SMALL ATTENDANCE AT WINTER FAIR

Severe Weather Kept Many Away
Kings Co., N. S., Leads in the Shorthorn Exhibit—Interesting Addresses Delivered.

AMHERST, N. S., Dec. 4.—The terrible snowstorm that raged here all this morning greatly interfered with the attendance at the Maritime Winter Fair. In the morning only a handful of people were present, while in the afternoon it was somewhat better although much below the average. The day was taken up with judging the different classes, which work will probably be finished tomorrow. Everyone is much pleased with the show. The evening meeting was well attended. Col. Campbell, of Apohaqui, was the chairman. The first speaker was Staff Captain McGillivray, of Ontario, who delivered an interesting address on the immigration policy of the Dominion. He told of the plan for the future. The first ship this year will arrive about the first of March. The Army will bring about 30,000 people. He gave information as to how these immigrants can be secured. The next speaker was J. A. Ruddick, of Ottawa, Dominion dairy commissioner, who gave an explanation of the nature of the work being carried on. Duncan Anderson, of Rugby, Ontario, dealt with sheep raising, speaking of the objections raised in the provinces to this industry and how to overcome them. The address was of much value to all. Judging of beef was about completed and the judging of swine and sheep commenced. Owing to the small number present an opportunity offered for all present to watch the work and learn from the addresses. In the pure-bred short horn class Kings county, N. S., this year carried off the laurels. "Willow Bank" farm, C. R. H. Starr & Sons, having won the following in strong competition: Both sweepstakes, 1st and 2nd in age class, 3rd in 2-year olds, 1st in yearlings, 1st in calves, also sweepstakes and first money offered by the Dominion Short Horn Breeders Association, given for the best short-horn female any age.

UNION LABOR SOLD INTO STRIKE

$1,500 Price Leaders Got for Paralyzing Chicago.
Teamsters of the Whole City Turned into Rioting Law-breakers—Conspirators on Trial.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—The real "inside" story of the great teamsters' strike of 1905 was told by the men who "knew" before the famous $30,000 Shea jury yesterday. The man who made the chief revelation was Albert Young, Shea's former associate and his first lieutenant in the strike. Young caused a sensation by turning State's evidence at the opening of the trial, along with three other leaders who were co-defendants in the case. A chapter of labor history unrivaled in sensationalism in Chicago was spread on the court records. It dealt with "graffing," with secret caucuses, intrigues existing prior to and during the teamsters' strike, with extortion practiced on leading business firms by union officials, with "slugging" attacks, and violence "winked at" and ordered by Shea and other strike leaders. Some of the specific things the State hopes to prove chiefly through Young's testimony as outlined in Assistant State Attorney Miller's statement to the jury are: That a "substantial" sum of money was paid to Shea and four other leaders to call a strike on Montgomery. That the "bargain" was made at a clandestine meeting in a saloon near the corner of Washington and La Salle streets. That the strike was called without a vote of the "rank and file" of the teamsters' unions. That Shea organized picket "squads" the members of which were personally instructed by Shea daily, and were detailed to "slug" this man or that man involved in the struggle. That certain business firms were "favored" with "permits" for which they paid, to allow their teams to pass the picket lines. Using Albert Young, who on Friday pleaded guilty to conspiracy and voluntarily turned State's evidence, as his means of attack, Miller struck terror into the hearts of the labor leaders

ATMOSPHERIC SMUGGLING.
New Worry for John Bull—Aerial Preventive Service Proposed.
LONDON, Dec. 4.—The legal possibility of smuggling air carriages for trespassing on the atmosphere above private lands was recently mentioned in these despatches. A further possibility of international trouble arising from smuggling through the air is now being discussed. It is contended that there is nothing to prevent smugglers in future from using aeroplanes and other flying machines for the purpose of evading customs officers, except by establishing a service of preventive flyers, which will catch offenders on the wing. This opens exciting prospects for the adventurous. The existing smuggling laws of Great Britain, at any rate, are so worded that they would confer on customs officers the power to challenge, chase, and search such machines and seize any dutiable goods, as well as the machine, and the person engaged in air-smuggling. It is pointed out that, taking everything into consideration, such a service would necessarily be on a large scale, and would induce many to take the risk of consequences. On trial. Almost every question put to Young was met with stubborn objections on the part of Shea's lawyers, but with scarcely an exception Judge Bell overruled these objections and Young was allowed to tell his story to the jury. The court room was filled to the doors with union sympathizers and labor leaders, and as the lawyers closed their mouths on the evidence of the strained attention and frequent whispered murmurs of the spectators told of the great interest in every phase of the case. After telling of the meeting of Shea, Barry, McGee, McCarthy, Noren and himself, which took place in a private room off the Stock Exchange barroom during the month of April, 1905, Young went into all the details. He told how Shea and McCarthy had notified him of the meeting. He said that Noren had $1,500, which was divided into four parts of $300 and given to them. Noren took a rebate of $30 from each of the men on the suggestion of Shea. Young's testimony included detailed accounts of several meetings of the leaders of the teamsters' sympathetic strike. He said that he on several occasions remonstrated because he thought that the teamsters were getting along well with their employers, were being treated well, and ought not to get into trouble.

THE BRAINIEST GLACE BAY DOG

Has the Reputation of Starting More Fights Than Any Other Dog, But He Always Escapes Without a Scratch.

GLACE BAY, Dec. 4.—There is a dog in our town who is a bit of a practical joker. He has been known to look at, being of the door mat variety and barking of eye, but he has plenty gray matter in his head. He has been known to brain power he has all the other dogs around town away back in the kindergarten. He has been known to come out of every fight with not the sign of a scratch on him. This is not due to the fact that he quietly slips away as soon as he has got the other dog into the heat of battle. From a nearby dooryard he will watch the progress of the scrap and after the smoke of war has cleared away, he moves on to another corner and starts another scrap. He is the champion trouble maker of the dog family, and so far he has managed to come out with a whole skin. But his time must be coming.

HOUSE OF LORDS AND THE TRADES DISPUTE BILL

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The House of Lords tonight passed the second reading of the trades dispute bill. Lord Lansdowne, in explaining the bill, said that it raised the question as to what extent the House of Lords was justified in barring the way of measures recommended by the House of Commons, in the opinion of the House of Lords, were detrimental to public interests. He said he believed the duty of the House of Lords was to arrest the progress of a measure when it believed it had not been sufficiently discussed or in some cases with the wishes of the people. The Government had a candidate from the people on the present measure, however, so that he only secure support to the House of Lords was to pass the bill although the House regarded it as an interfering measure.
