International Bible Lesson for Tomorrow—Paul crosses to Europe—Acts xvi., 6-15.

Golden Text—Thou shalt be his witness unto all men.

This lesson gives us the first attack on European idolatry by Soldiers of the Cross, led by the Spirit of Jesus. His soldiers cannot conquer unless they are led by the Spirit, who directs them to Philippi. The Jewish religion was known wherever they went through their life to yield to God and be led by the Spirit than for us men? We have three samples of the work of God in converting sinners in this chapter—the opening of Lydia's heart, the deliverance of a slave girl from demon possession and the earthquake, the terror and despair that seized the jailer into the fold. This battle begins when, as in today's lesson, Lydia's heart is captured as she hears Paul preach. She is at once baptized, and her household, and she strains God's messengers to abide with her, thus manifesting her sincerity and faithfulness.

Spring Poultry Notes.

Line in some form is indispensable for the formation of egg shells and should be within reach of laying hens at all times.

The amount of green stuff laying hens eat will surprise anyone who is not in the habit of supplying their flocks with "greens."

Young ducks will grow fast and do well if they have no water in which to swim. Give them plenty to drink and yet it go at that.

There is no sweeter of a poultry house so good as a fresh earth. And on the farm it is the cheapest. Use it often and note the good results.

If the late hatched chicks are just getting to laying give them a chance to do their best, for eggs are low in price compared with a few weeks ago, hatching should be kept in a cool, dry place and turned every three or four days. If in covered trays this is an easy thing to do.

Any farmer who thinks it will not pay to bother with poultry should fix up a suitable place for keeping the fowls and agree with his wife, daughter or son that he will do the heavy work and they may do the rest. See what the results will be.

Live Stock in Spring.

When the colt comes this spring a little cow's milk given to place out that of the mare will not be wasted. It will be well to look after the colt's feet before putting them out to pasture. A little trimming may make a better shaped foot.

Nebraska anthracite-margarine law was declared valid the other day in a test case, a Lincoln (Neb.) firm being fined for coloring its product yellow.

Do you let the stable go a week or ten days without cleaning out? If so, is it any wonder you have an occasional case of thrush or scratches among the horses?

If you have never used a card and brush on your cattle, this is a good month to begin. See how the cattle will enjoy it and watch the improvement in their looks.

All stock, especially dairy cows, will do better if put gradually upon pasture when it comes time to turn them out. Give them a good feed of dry roughage of some sort before turning out, and at night a small fork full of nice, bright hay will be eaten before morning.

I think Baby's Own Tablets is the best medicine in the world for little ones." TRIPPED BY A CLERGYMAN.

Toronto, June 13.—Henry McCrimmon, under arrest on a charge of having burglarized a jewelry store, slid his hands out of the handcuffs while entering the police court this morning and bolted with several policemen in hot chase. A clergyman attending the Anglican Synod was crossing the street, and taking in the situation, tripped up the prisoner as he flew past and the police at once poured upon him.

BREWING POISON

More Disease is Caused in the Human System by Uric Acid Than Any Other Poison.

Science has demonstrated that in a few days' time you brew enough Uric Acid in your body to produce death. Your kidneys are your only salvation.

Because when they are well they filter out this deadly poison.

So, when your kidneys are sick you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty. They are all being slowly poisoned.

Uric Acid starts in the system more different kinds of trouble and suffering than any other form of poisoning. It irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless, and irritable, causes rheumatism and neuralgia, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; makes your head ache and back ache, causes indigestion, stomach, and liver trouble; you get a sallow, yellow complexion; makes you feel as though you had heart trouble; you lack ambition, get weak and waste away.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are a cure for these troubles, because they keep down the excess of Uric Acid by making healthy kidneys. They are not advertised for every ill, only for kidney trouble and its results. They are sold at 50 cents per bottle, of which a six-months' package here appears.

Five thousand people in Ontario praise Pitcher's Tablets, because of their relieving faulty acting kidneys. Manufactured by the Dr. Zina Pitcher Company, 82 Church Street, Toronto, Ont.

"Shadowed" in Paris.

WHEN a literary fish of any importance is taken nowadays one may be sure that a good many editors and publishers have been dangling their well-baited hooks before its nose. For two years or more Captain Dreyfus has had offers for what he might ultimately choose to publish. The business of offering advances and royalties to authors is not usually attended with a great amount of personal danger. But there is an American woman, a journalist, living in Paris, who could tell a different tale, says the "Saturday Evening Post." Two summers ago, just as the great trial was drawing to its close, she was in London, and there met an enterprising "American" publisher. Conversation turned, as did all conversation that summer, in either England or France, upon Dreyfus, and the publisher confided to the lady his desire to publish something verifiably from the pen of Dreyfus. The lady, it happened, was on terms of some intimacy with the inner circle of Dreyfus' friends, and when she left England for Paris she was commissioned to do what she could to get something for the publisher, either from Captain or Madame Dreyfus.

Two days after she left London a man approached the publisher with the positive assurance that he could arrange the whole affair within a fortnight. (In parenthesis it may be said that such men were not uncommon that summer.) The publisher, remembering the proverb concerning a bird in the hand, rushed to the nearest telegraph office and sent a message to the lady in Paris as follows:—"Suspend Dreyfus' negotiations for the present. Will you?"

The telegram was delivered, but almost simultaneously the lady was waited upon by a polite representative of the police department, with a demand for an explanation. What negotiations was she carrying on and with whom? She told her story and felt that it was received with the blandest incredulity. She promised to show the police the letter from London when it came, and reminded her visitor of her "American" citizenship. The official departed. Unfortunately, the press of business sent the publisher scurrying toward Scotland, and he, not realizing how important it was, neglected to write to the lady in Paris. She was disappointed. The letter was being "shadowed," and that her every movement was being watched by mysterious people. At first she laughed, and merely sent a little note of condolence to London. No answer came, and the watching continued. Her nerves began to give way, and finally she went to the United States ambassador with the whole story. The shadowing ceased. It would be interesting to know by just what diplomatic processes this incident was arranged.

Naked Greeks and Romans.

A TRAVELING correspondent of the "Argonaut" writes that one rainy day lately he met "Mr. Middle West" in the Louvre. He was seated, looking across the room at that beautiful picture, "La Gioconda."

"Sit down, I've got something to say," said he. I sat next to him. "I've had a relapse; I'm not feeling well to-day. I've just come up from the museum downstairs and I've seen the same nakedness there that I saw in Italy. I don't know whether it is on account of my nervous prostration that I cannot see straight, or have not mental veracity, as you say a great Englishman named Carlyle called the great quality of seeing things correctly; but, however that may be, I am sick and tired and utterly disgusted with the exposure of the naked human figure in Italy and France. In Italy you see these naked old Greeks and Romans everywhere—in the shops, museums, picture galleries. They are unfit for anything but the bathtub. Do suppose that I will let my two young daughters see these things? Not for all the riches of the great State of Ohio would I do it. I gave a groan whenever I saw young American girls going through those museums and galleries. I never saw Italian, French, German or English girls—only American girls—looking at Jupiter as the swan and Leda, for instance.

"Now I am sitting here looking at that lovely Joconde, dressed nearly up to the neck, with her charming smile and interesting face. That's all I want to see of a woman, or a man—the face. That Stanzio painted one picture of a woman, not a Madonna, dressed up to the neck; La Fornarina, she was a saturnine the goddess told me. He loved her; think of loving a woman who stood all day in front of a roaring furnace, baking bread, in hot summer Italy. He painted another one of her showing her—well, not dressed up to the neck. But my wife says I must not talk of such things. I have seen five thousand such naked ladies in Italy—of course I mean in pictures and statues—and I'm tired of them. I prefer looking at cow or horse pictures. It rests me."

"But isn't that Joconde picture a beauty! That's the way to paint men and women, dressed up to the neck. When I see naked pictures in a man's house, I think there's a coarse streak running through him. When I see them in a woman's house—it disgusts me. When I get back to Chicago I am going to send five thousand nightshirts to the Italian Government as a present, to cover the naked statues, and I am going to give them my pyjamas, too—that new-fangled scheme my wife makes me wear. She says they are fashionable. What's the use of being fashionable when you are in bed?—nobody sees you. My father slept in his jeans, and he lived till he was eighty, too. That's a copy of a German joke."

Mrs. Clancy (boastfully)—My husband was wiser of the pall-bearers at Callahan's funeral. Mrs. Casey (epitaphically)—An' well fitted fur the job he was. He's used to carryin' the bier that some wan like pays fur.—Philadelphia "Press."

"Why is the tale of Wight a fraud?" "Because it has needles you cannot thread. Freshwater you cannot drink. Cows you cannot milk, and Newport you cannot bottle."—"Tit-Bits."

Callih—Was the shrike a success? Cassidy—It was! After being out six weeks he got set in gittin' back out jobs.—"Flick."
