Paris, May 26.—Sir Charles to-day continued his examination into American precedents on the right of seizure. He said that the occupation of Pensacola, Fla., and the bombardment of Greytown were justifiable, as it was a retaliatory war. He referred to the alleged assertion of exclusive claim by Great Britain to the banks of Newfoundland and showed that her exceptional rights were acquired by treaty with France and Spain, and did not apply to other nations, and were never asserted after the declaration of independence, and the claim was specifically denied by Lord Bathurst in 1815. This view was endorsed by American counsel. The Halifax commission in 1877, also the report of the congressional committee in report of the congressional committee in 1886 were discussed with reference to the enforcement of penalties in violation of British quarantine laws outside territorial limits. Sir Charles explained that such could be enforced only after the offenders had entered territorial waters, therefore there was no analogy. He then took up the question of the right of search. He showed that the searching search. He showed that the searching of slave vessels was to ascertain if they were fraudulently flying the wrong flag. Sir Charles quoted Lord Stowell and Judge Story, who agreed that no authority existed for the interruption or seizure of the yessels of friendly nations; also Lord Malmesbury, who officially acknowledged that reparation was due to yessels interrupted when suspicion due to vesels interrupted when suspicion of fraud was proved to be unfounded. He quoted American Secretary Case, 1859, who strongly denied the right of interruption or seizure of foreign vessels except in time of war.

Sir Charles then referred to Mr. Phelps' analogy as to distant light houses, and showed that protection rested on territorial, not property rights, and analyzed the American and analyzed the American argument as to the laws of other nations for pro-tecting seal life. The Falkland Islands' regulations, he showed, were only applicable within territorial limits, and never enforced beyond. Every reference to American Commissioner Elliott evokes vehement protests from the Americans, tain liberties within territorial limits, but there could be no dispute about these rights out of those limits. American state papers show that Britain has always recognized the universal rights of nations in open seas. Indeed, for years, American, French and British fishermen had equally frequented the banks of Newfoundland, and British quarantine penalties were only applicable when offending vessels entered a British port, and therefore quarantine laws afforded no analogy to the seizure of foreign vessels on the high seas.

EX-SECRETARY FOSTER FAILS. A Big Financial Sensation-Mr. Foster States His Case.

Fostoria, Ohio, May 26.—Ex-Secretary Foster and the banking house of Foster & Co., have assigned. There is great excitement in Fostoria. New York, May 26.—The Foster Banking Company, of Fostoria, Ohio, which was reported to have assigned this morning, according to the last issue of the Bankers' Almanac, had a capital of $45,000, a surplus of $20,000, and undivided profits of $9000.

Foster was in business in Fostoria as dry goods merchant. Soon after the war he helped to organize the Fostoria war he helped to organize the Fostoria National Bank. By shrewd calculation in real estate, he became wealthy, and in 1879, when elected governor of Ohio for the first time, he was reputed to be worth $1,000,000. During the next four years he lost heavily in the Lake Superior copper mines, in natural gas and street railway speculation. At Findlay, Ohio, during its temporary boom, he in-Ohio, during its temporary boom, he invested largely. When the bubble burst he, with many others lost many thousands of dollars. He also lost by endorsing notes for business and political friends. Since then he attempted to recoup his losses, but only became more deeply involved. The crash was temporarily averted by his appointment as secretary of the treasury. It is thought he will at best not more than pay his

The presence of the sheriff was the first inkling many people got that something was wrong, and it soon leaked out that an assignment had been made. The news spread rapidly and soon the streets were filled with people eager to learn the extent of the calamity that had befallen the city.

The assignment of ex-Secretary Foster was the signal for the assignment of a number of concerns. Half a dozen prominent industries will go to the wall and hundreds of persons will be thrown out of employment. Washington, D. C., May 26.—Universal sympathy is expressed here for exsecretary Foster in his financial embarrassment. Especially is this the case in the treasury department, where Foster was personally very popular. Fostoria, May 23, (3:30 p. m.)—The following statement was given to the public this morning by the ex-secretary: "Words cannot express the deep distress and humiliation I feel. If I could bear all the burden that my failure will entail. I should feel a sense of reief." It is no consolation to look back over a business life of 45 years, which has gained for me a position of confidence that has rarely been achieved. I know that I have aided hundreds of people to maintain an honorable standing, or to THE PRINCESS MAY vice called "three hours at the cross," led by "Commander" and Mrs. Ballington Booth.

He said the minority report was substituted for the majority two days ago simply for action in the order of business, but it did not dispose of the report providing for the closing of the gates on Sunday. Belfast, May 25.—Lord Salisbury, responding to an address presented nim at Ulster hall to-day, contended that the union of Great Britain and Ireland had not proved a failure. Mr. Gladstone had challenged his (Lord Salisbury's) declaralenged his (Lord Salisbury's) declaration that 20 years of resolute government would suffice to establish peace and prosperity in Ireland. The fact was that only six years of Conservative law had shown that these remedies would succeed. Lord Salisbury repudiated the reports from Gladstonian sources to the effect that, if home rule should be defeated now, the Conservatives and their Liberal-Unionist allies would suggest a similar scheme. This report had no foundation. Whenever the Conservatives should again be in charge of the government they would go back to the policy which they had already put to test with good results. The purpose of the meeting was for a public expression of opinion as to the enforcement of the Geary act. The crowd was enthusiastic but orderly. President Cleveland was condemned in a series of resolutions for interfering with the carrying out of the act. Among other things he was described as the greatest anarchist in the country. No political significance was given to the meeting. The character of the crowd was of the solid laboring class, who were apparently doubly ing class, who were apparently doubly interested in the discussion. The quiet discussions among those present were as interesting as all the speeches of the formal speakers. All appeared determined to have the Chinese driven out.
