GOOD EXCURSION

The Park St. Methodist Sunday School excursion to Walpole Island, on the City of Chatham yesterday, was a splendid success. There was a good crowd on board and everyone enjoyed the trip.

They had delightful weather and the stay on the island was very pleasant. Two baseball games were played, one in which some of the ladies took part, and the other between two teams picked from the excursionists by Ald. Walter Piggott and William Doherty, the latter's side winning by a score of 8-7. Races were also held. Rev. Mr. Malott won the married man's race and Mr. Austin came in last. Dr. Hicks won the single man's race, Ald. Piggott bringing up the extreme rear. Mrs. Pickering won the married woman's race and Miss White the single ladies' race.

The ladies who had charge of the refreshment booth were Misses Mounteer, White, Massey, Jordan, Somerville, Martin, Jordan and Mesdames Wemp and Barfoot. W. Mounteer, P. Morley, Noble Gardiner, W. Snell and J. A. Wilson had charge of the candy counters.

The excursionists returned to the city at nine o'clock, a tired but happy crowd.

USING CANCELED STAMPS

Toronto, July 12.—The local post office authorities have instituted a prosecution against W. W. Stoddart, of the firm of Caplin and Stoddart, real estate brokers, Yonge street Arcade, on the charge of using cancelled postage stamps on new mail matter. Stoddart admits that he used a cancelled stamp that was only slightly marked, but denies that he used any chemicals to erase the cancellation. He says he offered Post Office Inspector Henderson $10 as payment for the stamps which he had used wrongly. The Crown authorities exonerate Mr. Caplin for participation in his partner's alleged offence.

It is one-third easier, one-third faster, is the only machine that does not fail in any part. IN THE ROUNDHOUSE

THE ATTENTION THAT IS BESTOWED UPON THE LOCOMOTIVES.

Constant and Careful Grooming Required by the Great Iron Horses of the Rail—How the Tires of the Big Driving Wheels are Tightened.

Any one at all familiar with railroads has seen the engineer dismount from the cab, oil can in hand, as soon as the train has come to a stop at some way station; seen him walk slowly about the ponderous machine, feeling of each bearing with his free hand as he filled the cups with oil; seen him perhaps tap a valve gently with a wrench or examine critically some ill working air pump.

To any man all this is interesting, but how many are there in all the vast crowd that enter the city daily at the great terminals who can tell offhand what becomes of the train when once the cars are emptied of the passengers? To be sure, they have seen the cars on a siding out in the yard. They know perhaps that a roundhouse is a place where engines are kept when not in actual use. But beyond this the ideas of the ordinary man are a bit hazy.

As soon as the passengers have left a train that has just come in from a long dusty run it is backed out into the yard, and the cars are set off on a side track. Men go upon them at once and begin to put them in readiness for the next trip. The windows are washed, cars freed from all filth and dirt, seats cleaned, water tanks cared for and the lighting apparatus put in order.

The locomotive, after leaving the cars, proceeds at once to the roundhouse, where the ponderous machine also receives a proper overhauling. First of all, the tanks are filled with water and the fuel supply is replenished. Then a few puffs bring the fire box above the ash pit, where the fires are cleaned and dumped altogether. The next thing is to stable the great iron horse.

The roundhouse itself is a most unimposing place, with its soot begrimed walls and smoky interior. These buildings are all constructed on the same general lines, low, one story structures, generally built of brick and semicircular in shape. The center of the circle is the center of the turntable. Arranged along the inner side of the building is a line of doors, each exactly like its neighbor. Under each runs a track of standard gauge, giving the whole an appearance not unlike a spider's web, the center of which is the turntable.

The turntable itself consists of a pit walled with stone, across which is a bridge free at the ends, but balanced at the center on a spindle. Rails are laid across this, as if it were a part of the roadbed.

When the fires of the locomotive have been cared for the engineer runs his machine upon the table. With deft hand at the throttle, he brings it to a stop at the precise point where the hundred tons of steel balance on the spindle that supports the bridge. Then the ponderous mass is slowly revolved until the required track is reached and the engine is backed into the roundhouse.

Once within the house the engineer's duty is done. He has but to go to the office and report in a book prepared for the purpose any repairs that are needed, and he can go home, assured that his machine will be ready for him when he starts on the next run.

The engine is now turned over to the roundhouse crew, who go to work on it at once. The attention that a locomotive receives on arrival at the roundhouse is about the same that one would expect to see bestowed upon a race horse. Wipers go over every inch of the surface carefully, removing all dust and oil. Others drop into the pit beneath the machine and wipe the running gear. The headlight is carefully cared for and the brass polished. In fact, the whole machine is put in first class shape in every way.

Throughout this work keen watch is kept for any signs of broken parts, and any found are repaired. The hundred or more flues are cleaned by steam pressure.

An engine seldom comes to the house that does not need repairs of some sort. The delicate mechanism is constantly becoming broken, and unceasing attention is required.

One of the most interesting of all the repairs that are made in the roundhouse is the tightening of the tires on the drive wheels. Each wheel is surrounded with a heavy steel tire. These occasionally work loose, and it becomes necessary that they be tightened without sending the locomotive to the shops.

To do this a stream of oil is fed automatically upon the tire and allowed to burn as it runs down. The result is that the whole rim is soon a circle of flame. This is kept up for a long time, and the tire, being heated faster than the wheel and the tire, when the tire has again become cold it contracts and clutches the wheel hard and fast.

The cumbersome repairs, such as turning down worn drive wheels and replacing boilers, go to the shops, where lathes, cranes and forges are to be had. But all the minor troubles are remedied at the "stables," and the foreman of the roundhouse is responsible for the condition of the engines. He is the man to whom all look in an emergency, and it is he who must look forward and plan for the repairs in such a way as not to interfere with the regular operation of the trains.

When men speak ill of thee, live so that nobody will believe them.—Plato.

BUGLE BAND TEAM LOST.

The Bugle Band team surely had their hard luck with them yesterday. After having the game practically won, they lost. Score, four goals to three.

The first half ended, Chatham three goals, Blenheim nil.

The Chatham boys just played rings around them, according to the reports, the first half. The trouble, however, came when Bennett at point was laid off for five minutes by Referee Cornwall. Our boys say there was no call for it at all. However, in that five minutes the Kents scored three goals. The Bugle Band defence seemed to have gone to pieces. Blenheim got another soon afterwards, making the score 4 to 3 in their favor.

Just at the finish Ross put a fourth in for the Chathamites, but Referee Cornwall said the time whistle had already been blown.

F. Brundage, F. Ross and W. Coupland scored for Chatham.

The following composed the Bugle Band team yesterday:—

Goal—Hicks.
Point—Bennett.
Cover point—Read.
1st def.—Oldershaw.
2nd def.—Hutchinson.
3rd def.—Ingram.
Centre—Tackaberry.
3rd home—Lawson.
2nd home—F. Brundage.
1st home—Coupland.
Outside home—C. Brundage.
Inside home—F. Ross.

A King St. merchant advises that it would be a good idea to have the stores on King St. closed from four o'clock until six o'clock during the Brantford-Tecumseh game here. This promises to be one of the best games of the season and it should receive liberal support from the Chatham people.

CANADA VS. STATES.

Philadelphia, July 12.—The second day's play in the international cricket match between Canada and the United States at Haverford was cut short to-day by a thunder-storm while the Canadians were at bat in the second inning. Their grand total for the first inning and eight wickets of the second inning was 343, or fourteen runs more than the Americans made in their first inning.
