Notes From Brigus.

Were one to judge by the continual passage of motors, to and from, the 24th was celebrated right gloriously by those fortunate enough to possess those means of conveyance. Indeed we observed some religiously avoided church on Sunday by speeding round the Bay.

Messrs. Thos. Brien and Jas. Burke of the Cable Office at Bay Roberts, arrived home on Saturday to spend the week-end. Messrs. Percy, Parsons, P. J. Kent and W. French came from the city to spend Empire Day with friends.

What was formerly a potato problem has now become a potato famine. Many persons with sufficient land to grow enough of that staple product for their own use, have none for seed, and what is worse no hope of procuring any. Some of those who were forced to obtain them from the Department of Agriculture are rather disappointed, as to all appearances the quality is not of the highest standard.

We regret to note the serious illness of Mr. Robert Clarke, who has been confined to his room for some weeks. Despite his advanced age his friends hope that with the coming of Summer, he will again recover his health.

We have always understood that the "tunnel" mentioned in Tuesday's Telegram as one of the places worth seeing in this town, was cut there as a means of easy access to a wharf. This wharf and premises was the property of the late Captain Abraham Bartlett, and was the berth at which the steamer "Panther" used to moor. Instead of containing marks of his satanic majesty's footprints, Devil's Hill is said to contain naught less than his arm-chair. In the days of childhood (now but a memory), I have often enjoyed the pleasure of seating myself therein. To obtain a good view of his august footprints one would have to take passage by boat out around Southern Point. Legend tells that he landed there, after

Most of the ailments that may attack your baby arise from improper feeding, and it is important that mothers should understand that baby will thrive best if fed in the natural way—at the breast. This will not be so difficult of accomplishment if the prospective mother includes in her daily food a bowlful of Neave's Health Diet.

But there are very many cases when the baby cannot be breast-fed, and then an important decision has to be made—"Which food shall we give our baby?" It is nearly a century since Neave's Food was first made, and the remarkable way in which delicate and ill-nourished children have thriven on it has caused its fame to extend throughout the world. Neave's Food is widely endorsed by the medical profession as the best alternative to mother's milk.

EVERY MOTHER should send for Free Sample Tin, which will be forwarded on receipt of 6d. postage. "Bottle" of "Neave's Food" sent on receipt of 1/6.

a strenuous leap of over a mile, from Collier's Point and then proceeded hastily up over the cliff, leaving his trail indelibly stamped in the surface of the rock.

Empire Day was an enjoyable one for numerous followers of Isaac Walton, some of whom were lucky in securing good catches. One party went in on Saturday, and returned Monday evening, hauling for 35 dozen. Another party is said to have secured 30 dozen at Hodgewater on Monday alone. Those who fished Turk's Gut Pond in the hope of securing "quality" instead of quantity, returned empty handed.

J. W. Hiccock's schooner "Puritan" arrived yesterday, from Hr. Grace, where she has been practically rebuilt. She will make a splendid addition to our much depleted Labrador fleet.

A professor has been here during the week conducting examinations, in practical music, of the pupils of the Mercy Convent. We understand there were upwards of forty for examination.

Since the first appearance salmon have become plentiful. One man had twenty this morning, one of which weighed 18 lbs. We heard of a sign of codfish being taken at Collier's Point on Tuesday.

Turk's Fateful Time.

On May 29, 1453, after fifty-three days' siege, Mahomet the Second, Sultan or Sovereign of the Mahometan Turks, captured the City of Constantinople, formerly called Byzantium, but by these new possessors named Constantinople, whose original and living name was derived from Constantine the Great, the first Christian Emperor of Rome, who made it the seat of the Eastern Roman Empire, dedicating it on May 11, A.D. His successor, his last Christian emperor, Constantine Palaeologus, killed when the city was thus seized by the Turks. On May 29, a treaty of peace was signed between the Turks and their northern neighbors, the Russians, at Bucharest, since then the capital of the new kingdom of Roumania, which was established in 1881. The river Danube was thereby fixed upon as the boundary between these two countries. Under Mahomet the Second the Turks also conquered Athens, the capital of Greece, and on June 2, 1827, they recaptured it after the successful war to obtain the independence of Greece which had been proclaimed on Jan. 27, 1822, in which Lord Byron, the English poet, had taken a distinguished part, dying there in 1824; but that freedom was not obtained till a sea-fight off Navarino, in 1827, when the combined fleets of Britain, France, and Russia nearly destroyed that of Turkey and Egypt. On May 28, 1864, the Ionian Islands, off the west coast of Greece, were annexed to that kingdom, for which a Danish prince had been chosen as sovereign in the previous year, after they had been taken from the Turks, and been held first by France, and then by Britain. After the Council of Berlin, in 1878, in which Chancellors of Germany, Austria and Russia agreed about a note to Turkey requiring it to make an armistice of two months with neighboring countries, it was not presented at Constantinople because, on May 29, a revolution broke out there, when the Sultan Abdulla Aziz, was deposed, and was said to have afterwards committed suicide on June 4. On May 30, his nephew was joyfully proclaimed as Murad the Fifth. But he was deposed next August for ill-health, when his brother, the infatuated Abdul Hamid succeeded. He was deposed in 1909 by the Young Turk Party. On May 30, 1878, Cyprus, a large island at the east end of the Mediterranean Sea, a Turkish possession, was taken under control of the British Government, and has continued so ever since, as Egypt, another previous possession of Turkey, also has done. On May 31, 1898, the Turks were obliged to settle with Greece their dividing line.

Where the Word Sterling Comes From.

Because of monetary conditions created by the war, suggestions have been made in England that the government change the "sterling" standard. These suggestions have not been followed, at least not yet, but they serve to recall the manner in which that title came to be applied to English gold and silver money. About the time of King Edward I., that monarch who was nicknamed Longshanks, because of his long legs, skilled workmen were brought from Eastphalia (a region that is now a part of Germany) to coin money. These Germans were called eastlings, which meant "workmen from the east." Their coins were so well-made and the silver and gold used by them was so pure that anything especially fine came to be called eastling, and in the course of years the first two letters were dropped, since the general effect of a spoken language is to cut it short. When coins began to be counterfeited, the government had to establish a "standard"; that is, a law was passed prescribing the exact amount of pure silver or pure gold, which must be used. It is also used on silver articles, stamped in fine letters on the back of spoons, etc., that have as much silver in them as appears in silver coins. From this first use, the word sterling is applied to high qualities, as we often say, "He is a man of sterling honesty," or "he showed his sterling worth from early boyhood."

Feeding Ducklings.

Ordinarily ducklings are more easily raised than chickens. If properly fed and cared for they can be put on the market at about 10 weeks of age weighing from five to seven pounds each. If not forced they will get much of their feed from grass and other succulent plants.

Ducklings do not need feed until about 36 hours after hatching after which they may be fed five times daily on a moist mash of equal parts, by measure, of rolled oats and bread crumbs, with about three per cent. grit. After the first week change to three parts, by weight, of bran, one part middlings, one part cornmeal, one part green feed, one-half part meat-scrap and about three per cent. grit. After the ducklings are a week old the grit or sand may be fed in a mash of in a hepper, but the common practice is to feed grit in all duck rations. Meat scraps is not usually fed until the ducklings are a week old when about five per cent. is added to the ration and gradually increased to 15 per cent. Gradually increase the proportion of cornmeal and decrease the bran until the ration becomes the fattening ration given below, for those ducks which are to be marketed. Those to be saved for breeders should be fed the first mash mixture. They should be given a good range where grass and running water are available. If confined to yards, considerable green feed and vegetable should be fed.

The ducklings for market should be fattened two weeks before selling on a ration of three parts, by weight, of cornmeal, two parts middlings, one part bran, one part meat-scrap, three per cent. grit and about one part green feed. If milk is available with which to mix the mash, cut the meat-scrap to one-half part.—The Ohio Farmer.
