

Toronto ATC - ND. Stirling release.
Toronto ATC - Hello.
Stirling - Stirling, Toronto. About us reading him pretty good, it might be atmospheric. I was just going to mention that time that 1424 I think it was, the time the Beechcraft was lost up around Camp Borden there.
Toronto ATC - You could read him better than Toronto eh.
Stirling - Yes, the same thing was predominating there. No other station could read him. Apparently Muskoka couldn't make him out and Toronto couldn't read him. I know the operator here thought it was fairly close to here but we found out that he was up by Camp Borden, eventually.
Toronto ATC - Righto, thanks Stirling. ND 20.
- radio here.
Toronto ATC - Are you working 51?
- I haven't heard him so far.
Toronto ATC - I'll tell you, we have a Grumman that's lost enroute Montreal to Toronto. We estimate he's between Stirling and Toronto. He's CER but he's lost.
- Just a second, I'll get that down. CER between Stirling and YZ eh?
Toronto ATC - Yes, and he's been asking for fixes, he's lost. I was wondering if you might ask 51 to keep a sharp lookout for him, he might possibly see him.
- Yes, what frequency is he on?
Toronto ATC - He's on 3105. The aircraft wouldn't be able to take a bearing on him but there's just a possibility he might see the navigation lights at night and tell us where he is.
- Yes, well I'll see what I can do.
Toronto ATC - Alright. ND 21.
- LN

Toronto ATC - A direction finding station.
Buffalo tower - Oh, I'll call you back.
Toronto ATC - Yes.
Toronto ATC - Toronto.
Buffalo tower - Buffalo tower, what was it you wanted to know?
Toronto ATC - If you had a direction finding station at Buffalo? We have a lost aircraft in the vicinity of Toronto and we are trying to get a fix on him.
Buffalo tower - Oh, that's on the Federal Communications System. There should be one here, I'll check the number on that and call you right back.
Toronto ATC - Righto.
