Tells of What He Realfy Found on the Koyukuk-Arctic City is no More-How Battles Headed Off a Townsite Scheme.

J. W. Dodson, familiarly known as "Windy Jim," is starting for the coast to complete the biggest winter trip of which we have heard. Not only has he traveled afoot from St Mich- man and George Dague. sels, but he has also made long detours up the many side streams to which he delivered mail, and completing from St. Michaels to Skaguay the phenominal trip of 3,020 miles afoot sinceleaving St. Michaels November 7 with a thousand letters. For four hundred miles, in one piece, he broke his own trail, besides doing so in numerous other places to head the various

The letters he carried were addressed to various of the hundred or more steamers which had eft St. Michaels during the summer for up river where some of them were, but more of them were lost to human knowledge. At the mouth of the Koyukuk 2,200 more letters were picked any addressed in the same way. It was learned there that 51 of the steamers were upon the various affluents of that stream. Every one of them ous affluents of that stream. Every one of them ous affluents of the stream of the content of the stream of points and had not returned. It was known the forks, and finally the big divide to the Yukon which carried our traveler to Dahl river. Over 3000 letters were delivered upon the Koyukuk to men who had not heard from the out-

A Good flan have even heard the story that fifty cents has been found to the pan on Poor Man's creek, which is the south fork," but our traveler refuses to vouch for anything of the kind. He says there is a large amount of prospecting that there was an elegant townsite below the forks, at which place Captain Battles and his famous boat Yukon was in the habit of leaving the winter supplies for that section. Immediately the ground was pre-empted as a townsite by the Edith M. Kyle Co., and was laid off and electric lights strung ground on the trees in glorious profusion. Settlers stopped, examined and bought, and by and by the Yukon came along and everyone was on the bank to see it land and to witness the discomfiture of Battles when he had to pay wharfage and purchase a warehouse site. To everyone's consternation Last summer some of the voyagers discovered the steamer continued up stream in the middle of the river to a point seven miles away, where a landing was made and a townsite staked called Bergeman. Naturally the town is where the supplies are, and thus it happens that Arctic
