THE BORDING PRIVILEGE AND THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

It has been understood for some time past that it was the intention of the government of the United States to place all possible obstacles in the way of Canadian commerce. This way of Canadian commerce, this much has been admitted by the New York Tribune which is as near to the administration as any other paper, but the first authoritative statement of what is contemplated comes by way of Montreal. It appears from a Montreal despatch that the Dominion Carriage Company has received from an American transportation company a copy of a letter from the Treasury Department at Washington recommending them not to accept for shipment to Mexico a consignment of carriages, as at the time the goods are ready the building privileges which Canada enjoyed would be abrogated. The letter, it is said, was laid before the Minister of Customs who will bring it before a Cabinet meeting. Last spring the Dominion Carriage Company sent a consignment of 1,000,000 carriages to Mexico, and as a result received an order for 100,000 more from the Mexican government, but before filling it thought it prudent to take advice from an American source with the result stated. It would appear from this that Canadian goods are no longer to be forwarded through the United States, in bond for shipment to the United States, but that the design if carried out will once put an end to the transit trade of Canada which in bond at American ports now goes to Boston, New York and Portland to St. John. Such a restriction of the trade at once emphasizes the necessity for the West India steamship line which the Globe has been so anxious to destroy, and will make St. John the terminal point of an important freight increasing our trade. To do this business, however, must have terminal facilities, and that without any further delay. Now that the intentions of the United States government are disclosed there can be no excuse for further inaction.

THE TRAITOR SPEARS.

That contemptible and desecrating organ of treason, the Globe, last evening under the heading "The Era of Peace," published an article in which the cloven foot of a traitor was shown to the fullest extent. The proper title of the article would have been "Hand down the British flag," for that was the conclusion of the whole matter. The Evening Gazette commenced by informing his readers that everybody in England, from the first statesman to the last to the penny-seller in the cheapest press, makes haste to declare that no matter what happens over the Behring sea business there is no war between the United States and Great Britain over it. "England is determined," says this purveyor of treason "so far as it is possible to determine anything in advance never again to fight with America." Then the Globe proceeds to say that it is nothing to John Ball who captures the seals so long as they come to his market to be prepared for use. The ignorant blockhead who wrote the article in which this statement is made evidently knows nothing of the recent correspondence between the Marquis of Salisbury and Mr. Blaine with regard to further seizures of Canadian vessels in Behring sea. As opposed to the ignorance or mendacity of the Globe we quote from that great newspaper the Brooklyn Eagle, to show our readers how Lord Salisbury's attitude appears in the eyes of a well-informed American newspaper. "About two months ago Sir John Lubbock notified our department that he no longer submitted to the British vessels, and that if the practice continued the United States must take the responsibility of the consequences. There was no such thing as mistaking the significance of the notification. It meant simply that if our revenue cutters made any effort to capture 'possession' Admiral Holman's fleet would result. This compelled the Washington cabinet to entertain without delay the question of war or peace. The orders issued by the treasury department required the offending vessels. Unless they were promptly suspended or condemned, armed conflict with Great Britain might be precipitated at any moment. The only value to our national pride when the situation offered was the fact that we had never expressly asserted our right to exclusive jurisdiction. We had argued cogently points as to our possession of the right, but we had not in so many words threatened the capture of the offending vessels. The issue of war or peace was, presumably presented. Captain Erskine's intelligence leaves us little or no reason to doubt what the conclusion was. The orders of the treasury were strictly not to execute them until further notice.

The above is a correct statement of the position taken by the British government, and it shows that far from being prepared to sacrifice the rights of Canadians, as the lying Globe states, the British government was prepared to vindicate them even to the extent of going to war.

The closing paragraph of the Globe's article is, however, the one which will most attract the attention of the reader for it shows that notwithstanding the Globe's recent hypocritical praise of the Queen the desire of its editor to hand down the British flag is still as strong as ever. We quote this paragraph in full—After all it would be a great deal better for the European powers if they could see their way clear to a resignation of

GRAND LODGE, EVENING SESSION.

Address of Welcome From the District of St. John, N. B., to the Grand Masters.

In the evening of the St. John District Lodge met at the Orange hall and, escorted by the members of the private lodge in regalia proceeded to Jack's Hall, where they were received by Grand Lodge. The district master read the address of welcome as follows:—
To His Worshipful Master, Grand Master of the St. John District Lodge, and to the members of the lodge, I have the honor to greet you and to extend to you a most hearty welcome to the lodge of St. John. We esteem it a high honor, indeed, that the members of the lodge should have selected this city in which to hold the 61st annual session, more especially as it is in the year of the bi-centenary of our beloved order, and taken in connection with that makes the event of more than the usual importance to us.

PEOPLES IN THE COUNTRY.

Several correspondents have called our attention to the fact that the hotel dealers are now over-run with peddlers who are doing much injury to the hotel trade. Most of these people are from New Brunswick, who pay no taxes and who contribute nothing to the support of the institutions which form a part of our civilization. Rural dealers feel that it is a great grievance that they should be expected to compete with these people and to express the opinion that they should be protected against them by the imposition of a license fee on all such dealers. In the State of Maine peddlers have to pay a license of $20 which places them on a footing of contributors to the revenue of the Commonwealth. In Nova Scotia there is also a license fee exacted from peddlers, which goes into the funds of the county in which they sell their wares and they are liable to arrest if this license is not paid. In New Brunswick, however, so far as we are aware, there is no license demanded of peddlers and there is a law requiring them to pay a license if it is not enforced. This is a matter to which the Provincial government might very properly give its attention.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The real govern of Halifax has organized themselves into an association the main object of which seems to be the obtaining and recording of information in regard to the standing of customers, which information is to be at the disposal of members of the association. It will now be in order for the customers to form an association for the purpose of collecting information on adulteration to the honesty and standing of the goods with special reference to the published official reports on adulteration. Possibly the end will be the establishment of a big cooperative store in Halifax for the sale of groceries.

THE MONITOR TIMES, which is edited by Mr. H. S. Stevens, M. P., says in an editorial:

"It appears from the Sun that at the Victoria Convention on Saturday Mr. Baird trotted out that old lie about what was said to Mr. O'Brien at the meeting of the session will be concluded in that spirit which has ever characterized the deliberations of our chief governing body, and that 'the greatest good to the greatest number' will be the grand aim in view. Finally, brethren, when you leave our city, may it be with the wish soon to return, and may the recollection with the aid of the memory of a master that St. John will ever have a lasting place in your memory."

Practically, P. A. McVILLER, District Master.

Feedback Notes.

Russian leather gloves, with thick seams, have been adopted for travel. Some of the crops and shrubs are being raised in the shelter of the house of the most strings is the latest and Frenchest touch of millinery.

A good number of girls who go to the dance are showing a coarser complexion than ever before.

Another fashion that requires much discretion to make it commendable is the plain, light, sea-scape in the hair, light, sea-scape in the hair, light, sea-scape in the hair.

As a rule all women need money to make a hit in the fashionable. This year is an exception, every design and color being so spring-like in character as to make a gay, youthful. For instance the midsummer toilets are charming, very simple, youthful looking, and fitting, therefore very different to wear, and demand a special study to make them properly becoming. Ladies with stout and robust figures should avoid certain types of fashion, and show all the light skirt worn over equal light and very scanty petticoats, as it is cut in front and at the sides without the slightest flaring, for at every movement the outline of the figure, from the waist down, may be clearly defined, while the wearer is standing the clinging skirt may even be pardoned, but when she moves or sits down the effect is neither seemly nor graceful.

A new divergence in this respect shows the outline of the hair pattern marked out with cord or even narrow ribbon. As the newest fashions in common have been the of the Gaiety. The effect of those answers is that persons who have only been baptized by sprinkling are not Christians and need not necessarily be damned.

As these questions were probably published merely to enable the new editor to set himself right with his subscribers, we think it only proper to give questions and answers the benefit of the free circulation of the Gazette. The effect of those answers is that persons who have only been baptized by sprinkling are not Christians and need not necessarily be damned.

The Canadian Minister of Customs will start next week from Ottawa on an official trip westward, accompanied by Mr. Hickey, M.P. and assistant Commissioner of Customs. He will proceed to Fort McLeod and thence on horseback past through the Rockies, via Crow's Nest, to the Kootenay mining district in British Columbia. The trip through the mountains will occupy about ten days.
