went on to say that he took the opportunity a few days ago to go down and look over invoices of goods supplied through Mr. Hinton from the Tryon Woolr Mills. The druggist was charged at 38 cents a yard, and the same kind of goods could be bought for 19 cents a yard. This is the way he found matters. It is for the people to decide whether or not the Minister of Agriculture, the Commissioner of Public Works and men who have acted as they have done, shall receive their continued confidence and come back to represent them in this Legislature.

Principle Versus Interest. (Ottawa Citizen.)

In the good old days that seem now so far away when the Reform party of Canada stood for stark, uncompromising free trade, and the Conservatives stood equally ardently for protection and the encouragement of new industries, there was one point on which the divergent parties tacitly agreed. The Reform party proposed that protection, after it got through fostering new industries, would breed combines and trusts. The Conservatives frankly admitted that it might, but promptly denied the remedy. The Reformers declared that the infant industries when they grew up would take advantage of the tariff protection to create combines and unreasonably enhance the cost of goods to the people who had helped to build up these industries. The Conservatives replied that when that time came they would simply lower the tariff on the particular goods that were included in the combine and let in foreign competition. This was the fiscal safety valve.

By the irony of fate the Conservative party fostered the young industries, but the Liberal party arrived in power in time to enjoy the increase. Not only did they come in time to enjoy the increase, and they accepted it with comfortable satisfaction, but, by another irony of fate, they are on the scene when the combines commence to be rife as they actually predicted. It might have been supposed that the Liberal party would have seized the opportunity with pure-souled enthusiasm. To be sure they sloughed off their free trade ideas when they came into a position to spend the fiscal revenue. But even a guileless electorate might have reason to expect that when protection was abused, and the once infant industries used as a shelter under which to form combines and trusts and rob the people by the increased cost of manufactures, the Liberal party would step forward to protect the people from protection. Such a notion would be right in line with the prophecies and principles in the forgotten days of opposition. The Citizen goes so far as to predict that had the well-meaning Conservatives been in power today they would be prompt to apply the remedy which they had cited in defence of protection. But the Liberal party is not fighting combines. It is no longer a question of principles with the Liberals, out of interest, and that interest prompts them to keep the tariff up to the highest level for purposes of revenue, and at the same time stand in with the combines and trusts that are useful for purposes of campaign funds. Within the past few years the combine and trust have had a mushroom growth in Canada. If you don't believe it, ask any retail merchant regarding the different lines of goods. The protectionist protects the manufacturer when they need it. This is a matter of principle. The Liberal party in Canada today has no principle except to get in all the revenue it can and spend it to increase its own interest.

Dr. Pugsley's Surrender. (St. John's Telegraph.)

The Minister of Public Works was compelled yesterday to produce the order-in-council authorizing him to award dredging contracts at last year's prices without calling for tenders. This modest order covered dredging operations in no less than ten harbors, the prices ranging from five dollars a cubic yard for rock down to a comparatively low rate for easy work. The order-in-council was rescinded because of the opposition criticism led by Mr. Bennett. The extent of the work involved is evidently very extensive, and the expenditures which it will propose so quietly to authorize might have amounted to a million or more so far as the country knows. Had Dr. Pugsley had his way he would have let the matter drop after announcing the government's decision to cancel the obnoxious order-in-council. But Dr. Pugsley was not allowed to have his way. This is what happened in the House when the matter came up: Mr. Bennett asked Mr. Pugsley when he would bring down the order-in-council authorizing the extension of dredging contracts without further tenders. Mr. Pugsley said that he would be obliged to do so if the order was cancelled and it was therefore not necessary to bring it down.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat. No wonder catarrh causes headache, irritates the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite. To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic. "I was ill for four months with catarrh in the head and throat. Had a bad cough and raised blood. I had become discouraged when my husband bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and persuaded me to try it. I advise all to take it. It has cured and built me up." Mrs. Helen Robinson, West Liscomb, N. S.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system. Mr. Bennett pointed out that the rule of the House required a paper to be brought down by the Minister who referred to it in the House. The Speaker—"But if the rule is not invoked at the time, it cannot be applied afterwards." R. L. Borden—"It was invoked at the time, though not mentioned. No more invoking was necessary, for the Minister promised to lay the paper on the table. The Speaker ruled that the order-in-council should be brought down, and Mr. Pugsley said he would produce it. He produced it yesterday. Its contents will be studied with lively interest by the country generally. Tenders for the work will now be called for. A newspaper which devotes much space to explanations of Dr. Pugsley's sois is now engaged in seeking to demonstrate that when the Minister of Public Works had the order-in-council passed he did it for fun, or for exercise, never intending to employ the power it gave him. The same journal omitted from its news columns the very interesting and important fact that Dr. Pugsley was compelled to announce that the order-in-council had been rescinded. The policy of defending the Minister by suppressing news of the character referred to is evidently rendered necessary by the unfortunate character of the great man's recent experience in the House. Opposition comment on dredging matters led the cabinet to believe it wise to recall the order-in-council which Dr. Pugsley had succeeded in getting through. That course, it was thought, would cause the country to regard future transactions in the Department of Public Works with less distrust. Dr. Pugsley's futile attempt to hold back the contents of the order-in-council and his surrender yesterday, however, make it impossible for him to emerge gracefully from this particular adventure. It is another incident tending to render uneasy the friends who expected from Mr. Pugsley to handle a great spending department with credit, or at least with caution.

Summer Hotels Highlands of Ontario.

The Grand Trunk Railway System announces that arrangements have been completed for two handsome additions to the chain of hotels throughout the Highlands of Ontario. The Wawa Hotel on Lake of Bays, one of the finest summer hotels in the Northern Resorts of Canada, is nearing completion and work is under way on the new Highland Inn situated overlooking Cache Lake at Algonquin Park station. The Highland Inn will be of the cottage type, cosy and comfortable in its appointment, all modern conveniences, colonial fireplaces in the dining and living rooms, spacious piazza and most charming outlook over lake, mountain and virgin forests; in fact all the comforts of civilization are transported into this virgin wilderness. Double daily mail service, telegraph and express facilities at this point with excellent train service will make this hotel a most attractive and restful resort for the summer. The Highland Inn is situated about 1500 ft. above sea level giving it by far the highest elevation of any summer hotel in Eastern Canada. A good boat livery and corps of guides will be maintained and tourists who desire to make extended trips through the waterways of the Park will be outfitted and provided for in every respect without rendering it necessary to bring any baggage excepting wearing apparel according to length of sojourn. These new hotels will provide every comfort and facility for the enjoyment of guests and the cost of accommodation will be so reasonable that it will not deter anyone of moderate means from patronizing them. In addition to this they will cater to tourist trade from Great Britain where the Grand Trunk is organizing trips of parties and individuals for a lump sum of expense including hotels from the time tourists leave home until they return. Such trips need not occupy more than the average holiday, say one month, and will embrace the ocean trip, an opportunity of becoming acquainted with Canadians and Canadian affairs and the entire cost will not exceed that of the usual summer holiday in Switzerland or other European Resorts.

The Manchester Election.

The lesson of the Manchester election seems tolerably clear. The Conservative party have reason to consider it a victory more far-reaching than appears at first sight, for much was involved in this spectacular contest. The picturesque personality of Winston Churchill has covered some of the deeper significances of the electors' decision. The most pertinent point is that the defeat of the minister should have taken place in the hotbed of Cobdenism, the Manchester school and great free trade center. This would seem to indicate that by constant preaching, the followers of Mr. Chamberlain's ideas are gaining ground in the larger cities of Britain, and it thus forms an epoch making election in the history of the Liberal party. It does not mean that the new party headed by Mr. Asquith will resign or consider that matter seriously, for if the Liberals wish they can hold office for three more years and their majority would stand many by-election defeats. At the same time there is a strong warning in the defeat at Manchester, and it was administered by tariff reformers. It would appear that there was some vacillation on the part of the candidate of the government. He was ready to promise anything and gained the reputation of being unscrupulous to win. Old age pensions, home rule, and other measures which are for more serious political thought were dangled before the electorate as actual promises. It was notable, however, that Mr. Asquith did not enter into the contest. He did not send the usual letter of commendation which a premier is expected to offer to a favored candidate. There is no explanation given on this matter. The whole tenor of the campaign has been the lack of the Asquith spirit as well as the premier's name and official send-off. There was none of that strength of will or sign of a strong hand which the prime minister of Britain is expected to show. There was none of the fighting blood in the election. Winston Churchill is audacious and is brilliant, but Manchester has added nothing to his reputation or to Liberalism. He set out to win and lost in a most motley array of torn and turned garments. He lost the confidence of the people as well as their votes. Those reasons may be read in the lesson to the governing party in Britain, but behind them stands bodily the condemnation of the radical measures which have been proposed by the Liberal party. The licensing laws proposed by that party would in themselves be a strong reason for the minister's defeat, and it would seem that the pacific policy of the Campbell-Bannerman regime suited the electors of Britain. They mistrust the stronger mind of the new leader. There must be more thorns strewn upon his path yet, but the rough path has to be trodden ere the Liberal party of Britain is regenerated. Mr. Asquith will be tried by fire, and the Manchester election may yet look small in comparison to other obstacles yet to arise. There was another strong feature in the by-election which must figure largely in the future—the defeat of Socialism. The candidate representing those views was so overwhelmingly defeated that his numbers could have made little difference added to the Liberal poll. This seems to mean that Manchester will have none of the doctrine of Socialism, and that in a working class constituency—indeed it may be said that all radicalism went to the wall, whether offered by the Liberals or by the Socialists in this case. Mr. Asquith's course will probably be to continue upon his way without heed to the lesson of Manchester. It is but part of his daily round until the end of his rule, but he cannot ignore the decision of the electors nor fail to perceive the temper of the new Manchester school of thought expressed in the receiving officers' returns after the polling day at North-west Manchester. This evidence of a new school of thought in Manchester is the surprise of the hour—Ottawa Citizen.

More Terrible Than War! More terrible than war, famine or pestilence is that awful destroyer, that blood-headed murderer, Consumption. It annually sweeps away more of earth's inhabitants than any other single disease known to the human race. "It is only a cold, a trifling cough," say the careless, as the irritation upon the delicate mucous membrane causes them to hack away with an irritable tickling of the throat. When the irritation settles on the mucous surface of the throat, a cough is the result. To prevent Bronchitis or Consumption of the Lungs, do not neglect a cough, however slight, at the irritation spreading throughout the delicate lining of the sensitive air passages soon leads to fatal results.
