City Council Decide to Rush Public Improvements as Fast as Possible

Special Meeting Held Yesterday Afternoon—Ald. O'Keefe Discusses Centre St. Sewer

A short special meeting of the City Council was held yesterday after-noon to decide whether the public works at present under the course of construction shall be continued or topped on account of the cold wea-

A report from the City Engineer was received on an asphalt block pavement on Wellington street from the market square to Sixth street. The Engineer thought it was too late to start this pavement this year and was also in favor of stopping the Raleigh street pavement before any of the road past the C. P. R. tracks is dug up.

Engineer Jones referred to the Wellington street pavement, one of the worst jobs in the city. It was put down in cold weather. Ald. Austin asked if the Raleigh street sewers were all right.

Mr. Jones—The sewers are all right. There have been no complaints lately.

Mr. Austin—I was in the City
Clerk's office on Monday and a resident of Raleigh street was there, and from the way he was talking matters are not very satisfactory yet.

After considerable discussion it was decided to finish Raleigh street and if the weather is still favorable to proceed with Wellington street. The Engineer has power to stop the work whenever he deems it advisable.

The by-law for the Wellington street pavement was put through its various readings and the matter of signing the contract was left with the Board of Works with power. The contract will be given to Blight & Fielder at the same rate on which the market pavement was put down. & Fielder at the same rate of which the market pavement was put down. The matter of the Centre street sewer came in for considerable discussion. The matter was finally left with the Board of Works and City Engineer to investigate.

Enormous Fund For Corruption Purposes in Kingston.

'The Petitioner," Says Judge Street, "Has Proved Sufficient, In My Opinion, to Have the Election Set Aside" -The Election Will Probably Be Voided-Cabmen Told the Truth-No Names, But Cash Forthcoming

Kingston, Nov. 2.—The Kingston election will probably be voided this morning. Just before the court rose last evening, Judge Street remarked:
"The petitioner has proved sufficient, in my opinion, to have the election set aside." A few minutes before, he said:
"The evidence has shown a most shocking state of affairs in Kingston:"

About an hour before the court rose, the judges had retired for a few min-utes, and both sides got together. When the judges returned, John Mc-Intrye stated that if an adjournment was made until to-day, he thought both sides would arrive at an agree-ment. Judge Street demurred at this, and said there could be an adjournment only for the purpose of probing ment only for the purpose of produig to the bottom the source of the enor-mous fund for corruption purposes. He then called for further evidence and the case dragged on till 6.30. The judges gave their decision in several reserved charges, and held one case proven, and in doing so, Judge Street made use of the expressions given above. The court will meet at $30 this morning, and it is understood that an agreement is likely to be reached whereby the protest will not be fur her pushed, nor the counter-protest, but the seat opened up again.

Corroborated Her Father.

Yesterday morning Miss Shortt, in part, corroborated her father's testimony about Halliday paying $15 for a rig that was used on election day, and just before noon the judges declared that the charge was proven, and that Halliday was an agent of Pense.

Charles James swore that, on the night before the election, he got two dollars from some unknown person in the Conservative party, and next day five dollars from Hubert Prevost, a Liberal, since deceased. The charge was held over.

Arthur Tate swore he got five dol-lars from a stranger in a coonskin coat. The charge was dismissed. Cabmen Tell the Trulth.

Cabmen Tell the Trulth.

Nearly the whole of the afternoon was taken up with charges of paying for conveyances, and some rather sensational evidence was given. In nearly every case the cabmen gave straightforward evidence, which was a refreshing change from much that preceded it. Half-a-dozen revealed the method adopted by the Liberals.

A typical case will suffice: Frank Gallagher swore: 'I heard that the cabmen were to go to R. H. Toyes' office, and I went in and put my name down on a list with others for three cabs. The night before election a note was left at my house, unsigned, but was left at my house, unsigned, but telling me at what subdivision I was to report. Some time after the election I found a package on my cab with $75 in it—$25 for each cab." William Christley, Joseph Eves and Daniel Eves each got $50 for two cabs. Joseph Eves each got $50 for two cabs. Joseph Eves was given the package for himself and his brother at night, and swore he got it from Joseph Kehoe.

The statement caused quite a sensation in court. Kehoe was recently appointed caretaker of the postoffice, and has been missing for over a month. No Signatures, But the Cash. Chas. Wilson, a livery-keeper, swore that he got an unsigned note to send six rigs. Afterwards, an unsigned mes-by going to the Liberal rooms. He went in and got an envelope on the table with $100 in it. Joseph Kehoe was the only person in the room. R. Wilson got $40 for three rigs the wilson got sall for three rigs, the money being left in an envelope at his office, and a paper with "for rigs" on it. There was no name to solve the mystery.

The Liberals had their innings with three of the witnesses. Charles Wilson swore that he got $40 from John Sowards, president of the Macdonald Club, and Thomas James that he was Club, and Thomas James that he was offered $75 for two cabs by Sowards, but refused, as he was a Reformer, and the Liberals were giving him $50.

R. Wilson said he got $40 also from the Conservatives for three rigs. Judge Street held that the evidence established the fact that Kehoe paid for cabs, and W. G. Craig's evidence showed him to be an active worker for Mr. Pense. No direct decision was given, however, on the cab cases.
