

BEFORE YOU SAY GOODNIGHT

Prepare for a Clear, Bright Day Tomorrow by Taking "Cascarets" for Liver and Bowels

Drive away those persistent enemies of happiness—biliousness and constipation. Don't stay headachy, sick, tongue coated, sallow and miserable! Get rid of colds, indigestion, upset stomach, or that misery-making gas, Feel splendid to-morrow by taking Cascarets to-night. Cascarets are so pleasant, so harmless. They never gripe, sicken or inconvenience you like Calomel, Salts, Oil or nasty, harsh Pills. They cost so little and work while you sleep.

MURDER IN MUNICH REVOLUTION DISCLOSED BY CONVICTION OF TWO OF ASSASSINS.

LONDON, Oct. 30.

A trial in Munich has just disclosed details of a ghastly episode of the German revolution, according to a despatch to the Daily Telegraph.

On the evening of May 6, when the last sparks of the Bolshevik resistance were being stamped out in the streets of Munich, it was reported to Capt. von Stutterheim of the 1st Company of the Alexander Regiment that an illegal meeting was in progress in a house in the district for which he was responsible. He gave orders that those at the gathering be taken into custody.

A squad of soldiers was sent to the house. With levelled revolvers and shouts of "Hands up!" they burst into a room in which twenty-six young men were assembled. The young men much surprised at the sudden and violent intrusion, explained that they were members of the St. Joseph's Catholic Recreation Club and that only the most innocent forms of amusement had brought them together.

But all their protests were in vain. Stutterheim gave orders that they be delivered into the cellar of St. George's Palace, which had been set apart as a temporary jail.

The sight of a party of civilians under escort through the streets by soldiers attracted much notice, and roused the natural assumption that the prisoners were Spartacists and thus partners in guilt in many treacherous murders which, in the preceding days, had obtained Red rule in the Bavarian city.

A crowd, composed mainly of soldiers of other detachments, closed in round the little convoy, and the prisoners became the target of an ever increasing fire of ill treatment and abuse. As they were led within the courtyard, a large part of the crowd surged through the gates. Shots at once began to pour upon the helpless club members. The escort tried to shield them but their efforts were not successful, for seven of them were left dead in the courtyard when the bulk of the party got down into the cellar.

Among the soldiers who joined the convoy as it passed through the streets were Jacob Muller, a young butcher who belonged to the Bayreuth volunteers, and a non-commissioned officer named Mackowski. They were the two chief defendants at the trial.

It appeared that on the evening of the assault Muller was to some extent under the influence of liquor, as his company had received a liberal ration of wine with the evening meal. Mackowski placed himself at the entrance of the vaults and struck right and left at the faces of the prisoners as they passed down the stairs. Then Muller, Mackowski and eight or ten other soldiers followed the prisoners down into the cellar.

Mackowski ordered the nineteen surviving members of the club to lie on the floor face downwards. The wretched men obeyed and the soldiers emptied their revolvers into them. Those of the prisoners who were not killed or incapacitated by the first volley jumped to their feet and screamed for mercy. Their appeals fell on muddled and deafened ears.

Muller in particular believed with demoniacal fury. He drew his sword bayonet and slashed about blindly at both living and dead. When he had hunted his edge he snatched away the bayonets of one of his comrades and laid about him with that.

As soon as none of the victims could remain longer on his feet the soldiers pranced about on the prostrate bodies, stamping on hands and faces and plunging their bayonets into those who still showed signs of life. Then they executed a wild dance of triumph over the bodies.

Only five prisoners survived the massacre. One was saved by a soldier who recognized him as an acquaintance. The other four were either rendered unconscious by their wounds or had presence of mind to realize their lives depended on their remaining motionless.

Muller and Mackowski were found guilty of manslaughter and were sentenced each to fourteen years of penal servitude. Needless to say, the Independent Socialists will exploit for their party purposes the inadequacy of these sentences as compared with the execution of Spartacist leaders.

St. Lawrence Notes.

Rev. Father Battcock left by Argyle for Lamaline on a sick call to one of his parishioners. He has been called frequently up the coast to the different places since taking up his duties as Parish Priest here. The roads to Lawn, Nancy Barque, Roundabout and several other places within the mission, are not the most comfortable to get over by carriage, but Father Battcock is always ready and faithful to attend to those in need of comfort and consolation, besides his monthly visits.

Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Leo Pike, who has been dangerously ill for some time. Mrs. Pike was always such a help to others in illness and suffering, her pleasant smile and kindness to every one being felt and appreciated by many.

Mr. Albert Grimes is now home with his family, after an eight months' trip.

Hatton & Co., the movie picture men, have shown some very successful and popular pictures, and also given very amusing vaudeville entertainments.

St. Martin's Day.

St. Martin, the son of a Roman military tribune, was born in Pannonia, now called Hungary, about A.D. 316. For some time he followed his father's profession. It is related, that at the gate of Amiens he divided his cloak with a poor mendicant, and that on the following night he had a vision in which the Lord appeared to him wrapped in that half of it which he had parted with, and said to his angelic retinue, "Martin has given me this garment." This vision occasioned the saint to leave the army and retire into solitude, from which he was withdrawn by St. Hilary, Bishop of Poitiers. He was elected Bishop of Tours in 374, and the zeal and piety which he displayed in this office were most exemplary. He converted the whole of the diocese to the true faith, levelling the temples of the heathen to the ground, and erecting in their stead churches for the worship of the true God. The Emperor Valentinian, and even the tyrant Maximus, treated him with respect and honour, and he continued in his Bishopric universally beloved and esteemed, until A.D. 400 when he died, at the advanced age of eighty-four years. St. Martin has been styled "the Apostle of Gaul." The French had formerly such reverence for his memory that they carried his helmet with them in the wars, as incitement to courage. His festive day—November 11th—was instituted in A.D. 650, and is one of the four cross quarter days. It is commemorated in the Anglican Church Calendar, as is also that of his translation on the 4th of July. The former date is still called in law Martinmas from which it has been corrupted to Marthe or Marthemas. "Formerly," says Brady "the feast of this saint was denominated Martin-alia, and was held with much festivity, in close resemblance to the Venalia of the Romans, which was instituted in honour of Jupiter and Venus." St. Martin is the patron saint of the London Vintners' Company. St. Martin's little summer is a term for the fine days which sometimes occur about the beginning of November.

A Play With a Record of Success.

It was on December 21st, 1892, that the play of "Charley's Aunt" was produced for the first time at the Royalty Theatre and Mr. W. S. Penly made a hit in it from the very start; it ran there for 4 years with 1,460 performances straight off. Since then it has been running steadily, has been translated into every European language, and has been played all round the world. Frank Thornton took the play on tour in Australia, and while proceeding up-country the train in which he and his company were travelling came to a dead stop in the heart of the Australian Bush. The engine had broken down, and this meant a delay of several hours, making the company despondent at the thoughts of hanging around there for hours doing nothing. All at once some genius was seized with the brilliant idea that the company should

St. John's Woman Gained 14 Pounds on Three Bottles

Was All Run-Down For Twelve Years—Tanlac Proved to be What She Needed to Build Her Up.

"When I began taking Tanlac I only weighed 111 pounds and I now weigh 125 pounds and have just finished my third bottle," said Mrs. Mary Chipman, who resides at 24 Clifford Street, St. John's, Newfoundland, while in Connors' Drug Store, in St. John's. Continuing, she said: "For twelve years I have been in a general run-down condition. My appetite was very poor and was so bad at times that the very sight of food would make me sick. I kept getting worse all the time and gradually grew weaker and weaker. I had no strength or energy and life had become a burden to me. My head would ache all the time as though it would burst open, and I had such sharp cutting pains in the small of my back that I could not stoop over, and would become so dizzy at times I would have to catch hold of something to keep from falling. My nerves were so bad that any noise out of the ordinary would nearly drive me wild. Why, even the rustling of a newspaper around me would make me feel like screaming. I do not believe I would sleep two hours at night and many a night I would get up and walk around the house and then go back to bed and try to sleep, but would just roll and toss all night long."

"I had tried many different medicines for my trouble but never got any better. When I read about the good Tanlac was doing I made up my mind to try it. I bought some and began taking it, and it proved to be the very medicine I needed. Why, I can do more work now than I ever dreamed of being able to do, and I feel so good all the time now I am a changed person. No matter what happens now I never get nervous and my nerves are as steady as a clock. I just sleep fine all night, and get up in the morning feeling refreshed and full of energy. I can eat anything I want and never feel any bad effects from it. I never have the headache now and the pains in the small of my back and those dizzy spells are all gone. My friends all notice the improvement in my health and remark on how well I look, for before I began taking Tanlac I was pale but I now have a good healthy color. I hope that people who read this will try Tanlac, for after what it has done for me I know it will help others."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by J. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative—adv.

WHAT ARE PEPS? READ HOW THEY ACT

The best protection for the throat, chest and lungs is contained in a handy box of Peps.

As Peps tablets are dissolved in the mouth, powerful medicinal fumes are carried with the breath straight through the air passages into the lungs, where liquid medicine cannot reach.

The throat and lungs are always more sensitive in cold weather. Peps will strengthen them. Therefore, keep Peps handy wherever you are, and occasionally dissolve a tablet in your mouth. You never know what infection of colds, "la grippe" and even lung trouble may be carried about by people with whom you come in contact.

Because of their direct action, Peps give almost immediate relief to the chronic bronchitis sufferer, and provide young and old with a safe defence against Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Laryngitis and Pneumonia.
