear.

PARISIAN SAGE is just as good for men and children as for women, and if it doesn't give satisfaction to any user money will be refunded. Large bottle 50 cents at A. Chipman Smith and dealers everywhere.

CASCARETS FOR A SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Gently But Thoroughly Cleanse And Regulate Your Stomach, Liver and Bowels While You Sleep

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases, that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness, and sick headache, means indigestion; a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any. Try Cascarets; they cure indigestion, because they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended for ever. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

SHOULD CO-OPERATE TO GET IMMIGRANTS

ST. JOHN DAY CAMP.

The Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis yesterday decided to ask the city commission for the extension of water and sewerage systems to their property near the Strait Shore. They will also ask the county council to take immediate steps towards the erection of a hospital for advanced cases. They hope to establish a day camp on the property as soon as possible.
