

A LADY of a truly manly spirit, accompanied by a small poodle, is said to have sadly failed the other day in an attempted reformatory movement. She entered the smoking car of a Western train and solemnly refused to go into another car, observing that her presence would keep the occupants from smoking. One stony wretch, however, inaccessible to the claims of refinement and reform, began to enjoy his accustomed cigar, which was suddenly snatched from his lips, with the remark, in high treble, "If there is anything I do hate it is tobacco smoke!" For a time the offender was silent and motionless, then gravely rising, amid the plaudits of the assembled smokers, he took that little poodle and gently threw him out of the window, sighing, "If there is anything I do hate it is a poodle!" No mortal pen could describe the feelings of that reformer.

While a party of young men were serenading Mr. Bloom of New Orleans, the other night, that gentleman appeared and made a speech in which he alluded to an old and faithful shot gun. He was heartily cheered by the crowd, and several times shot at, but he escaped injury and managed to distribute about four handfuls of buck shot pretty evenly among his admirers.
