ployed in these Missions is thirteen, besides two assistants. Three others have recently sailed for this department of the Missions.'

"The stations in the district of Albany have proved highly successful, and the influence of the Missions is rapidly extending among the surrounding Heathen. The stations in Albany, comprising Graham's Town, Salem, and Somerset, have two hundred and fifty-five Members united in Christian Society; and five Schools, in which five hundred and thirty-seven scholars are instructed, including eighty adults."

"A Missionary has also been recently appointed to reside with Dapa, a Mambookie Chief, the son of a European woman (probably an English woman) who had been wrecked off the coast, and afterwards united to one of the Chiefs. The troubles occasioned by the predatory attacks of Chaka, a haughty and ambitious Chief, have driven Dapa from his residence; but the death of Chaka, who has been assassinated by one of his own people, and the peaceable character of his successor, encourage the hope that not only Dapa will now return to his former residence, but that the whole country will rest from war."

MISSIONS IN WESTERN AFRICA.

"The Stations in Western Africa are Sierra Leone and St. Mary's on the Gambia. At Sierra Leone two Missionaries were regularly employed, till their labours were suspended by death. The Mission continues to prosper; and the Schools at Congo and Portuguese Towns have been aided by the kind contributions of several persons belonging to the Society of Friends. We have about one hundred and thirty persons in society; and about eighty scholars in the Schools."
