

Gingerbread BRAND Molasses

"The Kind Grandma Used"

Real British West Indies Molasses—rich enough to go in her Fruit Cake, Mince Meat and Plum Pudding—delicious enough to be used for Gingerbread and Molasses Cookies—pure and wholesome enough for homemade Candies.

That's what "Gingerbread Brand" is.

Fresh from selected sugar plantations in the British West Indies in Nos. 2, 3, 5 and 10 lever-top cans.

This is the can to look for

If your grocer shouldn't have "Gingerbread Brand", don't take bulk molasses or thin syrups. Insist on having the real thing.

Never has one been returned as unsatisfactory. That should be sufficient proof that the famous double action Knoll Washer washes clothes sweet and clean without wear and tear. It does the work faster and easier than others. It holds a little more water, and the clothes come out so fresh they're almost rinsed.

DIRECT FROM FACTORY TO YOU

We ship the Knoll direct from the factory to you, and pay the freight. We guarantee it fully. If you don't think it is better than any other washer return it at our expense. Send for free Knoll booklet which describes the moral women;" "harsh treatment of farmers by machine agents tending to make them dishonest;" "lack of social life, religious services and education;" "materialistic outlook;" "public dances and the comic supplement;" "commercialism;" "bars are closed, but government dispensary open and does rushing business;" "the Mormons;" "massing of the soldiers;" "two local papers of a low order, but which support local enterprises and patriotic enterprises;" "gossip mostly;" "none;" "restaurant open on Sunday;" "Sunday baseball, play and berry picking;" "low ideals of a number of the men and women."

Forces Raising Standards

The following forces are considered to tend towards the raising of the standards of public morality and social welfare: "Schools, churches, societies, music classes and every force that uses available power;" "law enforcement;" "public schools and municipal council;" "the church only;" "healthful games;" "churches and secret societies;" "advent of railway;" "musical instruments;" "social gatherings and libraries;" "the community spirit;" "the sympathy of our picture proprietor for clean shows;" "athletics and women's organizations;" "freedom;" "good literature;" "social service council;" "Royal North West Mounted Police;" "resident minister and his wife;" "libraries, religious periodicals;" "Boy Scouts and Young Peoples Societies;" "church and grain growers;" "influence of many of the school teachers;" "all social gatherings, including the dances, foster a grand feeling of unity; their family feeling is sufficiently wide to include newcomers and foreigners;" "good teachers and occasionally university extension lectures;" "economic hardship and business depression;" "W.C.T.U. and Co-operative Society;" "abolition of the bar;" "growth of co-operation;" "added emphasis on community welfare;" "pulpit, moral reform league and town council;" "the spirit of self-sacrifice occasioned by the war demands;" "a few thoroughly Christian men and women;" "high character of public school teachers and co-operation of churches and temperance organizations;" "higher ethics which the people appear to be adopting."

What a conflict between this array of opposing forces! It is rather curious but some are included in both lists. Possibly they are not so antagonistic as they appear.

SOLDIER WANTS FARM

Herewith is a copy of a letter just received by the editor of The Guide from one of the Western Canadian farmers who enlisted early in the war and is now in the hospital at Malta.

"By way of an introduction I may state I was farming near Sedgewick, Alta., before the war up to 1914, and as a subscriber to your valuable paper naturally look to you for advice on a matter pertaining to farming.

"I have been thinking I should like to take up a farm again should I get thru alright, but for preference would choose a locality where English people are plentiful. There must be many such that have come to your notice and I would be glad for you to send me a letter giving the names of any small towns that cover the description I have given.

"I don't know yet whether I would rent or homestead, of course I would consult with my wife in the first place.

"Trusting this will not give you much trouble and wishing The G.G. Guide a continued prosperous career, I am,

HARRY FENSHAM, No. 10484,

15. Vet. Cps.,

C1 Ward,

St. Patrick's Hospital,

Malta."

It is not possible for the editor of The Guide to give Mr. Fensham the information offhand. If any person who reads this can help to direct Mr. Fensham to the kind of a locality he would like, please send a letter in to the editor of The Guide and it will be forwarded to him at once. This is a case where we can help one of our returning soldiers to get well and comfortably located again.—The Editor.

An amortization loan is one in which a part of the principal is paid each time the interest is paid. An amortization loan of $1000 at 6 per cent, running 20 years will require an annual payment of $87.18, while if it is at 5 per cent, the payments will be $80.24, i.e., 20 payments of $80.24 will pay the interest and the principal.
